Americans in Danger As Rebels Win Battle, Sweep on to Madrid

Government Forces Are Retiring in Disorder, Embassy Reports.

Militia 'Digs In,' Awaiting Invasion

U. S. Orders 4th Ship to Area After New Pleas for Aid.

The Spanish Revolt.

The American Embassy at Madrid reported last night that government troops had been defeated outside the city and were falling back in disorder. Americans at San Sebastian, Barcelona and Malaga were appealing for help.

At Madrid the government admitted imminence of a major battle for possession of the capital and rushed 11,000 troops as reinforcements to mountain passes leading to the city.

Insurgents at Soria, northeast of Madrid, laid plans to form a link with the army of Gen. Francisco Franko to the south and encircle the city.

At Gibraltar Gen. Francisco Franco agreed to avoid further damage in English territory from bombings after a British ship fired a "warning volley" as rebel planes flew overhead.

Bloody fighting raged at San Sebastian in the north as rebels intensified their attack on the seashore city.

Loyalists Retreating.

By Felix Bruner.

Government forces outside of Madrid have been defeated in a battle with rebels and are retreating in disorder into the city, the State Department was informed last night.

One hundred Americans, gathered in the United States Embassy, in the Spanish capital, apparently were in immediate danger of being enveloped in the expected fighting within the city.

Eric C. Wendelin, third secretary of the embassy and ranking American officer there, cabled that armed militia had taken up positions on rooftops throughout the city. He said the government is sending out heavy reinforcements and still claims it can score a victory.

May Mean Seizure.

Fall of Madrid, a city of more than 1,000,000 population, may mean complete seizure of the Spanish government by the rebels.

The text of Wendelin's message, filed at midnight, Madrid time (7 p. m. Washington time), follows:

"Every effort has been made all afternoon to get all Americans in the embassy. They now have practically all native Americans, numbering over 100, in the embassy.

"The reason for this is that they are informed a military engagement took place north of Madrid between government troops and rebel troops in which government forces were defeated and are retiring indisorder toward the city.

"The government is sending out heavy reinforcements and claims it can win a victory.

"However, armed militia have taken up positions on rooftops throughout Madrid. . . . .

Office Is Occupied.

"The office of the A. B. C. newspaper across the street from the embassy is occupied and the roof held by a large number of armed men. This position dominates this part of Madrid and incidentally the embassy."

Wendelin added that if the Philippine colony in the Spanish capital, numbering more than 100, decides to go to the embassy it will be more than full.

Communications between the State Department and Madrid are being accomplished with the cooperation of an American-owned telephone company in that city. Should the plant of the company be captured or destroyed communi-

Hepbron, Caught in Civil Strife, To Care for Stranded Nationals

Noted Criminologist of Baltimore Appointed as Peril Mounts.

Appointment of James M. Hepbron, widely known in Washington and director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission since 1925, as housing and food administrator for 100 Americans quartered in the United States Embassy in war-torn Spain, was announced in dispatches from Madrid last night.

Hepbron, a Baltimorean, recently had arrived in the Spanish capital from France. The last letter friends received from him was mailed from Biarritz, France, on July 12. It was addressed to Wallace Reidt, his assistant, in charge of his work on the Baltimore commission during his trip to Europe.

In the letter Hepbron said he planned to leave the French resort city July 13, pass through San Sebastian, now one of the bloodiest revolt centers, and arrive in Madrid July 15 or 16. This itinerary placed the noted criminologist in Madrid only a day or so before civil war flared from Bilbao to Seville and Malaga, engulfing the entire nation.

There was in Hepbron's letter a touch of irony and an unintentional note of satire.

"Conditions in France, I find, are quite unsettled," he said.

"This is especially so with Bastille Day just ahead. Between you and me, I'm looking forward to some real rest in Spain before coming home."

Hebron's trip was a combined jaunt of business and pleasure. It called for 10 days' rest in France, and then two weeks in Madrid, studying details of the Spanish penal system. He was due to return to the United States August 15.

His appointment in Madrid was one of several made hastily in the face of impending disaster and the threat of famine and a pitched battle near the city.

Only last winter Hepbron was the principal speaker at a crime commission dinner here.

Madrid Rushes 11,000 Troops To Meet Rebels

Fresh Defense Forces Are Ordered to Defend Three Passes.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Madrid, July 23.—The government tonight admitted the imminence of a major battle for possession of Madrid. The approach of rebel forces commanded by Gen. Emilio Mola, officials said, made it necessary to rush 11,000 reinforcements to defend the mountain passes leading to Madrid.

Fresh defense forces were ordered to take strong positions in passes at Guadarrama, Somo Sierra and Havacerrade.

Simultaneously, the government continued to carry its fight to rebel strongholds. Aviation units bombed insurgents at Suesca and Barracles. Other loyal airplanes took off from Barcelona and bombarded insurrectionists at Zaragoza. The attack met anti-aircraft gunfire from the rebel position, but no government airplanes were hit.

324 Die in Barcelona.

Loyalist newspapers in Madrid reported the downfall of rebel forces at San Sebastian, Alnansa, Navacerrade, Puerto de Leon and Somo Sierra. It was reported many casualties resulted from the government's bitter but victorious fight to recapture Toledo.

The Barcelona press reported 324 were killed and 952 wounded in fighting there. The Madrid government, however, announced officially that 235 were killed at Barcelona and 619 were wounded. The bodies of 140 victims remained unidentified.

A government radio announcement said street fighting continues

Fascist Planes Stop Bombing Gibraltar Area

Rebel Chief Heeds British Ultimatum After a Warning Volley.

By the Associated Press.

Gibraltar, July 23.—Spanish Fascists, whose war planes sent shells whistling in the vicinity of Gibraltar, accepted tonight a British ultimatum to prevent further damage on the "Gateway Rock."

British officials said they had received a "most satisfactory" reply to their warning from Gen. Francisco Franco, commander of the military rebels.

The exact nature of the reply was not disclosed.

Acceptance of the ultimatum came after British naval guns boomed a stern threat to Spanish rebel fliers in a "warning" volley from H. M. S. Wild Swan off Tarifa, Spain. The British emphatically told the Fascist leaders they must cease their "deliberate and irresponsible bombing of the shipping straits."

A short time later rebel warships, anchored off the British territory, departed for an unannounced destination.

The British, backed by the French, protested Fascist bombing of loyal warships anchored near the Mediterranean gateway during which extensive damage was caused on the Rock yesterday.

Gibraltar still teemed with thousands of refugees who fled the area around La Linea, bringing reports of a threat of serious epidemic in the Spanish Fascist stronghold.

(A second British destroyer, the Whitehall, routed a rebel Spanish plane during a bombardment of a British steamer transporting fuel oil to Liberal Spanish cruisers in Tangier harbor.

(The steamer, first identified as the Gibel Dris, was later believed to be the Gibel Dersa of the Bland Line.)

Eleanor Holm Expelled From Olympic Team For Breaking Training; Will Be Sent Home

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Hamburg, July 23.—Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, of New York, Olympic 100-meter backstroke champion in 1932 and member of the 1928 team, was officially discharged from the United States Olympic team tonight for violation of training rules.

It was the first time in history that an American athlete had been dismissed from an Olympic team for breach of training rules.

Mrs. Jarrett, one of the greatest woman back stroke swimmers the world ever has seen, was seeking her second straight Olympic title and was a heavy favorite to repeat.

She retired in 1934, after winning the American outdoor title. This year, after a career in the movies and singing with her husband's band, she returned to competition and recaptured the outdoor title.

Her dismissal came shortly after the S. S. Manhattan, carrying America's squad of Olympic athletes to Germany, docked here.

Announcement of her dismissal was made by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee.

After the announcement was made, Brundage said:

"I believe this is the first occasion of a dismissal of an American Olympic athlete for violation of training rules."

Dr. Joseph Raycroft, member of the Olympic administration committee, said, "We regard this as a medical case so we are sending Mrs. Jarrett home in care of an official squad nurse, Katharine Roche."

It was believed Mrs. Jarrett was dismissed for keeping late hours while the Manhattan was en route here from New York.

Shortly before the Olympic swimming tryouts in New York earlier this month Mrs. Jarrett admitted she didn't think much of buckling down and training.

"Most girls don't get much fun out of swimming," she had said. "It's work with them. Hard work. I want no part of that kind of sport. Recently a reporter at the national championships in New York asked me how I trained and I told him with plenty of champagne and not much sleep. I didn't think he'd take me quite so literally. Common sense would tell you that you can't break records without some sort of training. All I need, however, is a week to be in good shape. If I can't swim and have fun, then somebody can do my swimming for me."

Brundage gathered newspapermen in his cabin shortly after the ship docked and said:

"Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett has been dropped from the American Olympic team for violation of training rules and her entry in the Olympics has been withdrawn."

There was a moment of silence. Outside, seamen wrestled with ropes trying to dock the vessel. Then a stern line broke and there was confusion.

Brundage said Mrs. Jarrett "would be shipped home on the first available liner." This means that she will return on the Bremen leaving Bremen Saturday.

Brundage refused to amplify his statement except to say that "action was taken on the advice of the manager, coach, and trainer of the women's swimming team."

Brundage added that the burden of backstroke competition would be shouldered by the two girls who finished behind Mrs. Jarrett in the Olympic tryouts in New York and possibly some other member of the Pope Studies 'Liar' Rebuke For Coughlin

Pius Awaiting a Report From Bishop Gallagher on Censure Action.

Radio Preacher Writes in an Open Letter He Respects President.

With his bishop en route to Rome to confer with the Pope, and with disciplinary action against him being discussed by high church officials, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, yesterday publicly apologized to President Roosevelt for calling the Executive a "liar."

The term was hurled at the President in a speech delivered by the priest at the convention of Townsend Clubs in Cleveland on July 16. In that address Father Coughlin also referred to Mr. Roosevelt as "Franklin Double-Crossing Roosevelt," and again as "the great betrayer."

His public apology was contained in an open letter to appear in the July 27 edition of the periodical Social Justice. While he apologized for the use of the term "liar" he said his remarks were in reference to "Candidate Roosevelt" rather than to the "President of the United States."

Prelate Hints Rebuke.

The open letter indicated there would be no diminution of the priest's opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's re-election. For he wrote:

"As my President I still respect you. As a fellow citizen and as a man, I still regard you highly; but as an executive, I deem it best for the welfare of our common country that you be supplanted in office. To that end, in a gentlemanly and courageous manner, I shall strive * * *."

Addressing the President as "Excellency," the priest, head of the National Union for Social Justice, wrote:

"In the heat of civic interest in the affairs of my country and in righteous anger at the developments that, it is my conviction, have contributed largely to want in the midst of plenty, I addressed to the President of the United States, in a speech at Cleveland, Ohio, July 16, the word "liar."

"For that action I now offer to the President of the United States my sincere apology."

Meanwhile, Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, Father Coughlin's superior in the church, was on his way to Rome, where he was to confer with the Pope. Father Coughlin denied, the Associated Press said, that the bishop had been "summoned" to the Vatican, but it was considered certain Father Coughlin's speech would be discussed by the Pope and the bishop.

At the same time a high American prelate in Vatican City told the Associated Press the Cleveland speech in which the term "liar" was used had caused a "painful impression" in the Vatican. He said it was quite likely the bishop had been summoned to the Vatican to discuss the situation. He emphasized that the Pope is loath at all times to interfere in any diocese except in conjunction with the bishop of that diocese, in this case, Bishop Gallagher.

Drastic Action Not Likely.

No drastic action against Father Coughlin is to be expected, it was emphasized, the most likely course being a command to refrain from further political activity.

There was one report in Rome that Pope Pius might issue a declaration through Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Holy See, stating that the Catholic Church completely dissociates itself from the political statements of Father Coughlin.

In regard to this suggestion, Father Coughlin, in Detroit, was quoted as saying:

"My usefulness as an American citizen is so interwoven with the morality of my priesthood that should I become a disobedient and recalcitrant priest I would render myself entirely useless. Therefore, whatever orders come forth from

Landon Says New Deal Bars Recovery, Promises a Return To 'Free Competitive System'

Unshackled Initiative Is Prescribed as Cure for Trade Ills.

Kansan Stresses Evils of Monopoly

Administration Changes in Policies Confused Nation, He Says.

Topeka, Kans., July 23 (AP)—Following is the text of the address of Gov. Alf M. Landon, accepting the Republican nomination for President of the United States:

Mr. Chairman, members of the notification committee, ladies and gentlemen:

I accept the nomination of the Republican Party for the Presidency of the United States. In accepting this leadership I pray for Divine guidance to make me worthy of the faith and the confidence which you have shown in me.

This call, coming to one whose life has been that of the everyday American, is proof of that freedom of opportunity which belongs to the people under our Government. It carries with it both an honor and a responsibility. In a republic these cannot be separated.

Asks Understanding.

Tonight, facing this honor and responsibility, I hope for the gift of simple and straightforward speech. I want every man and woman in this Nation to understand my every word, for I speak of issues deeply concerning us all.

The citizen who assumes the direction of the executive branch of our Government, takes an oath that he will "faithfully execute the office of President of the United States," and will, to the best of his ability, "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." This oath carries the obligation, so to use executive power that it will fulfill the purposes for which it was delegated.

No man, in common good faith to his fellow citizens, may rightfully assume the duties of the high office of Chief Executive and take the oath that goes with the office, unless he shall intend to keep and shall keep his oath inviolate.

It is with a full understanding of the meaning of this oath that I accept this nomination.

The 1936 platform of the Republican Party has my complete adherence. It sets out the principles by which we can achieve the full national life that our resources entitled us to enjoy.

"No Future in Relief."

There is not time to lay our whole program before you tonight; I can touch only upon a few phases of it. The others, I hope to discuss with you in detail as the campaign progresses.

I intend to approach the issues fairly, as I see them, without rancor or passion. If we are to go forward permanently, it must be with a united Nation—not with a people torn by appeals to prejudice and divided by class feeling.

The time has come to pull together.

No people can make headway where great numbers are supported in idleness. There is no future on the relief rolls. The law of this world is that man shall eat bread by the sweat of

Topeka Resounds to Cheering Of Thousands as Landon Talks

"Yip-e-e-e" of Cowboy Yells, Roars From the City Dwellers Mingle With Music of Bands as Multitude Engulfs Capitol Lawns.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—The shrill, exultant "Yip-e-e-e" of the cowboy yell, the booming of drums, the glare of fireworks, the wild approving roar of serious-minded plainsmen who had traveled far for this moment —all this was crammed into Kansas' proud greeting tonight of the first of her sons ever to be nominated for the high office of President of the United States.

Spreading out as far as one could see on the acres of the State Capitol lawn, the huge throng from all sections of the country waited impatiently for the appearance of the man they had come to hail. Under a bit of a moon they sang while their eyes clung to the platform from which he was to speak. The strains of "America"—slow, solemn, majestic—rolled up from them.

The crowd might have been expected to be very weary, but it gave no indication. For hours the throngs had celebrated, paraded or watched others parade, in a pioneer pageant of prairie history designed to roll into one tremendous picture all the background of the man who was to go from them into the political war sweeping the Nation.

A hundred bands, countless floats, thousands of marchers had streamed through the Topeka streets, cheering for "Landon, Landon, Landon." The old stage coach, mounted cowboys and cowgirls with their never ending "Yip-e-e-e," prairie schooners, gold prospectors, floats of wheatfields, cattle and goats—all were there.

No one seemed to mind the sweltering heat—104 degrees of it. Throughout the day of happy jostling, cheering, waving, none complained.

Now, under the elms of the capi-

King's Heckler Is Suspended By Parliament

By the Associated Press.

London, July 23.—Three Laborite members of the Commons were suspended amidst wild confusion today after one of them had referred to King Edward as a "despicable individual" and another to a member of the government and government supporters as "dirty little rats."

At the stormy session, approval was voted the Baldwin government's new unemployment regulations.

Two of the suspended members —Campbell Stephen and George Buchanan—stalked angrily from the house after they had been voted out of their seats temporarily.

Then the Commons turned to J. McGovern, the third Laborite, ousting him in turn. But McGovern refused to budge. A sergeant at arms was called to conduct him from the chamber.

Ex-Naval Aid Indicted as Spy; Plea Set July 31

John S. Farnsworth, former Navy lieutenant commander, was indicted by a swift acting District grand jury yesterday on charges that he turned over confidential national defense information to the Japanese government.

Within three hours after it started hearing the case, the jury returned the indictment to Justice Oscar R. Luhring, of the District Court.

The indictment directed two counts against the former naval officer. One says that he "did communicate, deliver and transmit" the confidential information to a Japanese agent. The other accuses him of "attempt to communicate, deliver and transmit" such information.

The information, specifically, is that contained in a Navy publication entitled, "The Service of Information and Security, United States, 1922." The United States Government is charging that Farns-

Baby Is Drowned In Tub as Mother Leaves Bathroom

In the few minutes her mother was out of the bathroom, the 13-month-old daughter of a WPA worker drowned while playing in her bath yesterday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Miskell left her baby, Glenda Joyce, splashing happily in the water while she went to another part of the one-room apartment over a delicatessen store at 1303 Shepherd street northwest, to get her fresh clothing.

The tub contained only a few inches of water, but when Mrs. Miskell, who is 24 and the wife of Douglas Miskell, jr., returned, the baby was lying motionless with her face under the water.

Mrs. Miskell told the police she could not have been out of the bathroom more than two minutes. In that time, she said, she got the clothing and answered a knock at the door.

A fire rescue squad worked over the baby with a pulmotor, but failed to revive her. She was pronounced dead by Dr. Morris Chase, 4100 Fourteenth street northwest.

Glenda Joyce was the only child of the Miskells. Her grandfather was Sergt. Douglas Miskell, of the Park Police. The father is a WPA park worker.

The baby was just beginning to stand up and move about a bit in her play pen, the mother said. In a few weeks she would have been walking.

Note in Bottle Found in Bay Offers Clew to Missing Ship

By the United Press.

Miami, Fla., July 23.—A note scrawled on crumpled wrapping paper asking for "help," bobbed up out of the sea tonight and stirred hope that the 22 men, women and children aboard the missing motorship Nunoca, still may be alive.

Signed "Captain of the Nunako" and written on crumpled brown wrapping paper in barely legible blue pencil, the note was carried a bobbing quart whisky bottle.

The note read:

"Tuesday, July 21:

"Please give to Coast Guard.

"Help!"

"Please send help; crashed on reef at Matecumbe.

"Wireless broken.

"Capt. of Nunako."

The note was turned over to the officers of the Coast Guard flotilla, which for days has been sweeping the blue waters of the Gulf Stream in search of the vessel that dropped out of sight after clearing Georgetown, Gran Cayman, last July 4.

While the blurred plea gave new hope to searchers for the ship missing 19 days with 22 passengers and crew aboard, guardsmen at the Dinner Key air base at the same time pointed out possibilities that it was a hoax.

The note was found in the northern reaches of Biscayne Bay, close to the Miami shore between here and Miami Beach, by two girls fishing in a skiff.

The error in spelling Nunoca Nunoka was countered by the possibility the note was written for Capt. Moses I. Kirkconnell of the missing motorship by someone who did not know the correct spelling of the name. Matecumbe is in the extreme eastern curve of the keys, about 80 miles south of Miami on the Atlantic side.

New Deal Is Criticized for Falling Short of Expected Progress.

By Franklyn Waltman.

A Staff Correspondent.

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—Charging the New Deal had hindered both the progres of recovery and reform in the Nation, Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight pledged himself if elected to the Presidency to restore and maintain "a free competitive system—a system under which, and only under which, can there be independence, equality of opportunity and work for all.

The Republican Presidential nominee made these declarations in accepting his party's nomination on the south portico of Kansas' statehouse before a mammoth crowd of cheering Republicans from all parts of the Nation.

Speaking as an "everyday American," and on behalf of "practical progressives," Gov. Landon assailed the New Deal for discrediting "many liberal objectives during the last three years by careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration."

He laid at the door of the New Deal the hindrance of recovery through adoption of "arbitrary and uncertain monetary policy;" of piling up a crippling debt; weakening individual initiative and shackling the free spirit of American enterprise.

Urges Cut in Expenses.

He proposed a reduction in Government expenses—but not by reducing allotments for the unemployed; revision of the social security act to make it "workable;" "vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws" and general warfare on private monopoly and monopolistic practices—twice repeated; a farm policy based on soil conservation and temporary payment of limited benefits; recognition of the right of labor to protect itself by organizing—with full freedom of choice reserved to the worker; co-operation in international affairs to preserve peace—but not in such a manner as would involve the country in war; and, finally, maintenance of the Constitutional balance of power between Federal and State governments.

And in conclusion, Gov. Landon promised to call to his aid if elected "those men best qualified to conduct the public business," and he added, "and I mean just that." It was intimated in an official quarter that this was a veiled promise to include in his Cabinet Democrats who support him.

These were the subjects Gov. Landon discussed tonight before a yelling, shouting mass of men and women who, tightly packed together, stretched out for several blocks in all directions in front of him. How many thousands were there none knew exactly, but it must have been between 60,000 and 80,000.

Gov. Landon's speech was a plea for maintenance of the democratic processes of government in America—because as Gov. Landon asserted, "a free competitive system is necessary to free government" and "neither political nor civil liberty long survives the loss of economic liberty."

His plea for the preservation of "freedom of opportunity in all walks of life" ran through his speech like a thread. It was the basis on which he projected his farm proposals and the basis on which he formulated his attitude toward organized labor.

Cowboys Attend.

And it was a democratic atmosphere in which the acceptance address was made. Cowboys and prairie men sat or stood next to New Yorkers. "Tieless" Joe Tolbert, from South Carolina, found himself a brother to the New Englander as they shouted "Landon, Landon!" and sang "Oh, Susanna."

It was a "typically American scene," reaching a climax after a day of visiting and parading under an intense Kansas heat. Late in the afternoon a lengthy parade passed through Topeka which actually was a pageant of American history as ox-drawn prairie schooners and horse-drawn covered wagons and buggies followed tribes of Indians on foot and yipping cow-

Cooke Outlines Drought Check 'At the Source'

A $10,000,000 Red River Basin Program Drawn by Resources Group.

Swinging into full stride on the first day since its inception, the Great Plains Drought Committee began work yesterday on the President's long-time program of drought control, with erection of thousands of dams and tapping of subsurface rivers as first suggestions.

Morris L. Cooke, named the day before by the President as chief of the committee, outlined yesterday a general program of water conservation "at the source" by upstream engineering, with the plan including the pumping of water by electricity to dry areas.

At the same time, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, acting as chairman of the National Resources Committee, forwarded to President Roosevelt a $10,000,000 program to reduce drought damage and further water conservation efforts in the Red River Basin.

A committee representing the State planning boards of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, drafted the plan, which calls for construction of small dams, restoration of natural lake levels, improvement of existing water channels, flood control measures, reduction of stream pollution and improvement of municipal and rural water supplies.

WPA Labor Eligible

The program outlined unskilled labor as a part of the plan, thus making WPA labor eligible. Ickes said he did not know whether work-relief money would be available. Part of the money was pledged by the committee, which proposed an interstate management of the projects.

In the meantime, railroads in the drought areas, assembled representatives in Chicago to determine what aid measures could be extended to drought-hit farmers, according to the Associated Press.

The sun continued to wither the crop prospects of the Midwest, meanwhile, although the Chicago weatherman, J. R. Lloyd, reported showers in parts of Wisconsin and Iowa, and crop-damaging winds and hail in northeast Iowa, where the winds tore down the Iowa State Teachers College stadium.

More Rain on Way.

More rains are on the way to Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Michigan and Wisconsin, according to Lloyd, who said that Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota would continue to swelter in 100-degree heat.

On the Chicago Board of Trade, the corn price leaped the full 4-cent limit, indicating again the general belief that the crop is daily being reduced by hundreds of thousands of dollars in value.

In St. Paul, Minn., Resettlement Administrator Rexford G. Tugwell said that while there is "no way to estimate" the size of the Federal drought-relief bill, the drought is "worse in some sections than in 1934."

In Kansas City, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace began a corn-belt tour before returning to Washington.

The Great Plains Drought Committee will meet daily for the next two weeks, it was announced here, and then will make a tour of the burned regions which will end in a meeting with the President on his dustbowl tour, scheduled for about August 15.

The President's statement of the day before appointing the committee was followed yesterday by the addition of H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, to the committee.

Inquiry Is Voted In Wendel Case

Newark, N. J., July 23 (AP).—A "blue ribbon" Federal grand jury of bankers, professional and business men voted today to investigate the bizarre case of Paul H. Wendel—related to the crime which gave the Federal "Lindbergh law" its name.

Assured by United States Attorney John J. Quinn it had jurisdiction in the case, the grand jury ordered witnesses to appear tomorrow for testimony on Wendel's story that he was kidnaped in Brooklyn and tortured into confessing the Lindbergh kidnaping, then brought to New Jersey and turned over to Ellis H. Parker, sr., chief of Burlington County detectives.

Wendel's confession, produced almost on the eve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's scheduled electrocution, resulted in postponing the kidnap-murderer's death three days.

Landon's Reference to Progressives Held an Indictment of New Deal.

By Franklyn Waltman

WALTMAN.

TOPEKA, Kans., July 23.—Undoubtedly various labels will be attached to Gov. Alf M. Landon's address accepting the Republican Presidential nomination, each influenced to a degree by the political tenets and background of the label-maker. Thus tories might regard it as "radical;" conservatives might call it "liberals" and New Dealers undoubtedly would describe it as "conservative." Others will assert it is a "middle of the road" approach to our political problems.

But is seems to me that Gov. Landon supplied the most apt label for his address and for his political philosophy when he spoke of the "practical progressives" who have become disheartened in seeing "many liberal objectives discredited during the past three years by careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration."

In that sentence is the sharpest, most devastating indictment that can be made of the New Deal. In essence it is a charge against the New Deal of treason to the cause of liberalism and progressivism, a betrayal of those men and women who have fought through the years against reaction and for progressive government. By "careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration" the New Deal rapidly is bringing those men and women and what they fought for into disrepute of the Nation.

Viewed from that angle the Landon acceptance speech is the utterance of a "practical progressive," of a man who is not at all satisfied with this country as it it but wishes to forge ahead in tune with the necessities of the times—but a man who shrinks back from reckless experimentation, whether it be with monetary policy or the Constitution, a man who does not forget the practicalities of life in his progressive efforts.

This speech would not have been made by Herbert Hoover, Calvin Coolidge or Warren G. Harding while they were in the White House. It could have been made by Woodrow Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt. If there is reaction in it, it consists of reaching back and gripping the political philosophy of the elder Roosevelt and Wilson and enunciating it today as American progressivism. Had this country been guided by such a philosophy during the twenties it might have been spared at least some of the suffering brought about by the depression.

Thus, irrespective of details and despite several vague phrases and omissions, the Landon acceptance speech might be termed an excellent address from the viewpoint of the "practical progressive," who is neither a tory nor a radical. Certainly it is by far the best political utterance ever made by Gov. Landon and it promises that from him will come a realistic discussion of the issues, during this campaign.

In reading the Landon acceptance speech it must be remembered that it is not his last word on the issues of the campaign. It is not and should not be regarded as a complete summation of his political philosophy. The time available to him for his acceptance speech prevented any such ambitious undertaking. And this address is to be regarded as a supplement of the Kansan's telegram to the Cleveland convention.

Gov. Landon and his advisory staff succeeded in achieving "simple and straightforward speech" in setting forth his fundamental political views on current issues. Incidentally, this speech indicates that Gov. Landon in the last six months has traveled a great distance in grappling with these issues. Substantially his views remain the same, but he has attained a fluency of expressing them that he lacked last year.

Whereas President Roosevelt flayed "economic royalists" in his acceptance speech, Gov. Landon shunned vituperation and devoted his time to presentation of the case of the "everyday American," the simple man. He places first emphasis on economic recovery, but he does not neglect reform. Indeed, he charges that under the New Deal "the Nation has not made the durable progress, either in reform or recovery that we had the right to expect." And it is notable that twice he pledged himself to battle private monopolistic control.

Among those here who had advance copies of the acceptance speech the paragraphs dealing with labor inspired the most discussion. In one group the view prevailed that the Republican nominee had made a specific declaration in behalf of an open shop and the reaction in labor circles would be sour.

Some Republicans were fearful that the Governor had said more than necessary on that subject. But politicians always wish to leave everything as vague as possible. The fact that Gov. Landon made a straightforward and outright declaration on this subject symbolizes his courage and is to his credit.

Since this part of his acceptance speech bids to become a bone of controversy it is well to understand exactly what he said. He did not, of course, pronounce any benediction on the open shop. What he said was that "in the absence of a union contract"—which is an important qualifying phrase and constitutes a recognition of the closed shop—"an employe has an equal right to join a union or to refuse to join a union."

He argued that employes, while having the right to protect themselves by organizing, likewise had the right to join any type of union they prefer, company, craft or industry and that in the enjoyment of this right they should have "entire freedom from coercion or intimidation by the employer, any fellow employe or any other person."

Such an attitude contains the essence of democracy. It is hard to see how Gov. Landon could take any other stand in an address devoted to urging a revitalization of the democratic idea of this country. But majority rule is the essence of democracy, it might be objected. It is not. What is the fight against industrial monopoly but a fight against the majority in business combining to suppress the minority? Majority rule unless held in check, turns the Democratic idea into tyranny. Tolerance is the essence of democracy—and tolerance was the keynote of the Landon speech tonight.

2 Hospital Guards Will Face Inquest

An inquest into the assault death of Howard Hawkins, 32, colored mental patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, will be held at the District Morgue today.

Two guards at the hospital, ordered arrested by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald Wednesday after he had completed an autopsy on the body, will appear at the inquest. Police said the men may be charged with manslaughter after the hearing.

The guards, John Ferguson, 28, of 3219 Ninth place northeast, and Robert Brunner, 27, of 613 Morton street northwest, were accused of assaulting the colored man on May 28. After several continuances in Police Court the charges were finally nolle prossed Tuesday by Assistant District Attorney Eugene Carusi.

Hawkins, in a complaint filed with Detective C. A. Berry, of the Eleventh Precinct, identified Ferguson and Brunner as the two men who kicked and assaulted him when they tried to put him in his room.

Roosevelt Rule To Affect 1,000 Postal Places

300 Postmasters, Already in Selection Process, Under Old System.

By the Associated Press.

Postal officials reported last night the appointment of between 1,000 and 1,200 postmasters, yet to be made, will be affected by the President's executive order extending civil service control over the filling of postoffice vacancies.

Another 300 postmasterships, where the appointment process already has started, will be filled under the old system. Regard will be given to preferences of political leaders, responsible officials said. In these cases, it was added, examinations already have been held or announced.

A number of acting postmasters appointed by Postmaster General Farley pending a regular Presidential appointment also will be subject to appointment under the old rules. These are acting postmasters who were appointed after examination.

Acting postmasters appointed without an examination will be subject to the new rules laid down by President Roosevelt, department spokesmen said.

"Praise" From Landon.

While officials of the Postoffice Department and the Civil Service Commission prepared yesterday to carry into effect the new order, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, prior to his notification tonight, told reporters in Topeka he was "glad to see the President do it," and that the order "shows the advantage of competition."

"I hope now that he's made such a good start he will extend the order to WPA—the relief administration," the Governor added.

At the Civil Service Commission, officials were studying the President's order to discover what changes, if any, in the method of giving examinations would be required by the new system. Officials said much of their "descriptive literature" on the postmastership posts would have to be changed.

Three Methods Provided.

Under the President's order, affecting 13,730 postoffices of the first, second and third class, three methods of appointing future postmasters are provided:

First, incumbents may be reappointed after passing a noncompetitive civil service examination to demonstrate their quilifications.

Second, subordinate civil service employes of the Postoffice Department may be appointed to such offices upon passing a non-competitive civil service examination.

Third, appointment may be made of the person winning the highest grade in an open competitive examination conducted by the Civil Service Commission.

Sees System Aided.

Describing the order as "distinctly in the interests of the merit system," the commission, in a formal statement, added:

"One feature is that only one examination may be held for an office unless no eligibles are secured from the first examination or the eligible or eligibles resulting from the examination are found by the Civil Service Commission to be deficient as to character or as to residence.

"Under preceding orders as far back as the administration of President Coolidge, the Postmaster General was given final decision with respect to the residence of eligibles certified by the Civil Service Commission, and the executive order of May 1, 1929, issued by President Hoover also placed final decision as to matter of character in the Postmaster General.

"Only the highest eligible is to be certified for appointment unless upon presentation to the Civil Service Commission it is found by that commission that his character or residence disqualifies him for appointment."

Pope Studies Coughlin

Rome curtailing my preaching social justice, I shall be only too happy to accede to the request and obey orders."

Father Coughlin previously had arranged to tour the country in the interests of Representative William Lemke, candidate of the Union Party for the Presidency, in whose behalf he was speaking at Cleveland when he termed Mr. Roosevelt a "betrayer," a "double-crosser" and a "liar." Dr. Francis E. Townsend, head of the Townsend old-age pension movement, was to accompany Lemke and the priest on the tour.

Discussing his apology, Father Couglin told the Associated Press: "At this time the President has two identies—one, the President of the United States, and, second, a candidate for the Presidency. When he becomes a candidate for the Presidency he subjects himself to the campaign speeches of his opponents, and as such he can claim no special privilege on the grounds that he is, after all, the President of the United States."

He pointed out that his Cleveland address was extemporaneous, and said that if he had written the speech in advance he would not have used the strong terms to which he did resort.

In New York yesterday, James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman, refused to comment on the developments in Rome or here. As a prominent Catholic layman, his assistants pointed out to the Associated Press, Farley has refrained studiously from discussion of Father Coughlin's attacks on the man Farley is attempting to re-elect.

At Albany, N. Y., Dr. Townsend said the apology is "none of my business."

Text of Apology.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 23.—The text of an "open letter" in the July 27 issue of the magazine Social Justice, in which the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, apologizes to President Roosevelt for calling him a "liar" recently, follows under a five-column, two-line heading of:

"An Open Letter of Apology To President Roosevelt"

The text:

Excellency:

In the heat of civic interest in the affairs of my country and in righteous anger at the developments that, it is my conviction, have contributed largely to want in the midst of plenty, I addressed to the President of the United States, in a speech at Cleveland, Ohio, July 16th the word "liar."

For that action I now offer to the President of the United States my sincere apology.

It has been implied, both in the large section of the public press and elsewhere, that my action on July 16 was due to the fact that promises allegedly given to me in person by the President of the United States were not carried out. My reference was not to such an action.

Specifically, I had in mind the recorded promises held out to a Nation during 1932 by a candidate for the Presidency. I had in mind the noble inaugural address delivered by that candidate-elect on March 4, 1933; and had in mind an oath of office to uphold the Constitution of the United States of America.

Historical record since March 4, 1933, is responsible for the fact that in my Cleveland address on July 16 I did not pussyfoot.

The money changers have not been driven from the temple. Those who "abdicated" their high places have been restored and their places made more secure. There is a greater and far more serious concentration of wealth today than existed in 1932 and 1933.

The President of the United States is on record as having encouraged the Congress of the United States not to take too seriously the Constitution of the United States. That action did not have the effect of upholding the Constitution.

I am conscious that the President of the United States is reported to have made the following declaration on May 14, 1935:

"As you know, a great many of the high and mighty—with special axes to grind—have been deliberately trying to mislead the people who know nothing of farming by misrepresenting—no—why use a pussyfoot word?—by lying about the kind of farm program which this Nation is operating today."

I am conscious that the President of the United States has not pussyfooted when attacking either those with whom he is in disagreement or his political enemies.

I was one of the first, and not one of the least, to help you attain the Presidency. My assistance was based upon Your Excellency's ability to perform. As my President, I still respect you, as a fellow citizen and as a man, I still regard highly; but as an executive, despite Your Excellency's fine intentions, I deem it best for the welfare of our common country that you be supplanted in office. To that end, in a gentlemanly and courageous manner, I shall strive, always willing to admit my mistakes—including those of good judgment—and to apologize even publicly when confronted with them.

In conclusion, I wish to state for the record that my remarks and criticism delivered in Cleveland were directed at a candidate for the greatest political office within the gift of the people.

Respectfully,
(Signed) CHARLES COUGHLIN.

U. S. Embassy Becomes Hotel For 100 Citizens

Food Supply Increased at Madrid and Additional Beds Provided.

By the United Press.

Madrid, July 23.—The United States Embassy was converted into a hotel today to care for refugee Americans in war-torn Spain.

So far, more than 100 Americans have checked in at the embassy. Eric C. Wendelin, third secretary of the embassy, announced that no Americans in Madrid, Barcelona and Valencia have been harmed, but he had no knowledge of Americans elsewhere in Spain because of disrupted communications.

A large quantity of foodstuffs was purchased and additional beds and cots were brought from the Hotel Ritz. The improvised hotel was operating smoothly, with both men and women aiding in the preparation of meals. Children played in the spacious gardens, and all appeared to be contented.

Women in Main Building.

Women were accommodated in the main building. Men occupied the servant's quarters and several other buildings of the embassy which covers a square block in the residential section. It is surrounded by steel fences and is faced by a beautiful garden, which includes shady walks, tennis courts and a fountain.

The buildings, owned by the Duke of Montellano and rented by the United States, are among the most beautiful in Spain and a storehouse of art treasures.

Wendelin, Military Attache Col. Stephen O. Fuqua and Commercial Attache Albert F. Nufer are handling the Embassy Hotel, aided by a special staff appointed among those seeking shelter there. The staff includes James M. Hepbron, Batlimore, Md., head of the Baltimore criminal justice commission, in charge of housing and food administration; Col. Aurelio Ramos, for 27 years a member of the Philippine constabulary and now residing in Spain, in charge of the radio department; Lieut. Col. Robert O'Connel, of Cincinnati, former chief purchasing officer for the A. E. F. in France, in charge of admission, and Lieut. Gus Jones, in charge of guest reception.

Americans registered so far include:

Jane Huntley, New York City; Marjorie Williams, Savannah, Tenn.; Richard Aldwoth, Los Angeles; Edith Fishtine, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Tribble and family, Decatur, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Teale, Lincoln, Nebr.; R. F. Zimmerman, Chicago; John Plauche and family, New Orleans; Mrs. Adelaide Duque de la Riva and daughter, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Van Tubergen and family, Brooklyn, N. Y.; the Rev. Father Roderick Wheeler, Haverhill, Mass.; Mabel Hanlon, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.; Meno Spaner, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Scholl, Newtonville, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Sauerwein and family, Paulding, Ohio; Charles Kany, Berkeley, Calif., and Elsa Van Siyke, Bronxville, N. Y.

Lena Lois Mandell, Worcester, Mass.; Edna Federick, Holyoke, Mass, and Eleanor O'Kane, Philadelphia, made an American flag out of pajamas and other pieces of cloth and hung it from the window of their boarding house.

Heckler

James Johnston, newspaper man, fell dead in the house.

The disorders occurred as Home Secretary Sir John Simon was delivering an address on unemployment. When he mentioned the responsibility of children in supporting their parents, McGovern broke in with, "Why doesn't the King support his mother? He must be a despicable individual!"

(Queen Mary receives an allowance in the civil list of government appropriations.)

McGovern, least tractable of the three hecklers, told the chair: "Well, Mr. Speaker, I say the home secretary is a damned liar."

His suspension was voted 262 to 11.

McGovern stood rooted when he was asked to leave. Finally a black-jacketed sergeant, wearing knickerbockers and carrying the traditional sword, appeared to lead the recalcitrant member out by his elbow.

Simon resumed his speech after a 15-minute recess occasioned by the heckling.

Buchanan, too, his face red and his arms working, rose during the turmoil to say to Sir John: "You're not telling the truth; you are lying!" He refused to withdraw his statement.

Stephen joined the fray by yelling: "I hope every member of the Labor Party will refuse to allow this debate to go on. Why should we listen to this liar, deliberately lying?" Then he cried alternately: "That lying scoundrel! That dirty little rat!"

Stephen, protesting Buchanan's suspension, said he was being punished by those whom he called "robbers and murderers of the working class and the unemployed." Waving his hand toward the Conservative benches opposite, he called his colleagues "dirty little rats."

Revolt Endangers Americans

cation with the city will be impossible.

There is little hope of removing Americans from Madrid, which is far inland. Calls for assistance from Barcelona, San Sebastian and Malaga, however, are rapidly being answered. The situation in San Sebastian, seat of the American "summer embassy," is particularly serious.

Almost simultaneously came a report from Barcelona that an automobile flying an American flag had been wrecked and burned and that its occupants were missing. The occupants were a Spanish clerk employed at the American consulate and a British chauffeur. The message said a strong protest had been made to the Catalonian government.

Clerk Believed Killed.

The message said it was believed the clerk, named Interralde, had been killed.

With four ships, including the Coast Guard cutter Cayuga, which was ordered to Spanish waters yesterday afternoon, speeding to their assistance, Americans in port cities are expected to be rapidly rescued.

Meanwhile, from Barcelona came another message saying that 80 Americans were expected to leave within a few hours for Genoa on the Italian vessel Princess Maria. The American merchant ship Exeter is expected to leave with 30 more today.

Bowers Five Miles Away.

The message from San Sebastian, the first in 48 hours, indicated that the chancery still was unable to obtain any word from Ambassador Claude G. Bowers, who is at Fuentarrabia, five miles from San Sebastian. The message asked that an American warship be dispatched to San Sebastian immediately, if possible.

The four American ships now steaming toward Spain include the battleship Oklahoma, bound from Cherbourg; the Exeter and the cruiser Quincy, which is expected to arrive at Gibraltar Sunday and proceed immediately to Malaga.

The State Department revealed it had been attempting to communicate with other American ships near Spain, but that the Exeter apparently was the only one in those waters. It disembarked its passengers at the French port and started on the rescue mission at the urgent request of the American Government.

Situation Dangerous.

The message relayed from San Sebastian did little to relieve anxiety for Americans there, although it indicated that at the time it was sent Americans still were uninjured. The message, translated from the French, said:

"Situation here dangerous. Battle in the streets very near the chancery yesterday, with artillery fire both from land batteries and from a small war vessel of the Spanish government, which has already departed. The Popular Front has now won a greater part of the town, but the situation may become worse again if further revolutionary forces arrive here, or if the red wing of the Popular Front is not better controlled.

"This telegram has been sent by courtesy of a French naval dispatch vessel which has just arrived.

"Communication with the Ambassador at Fuentarrabia or with anyone at all outside the town is impossible. I believe the Americans here are safe up to the present.

"The British Ambassador is trying to send a message asking for a warship and I recommend that an American vessel be sent here immediately if possible."

Meanwhile, reports from Madrid, where a desperate situation existed Wednesday, indicated that Americans still were safe and the city was quieter.

Eric C. Wendelin, third secretary of the embassy, who is in charge, cabled the State Department that about 30 women and children had taken refuge in the embassy and that more were expected. He added city authorities had informed him there was enough food in the Spanish capital to meet normal requirements for a week. He indicated in previous messages that the supply would last less than two days.

"The water supply," he said, "is functioning all right and has not been cut off."

Stores Are Open.

He added that street cars were running and that stores were open. He attributed the nearly normal condition to the fact that armed men had left the city to meet approaching rebels, but he expressed concern over what might happen should either a victorious or a defeated army enter the city. He indicated further that he had been attempting to communicate with San Sebastian without success.

In contrast, a message from Consul William E. Chapman at Bilbao, on the northern coast, said the city was virtually in a state of siege and that he feared a food shortage would lead to looting. He requested that a war vessel to take off women and children be sent immediately. The Oklahoma and the Cayuga are expected to go directly to Bilbao, which is not far from San Sebastian.

Serious trouble also was reported from Seville. Herbert O. Williams, American consul at Gibraltar, said the British consul at Seville had requested help. He reported the British warship Shamrock en route there.

Some Americans Leave.

An earlier message from Consul Lynn W. Franklin at Barcelona reported that two Italian and one British warship arrived yesterday morning and that some Americans had been able to leave by automobile for the French border.

An Italian passenger ship is expected to arrive today, he reported, and added that the Italian consul general had informed him Americans would be permitted to go aboard. There are 660 Americans in the consular district, which includes a large territory, State Department records show.

Franklin reported he believed "unsetled conditions" would continue for some time.

Reports Confirmed.

Reports of artillery fire near San Sebastian were confirmed by Vice Consul Frank Cussans, whose station was given as "near the Franco-Spanish border." He reported hearing artillery fire with regularity and added that all roads leading to the French frontier had been barricaded by Spanish government troops.

Mrs. Bowers is believed to be with the American ambassador at Fuentarrabia, which is near the French border. The town is completely isolated. At San Sebastian the embassy staff is housed in the Continental Hotel.

The cutter Cayuga is on a training cruise with 60 cadets who recently graduated from the Coast Guard School at New London, Conn. Experienced officers and seamen bring the crew to 110. It is expected that the cutter will be used as a tender to the Oklahoma to transport passengers in localities where harbors are not equipped for ships as large as battleships.

The Exeter is a 9,360-ton vessel and can take on upward of 250 refugees.

30 Are Reported Dead, 27 Missing in Typhoon

Tokyo (Friday), July 24.—The Domei (Japanese) News Agency in a dispatch from Kagoshima today reported 30 persons killed, and 27 persons and nine ships missing after a typhoon there. Property damage was extensive, the dispatch stated.

Reports from Fukuoka prefecture near Shimoneseki said 12 houses fell, one person was killed, and roads and crops were damaged heavily.

Invaders Shell San Sebastian From Hilltops

Government Troops Hold City With Exception of Barracks.

By the United Press.

General Headquarters, Northern Insurrectionist Army, Pamplona, Spain, by Courier to Hendaye, July 23.—Blood flowed in the streets of San Sebastian tonight as insurrectionists intensified their attacks on the seashore resort city. Simultaneously, rebels launched an attempt to starve out Madrid, Barcelona and other cities in the hands of government troops.

Along the Spanish frontier near Vera 4,000 insurrectionists splashed across a river to San Sebastian. They were volunteers from monarchist Navarre Province. Throughout the day and late into the night there was fighting around San Sebastian.

At first the government forces drove out all the rebels, who were quartered in the Marie Christina Hotel. The rebels then started shelling from the hills. Meanwhile, a government cruiser in the harbor bombarded the Layola barracks, held by rebels. A rebel airplane bombarded the Pasajes fuel depot.

French Cruiser Arrives.

A French cruiser arrived at San Sebastian to evacuate the French colony if necessary.

At the northern insurrectionist headquarters at Pamplona leaders were most enthusiastic and hopeful of rebel victory.

The attempt to starve out government strongholds apparently was due to rebel realization that military forces are deadlocked. The change in tactics may postpone the storming of Madrid at least until after the outcome of the fighting at San Sebastian.

"This is civil war to a finish and without quarter," rebel leaders said, "no undue chances must be taken. We hope that if we can starve out the chief government centers there will be less fighting. We want to diminish the flow of fraticidal blood."

Loyal artillery shelled the fishing port of Pasajes from positions in the mountains behind San Sebastian. Simultaneously loyal artillery bombarded San Sebastian in its second day's effort to dislodge 1,000 officers and men comprising an infantry regiment holding their barracks in the name of the rebels.

Planes Bombarded.

Loyalist forces also bombarded rebel airplanes flying over Irun. Several shells fell on the French side of the frontier, but there was no damage.

Government troops continued to hold San Sebastian, with the exception of the infantry barracks on the extreme edge of the city.

Because of spasmodic cannonading in the Basque provinces foreign refugees have been forbidden to attempt to reach the border. It was estimated that during the last few days 400 Britons and Americans have left Spain by way of Irun and Hendaye. They traveled in motor cars and trucks. Their safe passage was guaranteed by armed bands of government supporters.

The U. S. consulate general at Bordeaux sent a vice consul to Hendaye to aid American refugees. He was seeking to contact Ambassador Bowers at San Sebastian.

at Melilla, Spanish Morocco, where the revolution broke out last Friday. A general strike was reported in progress, and the city has been without bread for two days.

The interior ministry announced government forces, including loyal troops, civil guards, storm guards and detachments of the labor militia have penetrated Cordoba. Meanwhile, four columns of loyalists, totaling 6,000 fighters from Catalonia, were marching on Zaragoza, one of the strongest rebel positions in the north.

Fall of Madrid Predicted.

London, July 24 (Friday) (AP).—The fall of Madrid, a staff writer for the Daily Mail reported today in a dispatch from Soria, appears certain before Saturday.

The insurgents at Soria, northeast of Madrid, claimed a carefully mapped campaign to move in simultaneously from the north and south and encircle the Spanish capital, the writer said.

Reports were current, the dispatch stated, that Gen. Francisco Franco already has reached Toledo, on the south of Madrid, and is in wireless communication with the Soria rebels.

Victory Is Forecast.

Rebel headquarters at Pamplona, Spain, July 23 (AP).—Spain's northern rebel army settled down tonight for a long, slow military campaign to drive the liberal government from power.

A spokesman for Gen. Emilio Mola, the northern insurgent commander—who was still at Pamplona—predicted the rebels would win.

Insurgent troops, he declared, were marching on Madrid from the Burgos region, while most of the rebels of the Pamplona garrison were busy trying to "mop up" along the northern border.

The Bilbao and Ovideao miners and other workers were massed against the revolters, he said.

Rebel leaders asserted they were trying to break the morale of their adversaries by excuting Communists—supportrs of the government—in public squares. They said three or four out of every dozen communists caught are shot by firing squads.

Rebel staff officers said their plan was to starve out Madrid and other cities, if they are unable to take them by assault.

They had already begun an attempt to starve Irun into submission instead of attacking, they said, because the 18,000 railroad workers, miners and other leftists there outnumber them.

Dispatches brought here said two mountain passes, about 30 miles north of Madrid, were held by government forces, blocking the rebels' march on the capital. They are the passes of Alto de Leon and Navacerada.

6 Saved in Lake.

Lorain, Ohio, July 23 (U.P.).—Six Cleveland men were rescued from Lake Erie by Coast Guardsmen tonight after an explosion in the motor set fire to their 40-foot cabin cruiser, Rosa Jane II, three miles off shore.

Mexicans Lash 'Witch,' Surrender

Fort Davis, Tex., July 23 (AP).—Two brothers accused of whipping an aged Mexican woman almost to death "to drive the devil out of her" because they said they believed she had bewitched their sister, voluntarily surrendered to Mexican authorities across the Rio Grande today.

The strange incident occurred near Santa Helena, across the border from Castleton, Tex.

Pete Crawford, Texas Ranger, said he was informed their sister awakened several mornings "with finger marks on her throat." They demanded that the woman "unwitch" the sister.

When she refused, the Ranger asserted, the brothers lashed her with a quirt, kicked and beat her until she was almost dead. Immigration authorities caught them.

"Mexican authorities said they wanted the two men, Saturnino and Benino Crando," Crawford said. The pair, American citizens, voluntarily decided to go back to Mexico. The Ranger took them to the river and they waded across.

"They don't hang men in Mexico for killing a witch," Crawford quoted the two.

G. O. P. Pledged to Reform In National Expenditures

Freedom From Governmental Intimidation and Rebuilding of Sound Monetary System Declared Cure for Economic Ills.

his brow. The whole American people want to work at full time and at full pay. They want homes, and a chance for their children, reasonable security, and the right to live according to American standards. They want to share in a steady progress. We bind ourselves with a pledge we shall not ignore, thrust aside, or forget, to devote our whole energy to bringing these things about.

The world has tried to conquer this depression by different methods. None of them has been fully successful. Too frequently recovery has been hindered, if not defeated, by political considerations.

Our own country has tried one economic theory after another. The present Administration asked for, and received, extraordinary powers upon the assurance that these were to be temporary. Most of its proposals did not follow familiar paths to recovery. We knew they were being undertaken hastily and with little deliberation.

But because the measures were supposed to be temporary, because everybody hoped they would prove successful, and because the people wanted the Administration to have a fair trial, Congress and the country united in support of its efforts at the outset.

Now it becomes our duty to examine the record as it stands. The record shows that these measures did not fit together into any definite program of recovery. Many of them worked at cross-purposes and defeated themselves. Some developed into definite hindrances to recovery. They had the effect generally of extending control by Washington into the remotest corners of the country. The frequent and sudden changes in the Administration's policy caused a continual uneasiness.

As a result, recovery has been set back again and again. This was not all of the failure. Practical progressives have suffered the disheartening experience of seeing many liberal objectives discredited during the past three years by careless thinking, unworkable laws nad incompetent administration.

The Nation has not made the durable progress, either in reform or recovery, that we had the right to expect.

For it must be remembered that the welfare of our people is not recorded on the financial pages of the newspapers. It cannot be measured in stock market prices. The real test is to be found in the ability of the average American to engage in business, to obtain a job, to be self-supporting and a self-respecting member of his community.

Judged by the things that make us a nation of happy families, the New Deal has fallen far short of success. The proof of this is in the record. The record shows that in 1933 the primary need was jobs for the unemployed. The record shows that in 1936 the primary need still is jobs for the unemployed.

The time has come to stop this fumbling with recovery. American initiative is not a commodity to be delivered in pound packages through a govenrmental bureau. It is a vital force in the life of our Nation and it must be freed!

The country is ripe for recovery. We are far behind in expenditures for upkeep and improvements and for expansion.

The total of this demand—in industry, in new enterprises, in our homes and on our farms—amounts to billions of dollars. Once all this consumer demand is released, the problem will be not where to find work for the workers, but where to find workers for the work.

Time at Hand to Free Initiative From Government Interference

One of the signs of the ending of past depressions was the launching of new business ventures. It is true that most of them were small. Altogether, however, they provided work for many millions of people. In the present depression this demand for work has not yet appeared. Few new ventures have been started. Why? Because the small business man, the working man who would like to become his own boss—the average American—has hesitated to start out for himself. He lacks confidence in the soundness of Federal policy; he is afraid of what may come next.

We must dispel his fear, restore his confidence and place our reliance once more in the initiative, intelligence and courage of these makers of jobs and opportunities. That is why I say, in all earnestness, that the time has come to unshackle initiative and free the spirit of American enterprise.

We must be freed from incessant governmental intimidation and hostility. We must be freed from the effects of an arbitrary and uncertain monetary policy. And, through a vigorous enforcement of the antitrust laws, we must be freed from private monopolistic control.

Once these things are done, the energies of the American economic system will remedy the ravages of depression and restore full activity and full employment.

Out of this depression has come, not only the problem of recovery, but also the equally grave problem of caring for the unemployed until recovery is attained. Their relief at all times is a matter of plain duty.

We of our party pledge that this obligation will never be neglected. In extending help, however, we will handle the public funds as a public trust. We will recognize that all citizens, irrespective of color, race, creed or party affiliation, have an equal right to this protection. We would consider it base beyond words to make loyalty or service to party a condition upon which the needy unemployed might obtain help. Those who use public funds to build their political machines, forfeit all right to political consideration from true Americans.

Let me emphasize that, while we propose to follow a policy of economy in Government expenditures, those who need relief will get it. We will not take our economies out of the allotments to the unemployed. We will take them out of the hides of the political exploiters. The question is not as stated by the Administration—how much money the American people are willing to spend for relief. The question is how much waste the American people are willing to stand for in the administration of relief.

The destruction of human values by this depression has been far greater than the American people suffered during the World War. When the depression began millions of dependable men and women had employment. They were the solid citizenry of America; they had lived honestly and had worked hard. They had dealt fairly with the Government which, in turn had depended upon their support.

Then they found themselves deprived of employment by economic forces over which they had no control. Little by little they spent their life savings while vainly seeking new jobs.

We shall undertake to aid these innocent victims of the depression.

In addition, we shall amend the social security act to make it workable. We recognize that society, acting through government, must afford as large a measure of protection as it can against involuntary unemployment and despondency in old age. We pledge that the Federal Government will do its proper share in that task.

But it must be kept in mind that the security of all of us depends on the good management of our common affairs. We must be able to produce and accumulate enough to finance our normal progress, as well as to take care of ourselves and of those entitled to protection.

Financial Reform Declared Vital In Face of Limited Federal Funds

Mounting debts and increasing taxes constitute a threat to all of these aims. They absorb the funds that might be used to create new things or to reduce the cost of present goods. Taxes, both visible and invisible, add to the price of everything. By taking more and more out of the family purse they leave less for the family security. Let us not be misled by those who tell us that others will be made to carry the burden for us. A simple inquiry into the facts and figures will show that our growing debts and taxes are so enormous that, even if we tax to the utmost limits those who are best able to pay, the average taxpayer will still have to bear the major part. While spending billions of borrowed money may create a temporary appearance of prosperity we and our children, as taxpayers, have yet to pay the bill. For every single dollar spent we will pay back two dollars!

Crushing debts and taxes are usually incurred, as they are being incurred today under the guise of helping people—the same people who must finally pay them. They invariably retard prosperity and they sometimes lead to situations in which the rights of the people are destroyed. This is the lesson of history, and we have seen it occur in the modern world.

Our party holds nothing to be of more urgent importance than putting our financial house in order. For the good of all of us, we must re-establish responsibility in the handling of Government finances. We must recognize that a government does not have an unlimited supply of money to spend. It must husband its resources just as truly as does the head of a family. Unless it follows such a course, it cannot afford the services which the people themselves expect.

No sound national policy looking to the national welfare will neglect the farmer. This is not because the farmer needs or wishes to be coddled, or that he asks for undue help. It is necessary because the needs of a great nation require that its food producers shall always stand upon a social and economic plane in keeping with the national importance of their service.

The present Administration efforts to produce this result have not been successful. Payments under the AAA did help to tide farmers over a difficult period. But, even before it was ruled out by the Supreme Court, the AAA was rapidly disorganizing American agriculture. Some of its worst effects continue. By its policies the Administration has taken the American farmer out of foreign markets and put the foreign farmer into the American market. The loss of markets, both at home and abroad, far outweighs the value of all the benefits paid to farmers.

Worse than this, from the standpoint of the public, is the fact that the Administration, through its program of scarcity, has gambled with the needed food and feed supplies of the country. It overlooked the fact that mother nature cannot be regimented.

The time has now come when we must replace this futile program with one that is economically and socially right.

The wealth of the soil must be preserved. We shall establish effective soil conservation and erosion control policies in connection with a national land use and flood prevention program—and keep it all out of politics.

Our farmers are entitled to all of the home market they can supply without injustice to the consumer. We propose a policy that protects them in this right.

Some of our farmers, dependent in part upon foreign markets, suffer from disadvantages arising from world disorder. Until these disadvantages are eliminated we propose to pay cash benefits in order to cushion our farm families against the disastrous effects of price fluctuations preserving freedom of opportunity in all walks of life.

"Fulfill Pledge."

The American people, now as always, are responsive to distress caused by disasters, such as the present drought. Our platform reflects that spirit. We shall fulfill its pledge to give every reasonable assistance to producers in areas suffering from such temporary afflictions, so that they may again get on a self-supporting basis.

Our farm program as a whole will be made to serve a vital national purpose.

The family type of farm has long constituted one of the cherished foundations of our social strength. It represents human values that we must not lose. Widespread ownership of moderate-sized tracts of land was the aim of the Republican homestead act. This conception of agriculture is one phase of the general principle that we stand for—preserving freedom of opportunity in all walks of life.

The benefits which will be paid under our program will go no higher than the production level of the family type of farm.

Another matter of deep concern is the welfare of American labor. The general well-being of our country requires that labor shall have the position and rewards of prosperity to which it is entitled. I firmly believe that labor has the right to protect this position and to achieve those rewards by organizing in labor unions. Surely the history of labor in the United States has demonstrated that working conditions, wages and hours have been improved through self-organization.

The right of labor to organize means to me the right of employes to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry. It means that, in the absence of a union contract, an employe has an equal right to join a union or to refuse to join a union.

"U. S. as Umpire."

Under all circumstances, so states the Republican platform, employes are to be free from interference from any source, which means, as I read it, entire freedom from coercion or intimidation by the employer, any fellow employe or any other person.

The Government must maintain itself in the position of an umpire: First, to protect the public interest, and second, to act as a mediator between conflicting groups. One of the greatest problems of this country is to develop effective methods of conciliation.

Taking a dispute, after it gets into a tangle, and rushing it to the doorstep of the President is a bad way to handle a labor situation or any other situation.

In international affairs also the Republican Party has always worked for the advancement of justice and peace. Following the early tradition of our country, it his consistently urged the adjustment of international disputes in accordance with law, equity, and justice. We have now again declared our continual loyalty to this principle.

Republican Presidents sent delegates to the Hague Conferences and one of them took the leading part in the termination of the Russo-Japanese War. Another Republican President called a conference which, for the first time, produced a reduction and limitation of arms on a wide scale. Still another led in securing the treaty outlawing wars.

In purpose and achievement, our party has a record which points the way to further helpful service in creating international understanding, in removing the causes of war, and in reducing and limiting arms.

We shall take every opportunity to promote among the nations a peace based upon justice and human rights. We shall join in no plan that would take from us that independence of judgement which has made the United States a power for good in the world. We shall join in no plan that might involve us in a war in the beginning of which we had no part, or that would build a false peace on the foundation of armed camps.

I turn now to the basic principles upon which our Nation is founded. America has always stood, and now stands, first of all for human rights, for "the life, liberty and pursuit of happiness" of the great declaration. The prime needs of men have not changed since that declaration, though new means from time to time may be necessary to meet those needs. But the great safeguards against tyranny and oppression must not be cast away and lost. They must be saved that men may live free to pursue their happiness, safe from any kind of exploitation.

Trend to Centralize Power Held Dangerous to Nation

One cannot face this occasion and the prospect flowing from it without a sobering reflection upon the beginnings, growth, and destiny of our Nation. Our Government was founded to give life to certain vital principles. The people embodied these basic principles of human rights in the Federal and State constitutions. Thus, the people themselves, of their own free will, set up this Government. And it is still the Government of the people. Any change which the people want they can have by following the procedure they themselves laid down.

But for any official or branch of government to attempt such a change, without authority from the people, is to do an unwarranted and illegal act. It is a substitution of personal for constitutional government. If added power is needed, the people have set out how that authority may be had from them if they wish to give it.

This, in its broad essentials, is the basic structure of our Government.

As our economic life has become more complex and specialized, some need, real or apparent, has often been urged as an excuse for a further grant of power from the people. They have sometimes given, sometimes withheld, the desired power.

There has now appeared in high places, however, a new and dangerous impulse. This is the impulse to take away and lodge in the Chief Executive, without the people's consent, the powers which they have kept in their State governments or which they have reserved in themselves.

In its ultimate effect upon the welfare of the whole people, this, then, is the most important question now before us: Shall we continue to delegate more and more power to the Chief Executive or do we desire to preserve the American form of Government? Shall we continue to recognize that certain rights reside with the people, that certain powers are reserved for the States, and that certain functions are delegated to to the Federal Government?

Now I know that many of us, at one time or an other, have become dissatisfied and impatient with the efforts of our local and State administrations to solve our difficulties.

At such times it has seemed to us that only a larger, more powerful unit of government could meet the need.

For those who have followed such a line of reasoning I have the understanding that comes from experience. As a young man I was attracted to the idea of centralizing in the Federal Government full power to correct the abuses growing out of a more complex social order. When the people rejected this alternative, I was as disappointed as anyone. But in spite of this rejection, I have lived to see many of those abuses substantially corrected by the 48 State Legislatures in their fields and by the Federal Government in its field of interstate commerce.

More recently, as a small independent oil producer, I saw my industry ask for Federal regulation because of a selfish exploitation of a natural resource, which, once wasted, cannot be replaced. When Federal regulation failed, the industry made progress in the solution of the problem, by turning to State action, supplemented with interstate compacts as provided by the amazing foresight of the makers of the Constitution.

Continuation of Balanced Federal And State Powers Is Promised

It is not my belief that the Constitution is above change. The people have the right, by the means they have prescribed, to change their form of government to fit their wishes. If they could not do this, they would not be free. But changes must come by and through the people and not by usurpation. Changes should come openly, after full discussion, and after full opportunity for the people to express their will.

Propose Balance.

The Republican Party, however, does not believe that the people wish to abandon the American form of government.

We propose to maintain the constitutional balance of power between the States and the Federal Government.

We propose to use the full power of the Federal Government to break up private monopolies and to eliminate private monopolistic practices.

In other words, the Republican Party proposes to restore and to maintain a free competitive system—a system under which, and only under which, can there be independence, equality of opportunity, and work for all.

A free competitive system is necessary to a free government. Neither political nor civil liberty long survives the loss of economic liberty. Each and all of these liberties, with the precious human rights which they involve, must be preserved intact and inviolate.

If I am elected Chief Executive of this Nation I propose to restore our Government to an efficient as well as constitutional basis.

I shall call to my aid those men best qualified to conduct the public business—and I mean just that.

I shall stand back of them.

I shall hold them responsible for doing their jobs.

I shall co-operate wholeheartedly with Congress in an effective reorganization of the numerous Government agencies, to get rid of those that are not necessary, to eliminate duplication, to insure better administration, and to save the taxpayers' money.

I hold that it is the right of our people to have their greatest public service enterprise—their Government—well administered.

These are some of the aims and proposals of the Republican Administration that would enter office under a pledge to conduct a public business with honesty, frugality, courage and common sense.

Looks Forward.

In common with all my countrymen, I look forward to the America that is to be.

It should be a Nation in which the old wrong things are going out and the new right things are coming in.

It should be a country which produces more and more until there is plenty for all, with a fair chance for all to earn their share.

It should be a land in which equal opportunity shall prevail and special privilege shall have no place.

It should be an America that shall bring to bear the whole of her great spiritual force in a common effort to drive the curse of war from the earth an America that, for the sake of all mankind as well as ourselves, shall never lose the faith that human freedom is a practical ideal.

It is in these aims and in these works that I vision the manifest destiny of America. Everything we need for their realization we can find, I firmly believe, within the principles under which this Nation has grown to greatness. God grant us, one and all, the strength and the wisdom to do our part in bringing these things to pass.

Peggy Ann Landon (upper left) in the gown she wore when her father, Gov. Alf M. Landon, was notified of his nomination by the Republicans in Topeka last night. It was a red, blue and yellow field flower print on a green background. Her mother chose the gown she is wearing on the right, a redingote of chiffon with a salmon pink rose design. Below is a typical scene as 100,000 persons poured into the Kansas capital.

Snell Formally Notifies Gov. Landon

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—The text of the address of Representative Bertrand H. Snell, New York, formally notifying Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas of his Republican nomination for the Presidency:

Gov. Landon, we have come to you in obedience to that honored custom which provides that a candidate for the Presidency of the United States shall be formally notified of his nomination. The custom goes back beyond the days of the telegraph, the radio, the automobile, or the telephone. There are some who say that it is outmoded, that traditions have no place in the present impetuous scheme of things, that everything has changed. But we cling to the tradition because it is a reminder that there are some things in life which do not change. Some things which are fundamental and eternal.

As chairman of the committee, I have the privilege, first, of presenting the cordial greetings of the State of New York, and her sister States of the East, to the State of Kansas and her neighbors among the "typical prairie States." That privilege is doubly pleasant because for so many years I have known you as a personal friend.

"Called in Crisis."

The spontaneous expression of popular sentiment from coast to coast, which culminated in your nomination at Cleveland, offers eloquent testimony that your authority is rooted in the silent, secret hearts of the whole people.

To them alone have you pledged your faithful services, and in you they place their hope.

The crisis which calls you to be the first among us will never yield to the sounding Shibboleths of mere partisanship. You are saluted today by patriots of all parties.

Wearied and worn by three long years on the treadmill of New Dealism, a harassed and bewildered people yearn once more for the well-marked paths of constructive enterprise and solid, sane accomplishment.

Here in the Sunflower State they rediscovered the ancient virtues of administrative integrity, official honesty and full public responsibility. Here in a solvent Kansas they found a man who worked calmly amid all the noisy din of the New Deal's failures and false starts.

They found a man who had begun his career with no special advantages, but through honest industry and faithful devotion to his opportunities had achieved a solid personal success.

They found a man who kept his books and the books of his government by simple, honest, old-fashioned arithmetic.

They found a citizen of deep human sympathies and warm instincts of fellowship, who yet stood like a rock against the hallucinations of those who supposed that they could guide America to stability and prosperity by shameful political squandering of the people's substance.

In Kansas, America found a faithful, humble servant of a pioneering State; and the Nation called him forth, commandeering the powers of his mind, the noble sentiments of his heart, and the rugged integrity of his character for the services of all.

In this choice our people are guided by deeds performed and promises fulfilled.

Here and now, this Nation turns its back forever upon broken pledges and hollow oaths.

"We come to you in your own home town. We find you surrounded by your wife and children and your neighbors. You and they are a symbol of all that is most precious and most permanent. The individual citizen is the cornerstone of our Democracy. He does an honest man's work; he builds a home; he raises his children in the love of country and the fear of God. His neighbors watch him, test him, give him their confidence. Finding him faithful in small things, they promote him to greater things. Such are the processes, and such is the glory of America.

"Tired of False Hopes."

"Now the citizens of our Republic are about to exercise, in its highest form, their right of sovereignty. Once in four years they ask for an accounting of their stewardship. Those who have been chosen by the people are reminded in a great solemn referendum that they are not the masters but the servants of the people. Their records are reviewed, the pleadings are made, the people decide.

To you, sir, has come the high responsibility of representing and defending the cause of freedom, of opportunity, of a better life for 125,000,000 men and women and children. If we read their minds aright, they are tired of false hopes, of extravagance and waste. They seek a leadership they can trust and national policies on which they can build solidly their homes and their hopes. By unanimous vote and spirited acclamation the Republican Party has chosen you. You are to be our standard bearer and our advocate.

As you set forth upon your high endeavor, carry in your heart the message of this hour:

America is with you.

America will sustain you.

America will see you through to victory.

Will Gov. Landon's Speech Of Acceptance Alter Votes?

The first AMERICA SPEAKS Landon-Roosevelt poll, taken among a cross-section of the country's voters and reported in The Washington Post, July 12, indicated that a majority of the popular vote favored the re-election of President Roosevelt . . . but that a majority of the electoral vote would go to Gov. Landon.

Will the Topeka speech bring a further shift in Gov. Landon's favor?

AMERICA SPEAKS ballots, again going out to voters the Nation over to measure for a second time the relative strength of the two major party candidates, will reflect the effect of the above address on the electorate. The results of this poll, now bing taken, will be published Sunday, August 9, exclusively . . . in Washington . . . in The Washington Post.

New Democrat Allies in Sight, Hamilton Says

Aids Hint Newton D. Baker Is Among the Additions Landonites Expect.

By the United Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—Prominent Democrats "who will be quite a surprise" are ready to bolt to the standard of Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican leaders said tonight as the G. O. P. Presidential candidate made his bow to the Nation at notification ceremonies on the steps of the Kansas capitol.

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, and Bertrand Snell, chairman of the notification committee, stepped off the "Landon Special" at the railroad station today, bringing glowing reports of the campaign in the East.

"Victory is in sight," Hamilton said briskly. "Our trip through New England was a knockout. There will be men coming out here who will be quite a surprise and whose names have not been yet mentioned in that connection."

He was asked whether he was talking about Alfred E. Smith and Newton D. Baker, but he refused to answer. Some of Hamilton's associates said, however, they believed Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson Cabinet, would come to Topeka and offer to help Landon.

"New York State is no longer doubtful," Hamilton said, claiming victory in President Roosevelt's back yard. "And the Wisconsin outlook is hopeful."

Some time between now and September, Hamilton said, he will confer with Herbert C. Hoover concerning definite campaign activities of the former President. Mr. Hoover is not attending the notification ceremonies.

Snell bubbled optimism.

"If things are as good back here as they are in the East," he said, "there is no doubt it will be a big Republican victory."

tol lawn they had rolled in seemingly never-ending numbers for the climax of it all—to hear their candidate's speech.

At 8 p. m. Landon, preceded by four trumpeters, came down the Capitol steps to the pine platform. Mrs. Landon, smiling and dressed in salmon pink, was on his arm.

Then came the roar of the crowd. Kansans and the distinguished visitors from East and West rose out of their seats. The air was yellow with sunflowers and from far back in the great mass of humanity came again that "yipee" yell of cowboys.

There were preliminary ceremonies to be gone through; but then Landon got out of his chair, smiled and waved at the crowd. They responded as though they were tied to strings, coming out of their chairs with a roar for this man who knows so many of them by their first names.

Up went Landon's right arm in salute. Then he turned and bowed to the distinguished guests seated behind him on the platform.

"Whee, whee," came the shrill whistle of the cowboys.

"Boom, boom, boom," went a big drum under the speakers' stand. Still the crowd roared, for two, three, four, five minutes, and not even Landon himself could quiet them. He placed both hands on the speakers' stand and somewhere back in the great mass of humanity a band played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

The lights beat hard and hot against Landon, who already had been through a tiring day. He smiled through it all.

"We want Landon, we want Landon," came the rolling cry from the crowd. The band picked it up.

Still the roar rose and bounded against the pillars of the Statehouse. Not until they had cheered for many minutes was the crowd willing to let him proceed. He got out only a few words—"I accept the nomination"—when a new roar broke in on him.

And so it went throughout the speech. Kansas' enthusiasm was not to be easily stilled. And after the speech was over, after all the ceremonies had ended, the throngs still refused to quit. They thronged the streets, glorying in their triumph.

A Kansan, one of their own, was in the race for President and Kansas had done its best to speed him on his way.

G.O.P. Club Hears Speech by Landon

Members of the National Capital Republican Club met last night at their headquarters, Sixteenth street and Scott Circle, to hear the acceptance speech of Gov. Alfred M. Landon in Topeka, Kans.

The cheers of the vast throng that gathered at Topeka for the occasion were echoed here by the 50 Republicans who assembled.

Same as the crowd at Topeka, those gathered at the club applauded longest and loudest these two statements Landon made:

"Shall we continue to delegate more and more power to the Chief Executive?"

boys on ponies and preceded miniature railroad trains, circus elephants symbolizing the G. O. P., 115 bands and thousands of loyal Republican stalwarts.

Throughout the day large crowds poured into this small city, greatly straining its resources and hospitality. Hours before the acceptance ceremonies started, the lawn on the park adjoining the statehouse commenced to fill with spectators who came to hear not only the Kansas Governor but also to see an unusual aerial fireworks exhibition which followed the speech. One huge burst of pyrotechnics painted across the sky in sparkling lights the facial outlines of Gov. Landon and Col. Frank Knox, his running mate.

The ceremonies opened with mass singing of "America," which was at its height as the program was placed on Nation-wide radio networks that carried the Landon speech into every hamlet in the Nation.

Loses Nervousness.

As Gov. Landon, accompanied by his youthful wife, his 80-year-old father and his 17-year-old daughter Peggy Ann, came down the steps of the statehouse to the speakers' platform, which stretched out from it, a mighty shout went up from the crowd. In a white linen suit and wearing a bright blue tie, the Republican nominee waved to the crowd, appearing somewhat nervous. But he lost this nervousness as soon as he started speaking.

The Governor delivered his address in a quiet, unemotional voice. There were no oratorical flourishes to his delivery. He seldom emphasized what he was saying. And he seemed glad when he had finished. During his speech bright flares burned from the dome of the statehouse.

The invocation was pronounced by the Catholic Bishop of Leavenworth, Kans., the Most Rev. Francis Johannes. Republican Chairman John Hamilton quickly presented House Republican Leader Bertrand H. Snell, chairman of the notification committee.

Snell received his first loud cheer when he asserted that as a New Yorker he presented the greetings of the East to Kansas "and her neighbors among the 'typical prairie States.'"

Turns to Landon.

Turning to Gov. Landon, he asserted that the expression of popular sentiment which brought about his nomination indicated that "your authority is rooted in the silent, secret hearts of the whole people."

"The crisis which calls you to be first among us will never yield to the sounding shibboleths of mere partisanship," he asserted. "You are saluted today by patriots of all parties."

He described the Kansas Governor as a man possessing "the ancient virtues of administrative integrity, official honesty and full public responsibility," a man "who kept his books and the books of his government by simple, honest, old-fashioned arithmetic."

Declaring that "here and now this Nation turns its back forever upon broken pledges and hollow oaths," Snell declared that the Kansan was by acclamation the standard bearer of his party.

On the conclusion of Snell's speech announcing to the Governor his nomination for the Presidency and the emergence of Gov. Landon to the speaker's rostrum, a mighty shout went up which resounded through the statehouse park and could be heard many blocks away.

Accepting the nomination of his party, Landon declared the conferring of such an honor on him, who remains an "everyday American," constituted proof of the freedom of opportunity which is America. He said he accepted the responsibility which accompanied the honor and hoped for the gift of "simple and straightforward speech."

First, he recited the oath of the Presidential office and declared his purpose to live up to it as he fully understood its meaning—meanwhile inferentially implying President Roosevelt had not always been so faithful.

He declared the 1936 Republican platform had his "compete adherence," setting out, as he said, "the principles by which we can achieve the full national life that our resources entitle us to enjoy."

Before launching into the first part of his address in which he outlined in a general manner the fundamentals of his political philosophy, Gov. Landon pointed out there was not time "to lay our whole program before you tonight," but he promised to deal with all phases in detail during the campaign.

Assails Class Appeal.

He began the enunciation of his philosophy by assailing appeals to class prejudice and feeling. The time had come, he asserted, "to pull together." He held no nation could progress with many of its people in idleness and he dedicated his efforts to providing for the people of this country employment, homes, "a chance for their children, reasonable security, the right to live according to American standards" and a "share in a steady progress."

Too frequently in the effort to conquer the current depression, he declared, has "recovery been hindered, if not defeated, by political considerations." He cited the trial of one theory after another and dwelt for a moment on the almost unanimous support which the New Deal received in the beginning when it was projecting measures regarded by many as "temporary."

But the time has arrived to examine the record as it stands, the Republican nominee asserted, and added: "The record shows these measures did not fit together into any definite program of recovery." Many of them, he said, "worked at cross-uprposes and defeated themselves—some developed into definite hindrances to recovery."

They had the effect generally of "extending control by Washington into the remotest corners of the country" while the frequent and sudden changes of administration policy "caused continual uneasiness." As a result, Gov. Landon charged, "recovery has been set back again and again."

But this was not the full measure of the New Deal's failure, he added. He asserted "practical progressives have suffered the disheartening experience of seeing many liberal objectives discredited during the past three years by careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration."

"The Nation," Gov. Landon declared, "has not made the durable progress, either in reform or recovery, that we had the right to expect."

The welfare of the American pople, he pointed out, "is not recorded on the financial pages" or measured in stock market prices—a direct slap at arguments of New Dealers that their work should be judged by the improved condition of the financial markets.

The real test, asserted the Kansan, is to be found in the "ability of the average American to engage in business, to obtain a job, to be self-supporting and a self-respecting member of his community." Judged by that standard, he added, "the New Deal has fallen far short of success" and the proof of that, he asserted, "is in the record." Three years ago the primary need was jobs for the unemployed. That remains the primary need today, he said.

"The time has come to stop this fumbling with recovery," Gov. Landon declared, amid shouting. "American initiative is not a commodity to be delivered in pound packages through a governmental bureau. It is a vital force in the life of our Nation and it must be freed."

worth removed the book from the desk of Lieut. Comdr. Leslie G. Gehres on August 1, 1934.

Farnsworth, who has been held at the District Jail since his arrest July 13, did not appear in court.

The case against him was presented to the court yesterday morning by Assistant United States Attorney Samuel F. Beach, who was recalled from his vacation on Cape Cod Wewnesday to take charge of the grand jury hearing.

Beach spent less than two hours reviewing the charges with the jury, and brought before the 23 jurors six witnesses.

Lieut. Comdr. Gehres testified. He was to have given the jury information on the removal of the Navy pamphlet from his desk. Lieut. Comdr. Edward A. Mitchell also took the stand to give, it was reported, testimony that the pamphlet in question is confidential.

Other witnesses who testfiied include Fulton Lewis, jr., news correspondent; A. R. Rosen, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent; Capt. Ernest Gregory Small, of the U. S. Navy, and Mrs. Grace Jamieson, employe of the Joseph Abel photostat concern, to which Farnsworth is reported to have brought papers to be copied.

Capt. Small and Rosen reported on their investigations in the case, which have been going on for more than a year.

Mrs. Landon's Dress Changes Fast and Many

But She Finds the Time to Phone Ranch, Ask After Children.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—Notification day was just one dress after another for Mrs. Alf M. Landon.

But she found time today for telephone chats with friends and one call to the Colorado ranch, where last Monday she left the Landons' two small children, Nancy Jo, 3, and Jack, 2.

"I just had to call the ranch and know they were all right," she said.

In the morning of the day that culminated in her husband's acceptance of the Republican Presidential nomination Mrs. Landon wore a cool sports dress. She spent the hours quietly at the old-fashioned executive mansion.

But there was a change before she joined her husband for a trip to a hotel roof garden luncheon given for the notification and the national committees.

Wore Brown at Luncheon.

On this occasion—the first time the slight 37-year-old wife of the nominee had been seen by many of the prominent Republican women here for the notification—she wore a brown chiffon afternoon dress with a tiny rosebud print. Her hat and other accessories were white.

Mrs. Landon was introduced to the 200 luncheon guests, who were visibly feeling the strong Kansas sun, by Senator Arthur Capper. Rising, she laughingly said:

"Well, anyway, you can't say Kansas didn't give you a warm welcome."

The Governor and his wife left before the dessert course. Mrs. Landon went home and doffed her dress for a short rest before redressing in the same brown chiffon and hurrying with her mother, Mrs. S. E. Cobb, and Peggy Anne Landon, 19, for a large tea and reception given at the Topeka Woman's Club for out-of-town women.

In Line With Mrs. Gann.

For about a half hour Mrs. Landon stood in the receiving line with Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann and others.

Mrs. Landon left early with her mother, who was wearing a blue lace afternoon dress with a wide brimmed pink hat trimmed in blue.

But Peggy Anne, who also had on a blue lace afternoon dress, stayed shaking hands until a downtown parade began.

A quiet family dinner with covers placed for the Governor, Mrs. Landon, John M. Landon, the Governor's father, and Peggy Anne, called for another change of dress for Mrs. Landon.

Then finally there was a last change into the new dress she bought especially for the notification ceremony.

This "notification dress," as she calls it, was a rose salmon print chiffon over white crepe.

Landon to Win In Maryland, Nice Tells Him

Tait Meets Free Staters in Topeka, Presents Them to Nominee.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Topeka, Kans., July 23.—Headed by Gov. Harry W. Nice, a large group of Maryland Republicans attended the ceremonies in which Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight accepted the Republican nomination for the Presidency.

They arrived here this morning aboard a special train from the East and departed for Maryland soon after the notification ceremonies. Gov. Nice told Gov. Landon that without doubt Maryland would be in his column next fall.

The Marylanders were met at the railroad station by a reception committee which included their former State chairman, Galen L. Tait, who arrived here yesterday. He was named one of the reception committee for the Marylanders along with Senator Arthur Capper, former Gov. Henry J. Allen and Edward F. Colladay, Republican National committeeman from the District of Columbia.

The Marylanders were presented to Gov. Landon soon after their arrival by Tait and Gov. Nice.

These two Republican leaders have not been on friendly terms, Nice having ousted Tait as State chairman when he was nominated in 1934. Their meeting today, however, was entirely pleasant.

Among the Marylanders here were William P. Lawson, Maryland Republican State chairman; Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, former national committeewoman; Marion A. Humphreys; State Senator Stroughn Lloyd; John McCool; State Senator Harry Legore, now running for Congress in the western Maryland district; Willis J. Stockdale, H. Lay Duer, George J. Eirman, Elmer Hammond, Charles Ruczika and Director of the State Budget William H. Blakeman.

Colladay was a member of the notification committee. He is one of the Landon political scouts in the East and during the pre-convention campaign he was in charge of the Landon interests in the States south of the Mason and Dixon line.

He predicted today Landon not only would carry Maryland, but also Florida. He added the Republican nominee had "a fighting chance in Virginia and North Carolina."

Colladay was accompanied here by Joseph C. Wilkes, chairman for the District of Columbia.

Among the Virginians here were former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and C. Bascom Slemp, former White House secretary.

Gillette Nominated For Murphy's Seat

Des Moines, Iowa, July 23 (AP).—The Iowa Democratic convention late today nominated Representative Guy M. Gillette, of Cherokee, as its candidate to run for the unexpired term of the late Senator Louis Murphy. The nomination was by acclamation.

Gillette was elected to Congress for the first time in 1932 and was re-elected in 1934. He was born in 1879 and has been a lawyer since 1900. He served in both the Spanish-American and the World Wars.

The convention incorporated in the platform on which Iowa Democrats will go before the voters next November a recommendation for continuance of the $18,000,000 producing three-point tax law.

It proposed specifically that the mortgage moratorium acts be extended and the farm debt advisory council be continued.

Indorsement of the national and State administration policies and actions was contained in the resolutions.

Rep. Main Waives Townsend Support

Battle Creek, Mich., July 23 (AP).—Representative Verner W. Main (Republican), Michigan, elected to Congress last December with the support of the Townsend old-age pension clubs, announced today that he is "waiving" Townsend indorsement in the forthcoming Third District primary.

Commenting on the recent ruling of the Townsend organization that any candidate indorsed by Townsend clubs must be 100 per cent for the revolving old-age pension plan, Representative Main said:

"I accepted the Townsend indorsement when it left me free to represent all of the people in the Third District. I cannot accept it when it is at the cost of my own self-respect and the principles of representative democracy."

Threat of War In Air Decried By Lindbergh

Aviator Explodes Verbal Bomb in Address to Nazi Officials.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, July 23.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh exploded a verbal bomb tonight before Nazi aviation officials in a speech decrying Europe's growing threats of war from the air.

It is the aviator's responsibility to make sure "that we don't destroy the very things we wish to protect," said the colonel, for air progress "has abolished defense" and made a new conception of security necessary.

"Unlike the builders of the first dugout canoe, aviators have lived to see their harmless wings of fabric turned into carriers of destruction—even more dangerous than the guns of a battleship," he continued in the speech before an air club.

"We have lived to carry on our shoulders the responsibility for the results of our experiments, which in other fields have been passed on to future generations."

Defensive War Abolished.

Aviation, he added, has created the most fundamental change ever made in war.

"It has abolished what we call defensive warfare," he said. "We no longer can protect our families with an army."

A new type of security must be found, he declared, which must be "dynamic and not static," and which "rests in intelligence and not force."

He continued:

"In the fact that intelligence must be combined with aviation I found some cause for hope. It requires more intellect to operate an airplane than to dig trenches and shoot a rifle. The education which is required in aviation must also teach the value of civilized institutions.

"I find some cause for hope in the belief that the power which must be found to knowledge is less dangerous to civilization than that which is barbaric. It is the responsibility of aviation to further the combination of strength and intelligence."

Flies Giant Airplane.

After his speech, the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were guests at a tea and reception at Templehof air field arranged by the Lufthansa, the German airline company.

The Lindberghs and the party at the tea were ushered into Germany's largest commercial machine—the Jonkers 42-passenger Hindenburg.

Capt. Otto Bauer, veteran German airman, took the party, which included representatives of American news agencies, into the air.

Bauer soon relinquished control to Lindbergh, who seemed perfectly at home in the giant machine as he steered it toward Potsdam and Batelsberg and then over the Olympic Stadium in Berlin.

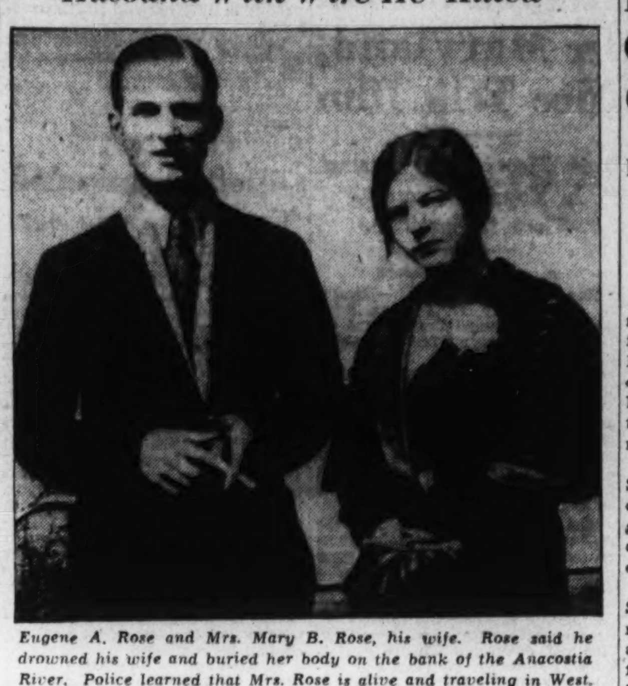
Husband With Wife He 'Killed'



Eugene A. Rose and Mrs. Mary B. Rose, his wife. Rose said he drowned his wife and buried her body on the bank of the Anacostia River. Police learned that Mrs. Rose is alive and traveling in West.

Woman 'Slain' by Her Husband Found Traveling in Mid-West

Twenty-five-year-old Mary Berry Rose, who her husband claimed he had drowned in the Anacostia River, is traveling in the Middle West, the Washington police learned yesterday from a talk with her sister, Mrs. Mabel Leahy, 1833 M street northwest.

Eugene Albert Rose, 29, the husband, was in Gallinger Hospital last night, allegedly suffering from the effects of drugs. No charge had been placed against him and the police said he probably would be released as soon as the hospital dismissed him.

Rose made his bizarre "confession" Wednesday night when he was picked up in Danville, Va., as a suspicious character. He reportedly was under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and told the Danville police he had drowned his wife, with the help of a man known as "Dutch," in the Anacostia River near Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and buried her on the river bank.

Detective Sergt. Clyde N. Strange was sent to Danville early yesterday by Detective Inspector Bernard W. Thompson to return the prisoner to Washington. When Strange reached Danville he found Rose had denied knowing anything concerning the whereabouts of his wife, whom he had reported missing on September 22, 1935, and had repudiated the entire confession.

Rose was in such a nervous condition that he was taken immediately to Gallinger.

An investigation by Detective Sergt. J. F. Flaherty disclosed that Rose's wife mailed a card from Hutchins, Kans., last week, to her sister, saying she no longer wished to live with her husband and that she "was traveling." The police learned she has been reported missing several times in the past few years.

At Rose's home in the 200 block Twelfth place northeast, no reason could be given for his trip to Danville, unless it was to try to find his wife. Members of his family said he might have gone to Harrisonburg, Va., her former home, to look for her, and then on to Danville.

The couple was married about six years ago. Both had been employed at the National Laundry, but, prior to Mrs. Rose's disappearance ten months ago they were on relief rolls for a time, Rose's mother said.

Indian Bureau Communistic, Says Cherokee

By the Associated Press.

Salt Lake City, July 23.—The Government's Indian Bureau was accused by an Oklahoma Cherokee tonight of "blatant communism."

Charges that the bureau, through the Wheeler-Howard act, seeks to sovietize all Indians echoed through the convention as the American Indian Federation, claiming to represent most of the Nation's 340,000 Redmen, opened its third annual meeting.

At Washington, John Collier, commissioner of the bureau, dubbed the criticism "hot air."

The act, approved by nearly 50 of the Nation's 200 tribes, provides for revival on reservations of Indian languages, music, arts and crafts, establishment of self-government units and relinquishment of land and other property into common ownership.

"Want Full Rights."

O. K. Chandler, Oklahoma Cherokee, national chairman of the federation Americanism committee, said:

"We, the first Americans, the stanchest patriots, are the first to come under a communistic influence extending over the Nation. The Wheeler-Howard act takes our lands and makes us more helplessly Government wards. We want full citizenship rights."

Joseph Bruner, national president, of Oklahoma Creek, declared many tribes which accepted the Wheeler-Howard provisions regretted it.

To Ignore Warning.

By the Associated Press.

Informed of an assertion that it would be unsafe for him to visit the Navajo Reservation, John Collier, commissioner of the Indian Bureau, yesterday said he planned to visit that reservation "within the next two weeks or less."

Collier added that criticism of the Indian Bureau by chieftains at the American Indian Federation convention was "merely hot air."

Replying to the assertion of Floyd O. Burnett, chaplain, that it would be unsafe for him among the Navajos, the commissioner said he went to that reservation more often than to any other.

"I was there in April and it is not conceivable that any injury would be done on any reservation to a Government official. The Indians are not the sort of people to do violence and it would be just as sensible to say it would be unsafe for a Government official to visit New York City."

Italy, Germany Will Be Invited To New Parley

By the Associated Press.

London, July 23.—Great Britain, France and Belgium made what diplomats considered a successful start tonight toward re-creating European security within the framework of the old Locarno pact.

The three powers agreed to invite Germany and Italy, also signatories to the original five-power Locarno treaty, to a general session "as soon as such a meeting can be held conveniently."

Invitations will be forwarded immediately through the Ambassadors of the three nations to Berlin and Rome.

The talks, which began and ended in a dismal winter-like drizzle, were characterized by complete cordiality throughout the two sessions which lasted only five hours.

A conference communique declared the three powers were "mindful of the arrangement of March 19" (when Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy sought to determine what further action would be taken to preserve European peace upon Germany's violation of the pact).

The fact the communique made no mention of the date of the prospective five-power meeting was taken as indicating Germany will be invited on an equal basis with the others and have an equal voice in fixing the time.

Day's Catch, if Any, Not Reported; Spends Night at Yarmouth.

By the Associated Press.

Aboard Schooner Liberty, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, July 23.—President Roosevelt entered Yarmouth Harbor, N. S., early tonight after a day of tuna fishing from a motor launch in southwestern Nova Scotian waters. The catch if any, was not disclosed.

Dozens of motorboats with Nova Scotians and tourists aboard came out shortly before dark to get a glimpse of the vacationing American Chief Executive and his party of deep-sea anglers.

The President left the schooner Sewanna this morning to board the motor launch Judge the Second for a fishing expedition with his old friend, former Judge Charles J. McDermott, of Brooklyn; Franklin and John Roosevelt, his sons; Hall Roosevelt, his brother-in-law and William Gray, a Nova Scotian fishing guide.

Spent Day Fishing.

With heavy rod and reel, the group spent most of the day off Soldiers Rip.

The rest of the Presidential party scattered during the day. The Sewanna ran the 20 miles to Yarmouth from Wedgeport Harbor with James Roosevelt, eldest son, taking turns at the helm with Skipper Elden Colbeth and Capt. S. A. Brandall, of the United States Lines, a Presidential guest.

The destroyer Hopkins, taking the Bay of Fundy route all the way, went ahead to meet a Navy seaplane with Government mail from Bar Harbor, Me.

The press schooner Liberty, followed by the Sewanna, led the way over a tortuous inland route out of Tusket River, past Murder Island Shoal, and out to the bay through Schooner Passage. At times the passage between rock-bound islands was only a hundred yards. Lighthouses kept their warning whistles busy until the safe bay waters were reached.

Made Trip in Launch.

The President made virtually the entire trip to Yarmouth in the fishing launch. Yarmouth was dressing up for its 175th anniversary celebration next Sunday, when the Presidential flotilla anchored.

Mr. Roosevelt's associates said he would spend another day sailing up the west coast of Nova Scotia before striking out across the bay for Campobello Isle, New Brunswick.

The President was said to have listened in tonight on the speech of acceptance by Gov. Alf M. Landon, his Republican Presidential opponent. There was no comment.

Neither would the Chief Executive have anything to say about the Vatican City report that a high American prelate had said Father Charles E. Coughlin's criticism of the President had caused a "painful impression" at the Vatican.

Alibi Girl Freed In Co-ed Death; Three Still Held

Sheriff Reiterates His Promise to Arrest Killer by Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

Asheville, N. C., July 23.—Sheriff Laurence E. Brown released another witness in the Helen Clevenger murder investigation today and announced he did not suspect any of the three persons still detained of the actual crime.

The sheriff reiterated his prediction, made at 7 p. m. last night, that he would arrest the ravisher-murderer of the 18-year-old New York University co-ed "within 48 hours."

"I'll question him (the suspect) for about three minutes," the sheriff said, "and then I will be able to tell whether I'll file a murder charge."

The sheriff announced he had released Mildred Ward, 19-year-old tuberculosis patient held since Sunday, "when she finally made a statement that I believe."

Asked if she had changed her original statement that Wollner, concert violinist, had been at her mother's home throughout the night of the New York University co-ed's tragic death in her Battery Park Hotel room, Brown replied:

"I didn't say."

At her home later, the girl said she had not changed her story.

Brown continued to hold Wollner, Daniel H. Gaddy, 28-year-old hotel night watchman, and L. D. Roddey, colored elevator operator, although no charges have been preferred.

Prof. W. L. Clevenger, of the North Carolina State College at Raleigh, was expected to return tomorrow to aid in the investigation. Clevenger, uncle of the slain girl, was the one who found her body a week ago today.

Deputy sheriffs and city policemen continued questioning various persons at the hotel, obtaining about 15 statements. Yesterday 58 statements were taken down.

Composed and wearing a gingham sunsuit, Miss Ward, a tall, slim brunette, said at her home this afternoon she was confident Wollner would be released soon.

"I didn't mind staying in the jail," she said. "I was so anxious to help Mark because I knew he was innocent."

Miss Ward was detained after Brown announced he had statements from several witnesses contradicting Wollner's alibi that he was at the Ward home from about 9 p. m. Wednesday night to 8 a. m. Thursday.

The greatest shock the "alibi girl" suffered during her incarceration, she said, was learning that Wollner was married.

"Of course, it was a shock when I found that Mark was married and had a child," she said. "He had never told me that."

Club Gardens Books Divers For Sunday Bill

Women's A. A. U. Contests to Be Staged There in Afternoon.

By Chanticleer.

They just will not be night clubs. For example, Maryland Club Gardens. It started out to be just another suburban restaurant. Then they built the horseshoe bar; then the crystal bar and the Wintergarden; then the swimming pool. Finally came a table for billiard Russe—and now it's a combination restaurant, cabaret, amusement center, theater, swimmery and picnic ground.

Just to bring us up to date on the activities at the Gardens, announcement is hereby made that the National Women's Diving Championships, under auspices of the A. A. U., will be held there Sunday afternoon, followed by an exhibition of the best diving form in Eastern States, for the benefit of dinner guests.

Black Legion Suspect Taken To Murder Bog

Police Ponder Draining Marsh, but Deny Dean Told of More Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 23.—Officers who today took Dayton Dean, confessed Black Legion "executioner," to a marsh near Pinckney, Mich., said upon their return tonight they had considered the possibility of draining a pond there, but denied Dean had told them seven bodies would be found.

Detective Sergt. Jack Harvill said Dean was taken to the marsh to help prepare the State's case against five accused black legionnaires charged with killing Silas Coleman, colored, 42-year-old carrier, in the swamp for a thrill.

Story Corroborated.

It was Dean who first told of the Coleman slaying, which occurred in May, 1935. Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said one of the five men Dean accused corroborated Dean's account.

Harvill said he did not know whether the pond, on land owned by Henry Ford, would be drained. He also said he did not know the origin of reports current at Pinckney this afternoon that Dean had told of seven more Black Legion deaths.

Coleman's body, pierced by numerous bullets, was found propped against a pole in the lonely marsh in May a year ago. The killing was listed as unsolved on Livingston County records.

Taken to Murder Scene.

Dean, who has pleaded guilty to the roadside "execution" May 12 of Charles A. Poole, was taken to the scene of Coleman's death—an abandoned mill pond surrounded by marshy land—as members of the prosecutor's staff assembled evidence to present against the five men charged with slaying Coleman "just to see how it feels to kill a Negro."

The examination, set for Tuesday, will determine whether the five will be held for trial. Those accused are Harvey Davis, Black Legion "colonel;" Ervin D. Lee, Charles Rouse, John Bannerman and James Roy Lorance. Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said Lorance admitted having been present when Coleman was lured to the pond and shot down, but denied having fired his own pistol.

Mrs. Grace Bannerman, wife of one of the five, told McCrea today she recalled that a drinking party was held at the cottage in which she and her husband were spending a week-end at the lake late in May, 1935. She said Lee, Davis and Lorance, with their wives and children were present. She said she knew nothing of the killing, having gone to bed about 10 o'clock while the men sat up drinking.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

Many hundreds of Government employes—those in AAA—have been upset and uncertain for months about their jobs and the future of their work. Rumors have been current and all sorts of stories have been circulated through the various offices that have meant half-hearted work and low morale.

Some have said dismissals would occur wholesale some time this month or early in August; that all kinds of talk is going on and the sum total of all the whisperings and so-called authoritative statements has been to make everyone feel they were aboard a ship that would plunge suddenly into oblivion without giving time enough to scramble to a life raft.

We don't like rumor stories, so we decided to track down a few of them and get some official word on just what the AAA employe situation is.

Here's what T. Weed Harvey, business manager for the AAA, has to say on the subject, applying to the comptroller's office of AAA.

Reductions will be made. They will begin around October 1. The present staff of about 2,200 will be reduced about 75 per cent. Two weeks' dismissal notices will be given and all accrued leave will be assured. About 1,200 separations have taken place since January 1. All reductions will be made on the basis of efficiency. Anyone qualified will be transferred from the Old Postoffice building to other sections where there are vacancies.

Harvey said: "We had no control over the necessity of cutting down our work, but we are trying to do it as humanely as possible. Everyone has rent to pay these days and must buy food and clothes. We know that and are sympathetic with the need of the people who are employed in AAA.

"We will give everyone a quare deal and try to make no mistakes.

"We had expected that much of our work relating to the wheat contracts with the farmers would be completed in August. The drought has delayed us and this work will not now be finished until September or around the first of October. Then the reductions will have to begin.

"All reductions will be made on the basis of efficiency. The fact that there are many employes from one State and only a few from another will have no bearing on the situation, nor will the fact that some of the people have civil service ratings have any effect. Those people took non-civil service jobs in good faith and we could not fairly give them preference now."

Harvey explained that certain winter wheat contracts were made with the farmers before the AAA was declared unconstitutional and as Congress made provision for these contracts, they would be completed before the work is terminated.

"For a long time in the future, it will be necessary to keep a small staff for the work that cannot be wound up," he said, "and that staff will be composed of our best people."

About 45 people in the Controller's office now drawing $2,600 a year salaries were yesterday told their pay would be reduced.

"Because some of the work already is finished, we find we have too many supervisers and others in that salary bracket," Harvey said, "and they were yesterday given a reduction in pay, if they cared to remain.

"We are trying to transfer some of our people to the State offices, but that will absorb only a few."

As to absorption by other Government agencies, Harvey was rather doubtful about how many could be taken care of in this manner. The administrative force of the Resettlement Administration in Washington is being reduced about 25 per cent, he said, and Soil Conservation is closed except to those on civil service. The other temporary agencies have their payrolls full, except in Social Security, he said, where many of those vacancies are being filled from the civil service registers and the regular Government departments are of course, limited by the same regulations.

And speaking of civil service the Commission issued a statement on the executive order of the President on the appointment of first, second and third class postmasters and declared it is "distinctly in the interests of the merit system."

"The order goes far beyond any previous one in applying the principles of the merit system to these appointments," the statement read.

And here's another civil service story! There are two jobs for stenographers in the United States Bureau of Fisheries which now are being filled with temporary appointees. That is because the civil service register for stenographers is exhausted except for a few who made very low passing grades and rather than take one of these, the chief clerk, Miss Flossie White, said she made temporary appointments and would wait for the results of the examinations, which were concluded the other day "and get the cream of the new crop."

The call to the first convention of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes went out yesterday from the offices of the American Federation of Government Employes. The State, county and municipal lodge delegates will meet in Detroit at the same time as the A. F. G. E. in September. The A. F. S. C. & M. E. is affiliated with the A. F. G. E. and its basis of representation in the convention is the average per capita tax paid to the Federation from the date of affiliation to August 31.

In the call, Mrs. Bernice B. Heffner, acting president and secretary of the A. F. G. E., urged the delegates from every lodge to "study the needs of its service so that a legislative program can be adopted to benefit every branch of the service."

All those good citizens of Alabama who are employed here in the District will be glad to hear the famous Deep Sea Rodeo is to be held at Dauphin Island, Ala., on August 17, 18 and 19. Sportsmen from all over the country come to compete in this affair that is well known to Alabama, and there are a number in the various Government offices who are going to take their vacations at that time, so they can cast a line in the big fishing contest. There are all kinds of prizes and many regulations, but the main ones seem to be to wear your oldest clothes and bring along a bathing suit.

Farmer's Wife Defends Rise In Milk Price

Tells Session Laborers Get More for Work Than Dairymen.

The wife of a Frederick County dairy farmer stood before the AAA's hearing on increasing the price of milk in the District yesterday and told a tale about a ditch digger which she said should affect the price the farmer is paid for his milk.

Mrs. R. R. Lewis told the hearing, now in its fourth day, that a gallon of milk represented 31 cents in actual labor expended by a farm family.

"This morning as I was driving to Washington," she said, "I watched some men digging a ditch."

"Do you know how much they are paid?" she asked the board.

"Well, I'll tell you. They're paid 70 cents an hour. And believe me, if the average farmer in this section were paid that much for his labor he'd be worth at least $100,000."

She told the hearing that dairy farmers greet the dawn from the pastures and dusk from the barn.

"We work 14 and 15 hours a day," she said.

"We don't even get paid for our labor. According to the wage rate that even a common ditch digger is paid, we'd get 31 cents a gallon for labor alone."

Wins Applause.

Representatives of the faction which has appealed to the AAA for Federal control of milk production, for an increase in the price of milk from $3.08 to $3.55 per hundredweight, applauded her roundly.

The session yesterday was consumed largely by a discussion of minimum prices. W. N. Waterstreet, expert for the Federal Trade Commission, was called in to testify on his findings in a study of the dairy situation in other large cities of the United States.

J. S. Hite, Leesburg (Va.) farmer, testified that it cost him 31 cents a a gallon to produce his milk right now. He admitted, of course, that this was partially due to drought conditions and scarcity of food for his cows.

He read these figures:

"It cost me 31 cents to produce a gallon of milk now.

"It cost me 27.8 cents to produce a gallon of milk last year.

"It cost me 2.225 cents more now to haul my milk from my farm to Washington."

Today, the hearing will be devoted to reports of milk handlers and to a method of determination of uniform prices to producers.

Request for the increase in prices was made to the AAA by B. B. Derrick, treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association. The increase will mean raising of consumers' milk prices in the District from 13 to 14 cents a quart, it is believed.

A ruling on whether milk production will come under Federal control, whether prices will be increased and shipping rates lowered, is expected to come from the AAA before the end of the week.

Milk Agreement Barred.

Boston, July 23 (AP).—Federal Judge Elisha H. Brewster threw out of court today another Agricultural Adjustment Administration milk marketing agreement, declaring it was "a matter beyond the powers delegated to the Federal Government."

He refused to grant an injunction asked by the AAA against 28 Greater Boston milk dealers accused of violating a Boston milk-marketing agreement.

From Samuel W. Tator, Federal milk administrator for the Boston area, came the assertion tonight that the adverse decision was so "sweeping" that "of course the Government cannot ignore it."

Judge Brewster ruled the AAA lacked power to regulate agricultural products within a State.

After telephoning Edward Gaumnitz, chief of the dairy section of the AAA, at Washington, Tator said the Government "would undoubtedly appeal" the decision to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

On the Air Today

The National Broadcasting Co. is going after some of that money theater patrons have been paying to see Maj. Bowes' so-called amateurs. The first N. B. C. road show, under the auspices of the Net's Artists Service, opens this week at the Stanley in Pittsburgh, with Jimmy Wallington as master of ceremonies and a cast including the Pickens Sisters, Honeyboy and Sassafras and Bobby Gilbert, whose "talking violin" has been featured in the Vallee "Varieties" show.

Unfortunately, the tour can run only ten weeks or so. September finds studio work closing in on virtually all artists and broadcasting is too demanding on artists' time to permit topflight talent making road tours.

Following the first week in Pittsburgh, the show picks up Dickie Moore, juvenile; Ward and Muzzy, two-piano team, and Don Johnson, heard on the air as "Prof. Figgsbottle."

It was in 1934 that N. B. C. sent a theater unit on the road and in many cities broke house records. I suppose, however, that radio stars always will be confronted with obstacles blocking the way to parallel engagements on the air and in a theater. It is not so difficult for an act such as Rudy Vallee or Ben Bernie, with once-a-week broadcasts, or even an act such as Honeyboy and Sassafras, with daily broadcasts about noon time.

But to bring together the elements for a revue is another matter. Just setting a stage show scheduled four or five time a day that does not conflict with broadcasting schedules in the course of a week's stand would be enough to produce a headache.

Gordon Hittenmark's golf-driving finals will be aired from WRC at 9:30 tonight. The contestants will work off the preliminary shots earlier in the evening at the East Potomac golf course, in case you want to be on hand to see that Wilbur tells the truth the next day at the office.

Random observations: For listening diversion I can enthusiastically recommend the summer fare of London's short wave stations. The new broadcast at 11 p. m., or so is remarkably up to the minute, based on items given from the American news grist . . . And as an entertainer, the gentleman the other night who imitated a small girl in a father-and-daughter dialog cannot be improved on. Wonder why more English entertainers are not heard on the American stage and airways? . . . The Warings shows definitely have lost some of their punch with me since the show went into a half-hour period . . . Ken Murray and Oswald either are slaying their studio audiences or they're paying out plenty of money for applause stooges. They're very consistent in getting those laughs . . . Credit should be given Willie Howard, too, for his "French Lessons," always certain to give you at least two laugh wallops.

Peifer Kidnap Trial Nearing Its Close

St. Paul, July 23 (AP).—Testimony was completed today in the kidnaping conspiracy trial of John ("Jack") Peifer, St. Paul night club operator, accused as "fingerman" in the $100,000 William Hamm, jr., abduction, but final arguments were delayed until tomorrow by the illness of a juror.

Several rebuttal witnesses, including Byron Bolton, confessed kidnaper who was the principal Government witness, were called to the stand after Peifer and his wife gave last testimony for the defense.

Bolton had testified earlier that Peifer was present at a lake cottage near here with several other members of the kidnap gang shortly before the abduction. He also declared Peifer got $10,000 of the $100,000 Hamm ransom and an additional $25,000 "set aside" for Tom Brown, former police chief, for "tipping off" kidnapers to police activities.

Both Peifer and Brown, suspended as head of the police auto theft division, denied this testimony from the stand.

Four Are Killed As Trains Collide

Ogeechee, Ga., July 23 (AP).—Two Central of Georgia passenger trains collided head-on near here today, killing four trainmen and injuring seriously four others.

Fifteen of the passengers, numbering between 40 and 50, received slight injuries. The others escaped with a shaking-up.

The engine crews of both trains were crushed to death. They were Engineers R. F. Starr and Hamilton H. Hoops and Firemen Berry Johnson and Joe Wright, all of Savannah.

Central of Georgia headquarters offices in Savannah said a misunderstanding in orders apparently caused the wreck.

The collision occurred on a swampland curve. Boilers of both locomotives were ripped open by the impact and exploded with a terrific roar, hurling wreckage far into the swamp.

The engines, badly shattered, remained upright. Baggage cars of the trains left the rails, telescoping into the engine. The coaches stayed on the rails.

Culbertson on Bridge

A COLUMNIST'S JOYS.

"New York City.

"Dear Ely Culbertson: I have noticed that from time to time you use the letter of a correspondent in your bridge column. Always having had a shameful but deep seated desire to be a columnist, I sat down and dashed off the account of a hand in which I was the hero (I thought). I was the declarer in what appeared to be a contract impossible of fulfillment. Nevertheless, I went forward to battle with grim determination that was heightened by the caustic remark of an adversary as he made his opening lead.

"West, dealer.

"The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 club	Pass	1 spade
Pass	2 N. T.	Pass	4 diamonds
Pass	4 spades	Pass	5 spades
Double	Redouble	Pass	Pass
Pass

"'Somebody's crazy!' said West, as he led the ace of hearts, following with the heart king. I ruffed and then led the spade jack (guarding against a singleton ten spot in the East hand). West covered and dummy's king won, East showing his void. I then played the ace and king of diamonds to which West followed suit, but when I led the queen he went into a long huddle, which gave me time to do some thinking on my own account. The heart leads (ace and king) looked like a doubleton. Moreover, had West held three hearts he would now not hesitate to discard the worthless remaining one. When he finally played the three of clubs I considered that I had a sure count on his hand: Five spades, two diamonds (both already proved), two hearts, and four clubs, I followed West's discard by discarding a club from dummy. Next I led the jack of diamonds and, when West again discarded a club dummy threw away the club king. On my last diamond, West sticking to his club discards, dummy chucked the club ace. Now I led the club queen, West following with the jack, and then the club nine. West ruffed with the four, dummy overruffed and led a heart which I ruffed with my five spot. West had to overruff and return a trump from his 10-7 into my A-8 tenace.

"My cup of happiness was overflowing, but still I was cautious! I decided to submit the hand to your technical staff before wrapping it in tissue for delivery to you. So I dropped into your office and, to my disgust, your technical department was not enthusiastic. My unblock of dummy's ace and king of clubs, which I thought magnificent, spectacular, and the last word in something or other, was the bunk, they said vulgarly. All I had to do was cash two rounds of clubs and then play diamonds. West was bound to fall into a trump thrown-in play.

"So phooey on writing bridge articles! I'm through forever

"Very sincerely yours,
"L. B."

The Walsh-Healey Act.

Passed during the rush of the session's end, the Walsh-Healey act has not received the attention which its importance deserves, although it has doubtless created a great deal of anxiety among firms that bid for Government contracts.

Under this act the Secretary of Labor is directed to see that all employes of contractors engaged in the manufacture or supply of materials to Government agencies on contracts exceeding $10,000, shall be paid not less than the minimum wages prevailing in the locality for similar work. Moreover, no person employed by the contractor shall work over 8 hours per day or 40 hours per week. Boys under 16 years of age, girls under 18, and convict labor are likewise disbarred from employment.

The purpose of this legislation—to prevent the manufacturer who exploits his labor from obtaining an unfair advantage in bidding for Government contracts—is admirable. The Government in protecting itself against overcharging by dealing with the lowest bidder has sometimes benefited at the expense of labor. An extremely difficult administrative task has been imposed upon the Labor Department, however, in making it responsible for the determination of minimum wages on contracts and fulfillment of the other conditions imposed by the act.

Fortunately it appears that the department is proceeding very cautiously with the delicate work assigned it. Last Saturday Secretary Perkins announced that the application of the labor standards would become effective at the end of September. But minimum wages are to be fixed only after careful study, with initial investigations limited to those industries in which the wages are known to be unusually low.

In determining wage rates, making rules and regulations for carrying out other provisions of the act and deciding upon exemptions, a special administrative unit is to be established in the department. Consultants or advisers, representatives of industry and labor, will also be appointed on the basis of familiarity with conditions in the various industries affected. Assurances are also given that the "act will be administered with scrupulous attention to the necessity of open records of action, public hearings and recorded analysis of the reasons and limitations of each discretionary action."

This outline of contemplated procedure tends to allay fears that the act might be used for purposes of discrimination without materially benefiting workers on Government contracts. If the administrative machinery is built up gradually, with the co-operation of responsible outside groups and with full publicity concerning decisions, the dangers of arbitrary or ignorant action will be reduced to a minimum. And the Government may in the long run gain rather than lose by refusing to do business with concerns that cannot meet its labor standards.

Sound Advice To Veterans.

Courageous leadership is in evidence at the convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War in Milwaukee. Instead of urging veterans to multiply their demands upon Congress, M. A. Harlan, national commander, based his address on a plea for a conservative program that will not be out of keeping with the current demand for more economical government.

"You and I know," said Mr. Harlan, "that this Government of ours cannot continue it present rate of expenditures of public funds." He realistically expects that veterans will be affected by the inevitable retrenchment. Indeed, the implication of his remarks was that former soldiers should prepare for these essential economies instead of discussing new ways and means of obtaining further Government aid.

Mr. Harlan's advice followed the very careful reasoning of an address previously made by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the Veterans Administration, in which he pointed out that veterans of all wars are now drawing almost $400,000,000 annually in benefits from the Federal Treasury. If veterans fail to realize the dangers of further pressing their claims, it will not be for want of plain speaking and sound advice.

Leadership of the type displayed at Milwaukee has been too frequently lacking at veterans' conventions. While the fight for the bonus was going forward, virtually all of the emphasis was upon the interests of the veteran as a beneficiary. Now it is imperative to consider the interests of the veteran as a citizen and taxpayer. If the note sounded at the D. A. V. gathering carries over to other groups it will be an important factor in restoring the Government to a sound financial position.

The Acceptance Speech.

Gov. Landon has met the first great test of his quality as a national leader and has emerged with full success therefrom. Throughout the country millions of shrewd critics, whether friendly, impartial or hostile, have been waiting eagerly for the acceptance speech in which the Republican nominee for the Presidency would formally open his campaign. That speech, as delivered at Topeka last night, gives all three groups little or no opportunity for any but captious attack.

This imperviousness to reasonable dissent is not due to any failure on the part of the Governor to grapple with the real issues before the electorate, as was properly charged against President Roosevelt's acceptance speech at Philadelphia four weeks ago.

On the contrary, Mr. Landon confronted, with courage, candor and conviction, at least a large majority of the problems which now weigh heavily upon the minds and hearts of the American people. But he did so with an emphasis on common sense, with a complete absence of bombast or recrimination, and with a pervading sense of spiritual values, which combined to raise this speech far above the customary level of political oratory.

Gov. Landon last night demonstrated the sincerity of his recent pledge to "address the intelligence of men, never their prejudice, passion or ignorance." And at the same time he showed by this appeal to reason that profound thoughts can be portrayed best by simple, unemotional language.

The Governor of Kansas himself pointed out that the selection of an "everyday American" for the Republican nomination "is proof of that freedom of opportunity which belongs to the people under our Government." Let it be added that his avoidance of shallow rhetoric, of any trace of rabble-rousing tendency, was proof of that fidelity to the ideals of democracy implicit throughout the entire speech.

The acceptance speech, Mr. Landon maintained, could "touch only upon a few phases" of the frequently contradictory and amorphous platform adopted by the Republican Party at Cleveland. This assertion by the candidate was too modest, for as a matter of fact his survey considered most of the points which are vital in this campaign.

Moreover, in spite of the relative brevity of the speech, the consideration given was in almost every instance clarifying in its effect. Mr. Landon had earlier shown striking qualities of leadership by his telegram of platform interpretation, immediately after the nomination at Cleveland. At Topeka last night he demonstrated that he also has the essential ability of translating confusing generalities into clear and unmistakable policy.

Nowhere was this more apparent than in the reference to the somewhat vague labor clause in the Republican platform. The "economic royalists," whom Mr. Roosevelt loves to exploit, will find little comfort in his opponent's calm statement that: "The right of labor to organize means to me the right of employes to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry."

Indeed this single sentence goes far to dispose of the argument that the trade unionist, as such, will find anything in the Democratic platform more favorable to his cause than is the case with that of Mr. Landon's party.

The liberal and progressive attitude here shown runs like a theme through the entire address. Almost at the outset the Governor voiced the distress of thousands of thoughtful Americans over the way in which "careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration" have in the last three years discredited and retarded desirable reforms. To the forwarding of practical progressivism, in the fields of social security, unemployment relief, agricultural development and elsewhere, Gov. Landon has now pledged himself unreservedly.

In short, Mr. Landon last night thoroughly disposed of the curious assumption that the Republican Party in this campaign stands for reaction, with the Democrats alone on the side of social progress.

His yearning for a nation "in which the old wrong things are going out and the new right things are coming in" is quite as keen, though not as self-righteously expressed, as is that of President Roosevelt. His understanding of what is implied in the present travail of civilization is just as sympathetic, though less clouded by emotionalism, as is that of the Democratic nominee. The main points of difference, as set forth and indicated by the acceptance speeches of the major candidates, lies in the question of approach.

To Gov. Landon there are two fundamental considerations in the methods to be used by the United States Government in solving the problems before the American people. One is the necessity for a responsible financial policy—generous to the underprivileged without being spendthrift, intolerant of waste and graft without being insensitive to human needs—to insure that desirable social reforms shall not crash down in the ruins of a currency collapse.

The second fundamental consideration stressed in the acceptance speech is the importance of preserving constitutional government and of firmly resisting insidious introduction of the Fascist ideal of personal rule. Here also, at some length, the Republican nominee showed that he is far from opposing changes as they are needed and desired by the people. He insists only that they "must come by and through the people and not by usurpation" on the part of the Executive.

Such an attitude, defined in the temperate spirit of true liberalism, will reveal to all impartial minds the quality of Mr. Landon's candidacy. It demonstrates that he, too, is enlisted, and certainly not less conscientiously than President Roosevelt, for what the latter has rightly termed the struggle "to save a great and precious form of government for ourselves and for the world."

No Virus Causes Indigestion.

Scarcely a week passes without the announcement of some new remedy for human ailments. In many cases the claims of triumph over contagion are exaggerated. In others, astonishing laboratory results mean little in the actual prevention of disease because of difficulties involved in practical application. It is apparent to the most casual observer that remedies are produced many times as fast as diseases are actually cured.

The most trustworthy experimenters have become, therefore, very cautious in their claims. They have learned that frequent disappointments have made the public skeptical. But many agencies of publicity have yet to learn such modesty. It is safe to assume that the findings currently announced by Drs. W. F. Wells and H. W. Brown, of the Harvard School of Public Health, will be widely heralded as a means of preventing influenza.

These two Harvard men have found that the virus which causes influenza will live for at least 30 minutes floating in the air after being sneezed from the lungs of a person suffering with the disease. Air infected with the virus was used to cause influenza in ferrets. But, the experimenters found, when part of the same air was drawn through a special chamber where it was exposed to the rays of an ultra-violet lamp, it would not produce the disease. They logically concluded that the virus was killed by the ultra-violet rays.

None can foretell to what extent this discovery will lead to mitigation of the ravages of influenza. No doubt it is an important step toward control of the disease, but practical application of this air-purifying process will not be a simple matter. Dr. Wells speaks only of the "possibility" of thus attacking maladies transmitted through the respiratory tract, as typhoid has been virtually conquered by controlling water and milk supplies.

It would be a greater mistake to ignore the achievements of medical research than to overemphasize the significance of specific disclosures. Diseases caused by micro-organisms seem to be slowly yielding to scientific diagnosis and treatment. But the human race is becoming more and more susceptible to another type of ailments for which no inoculation or irradiation treatment is likely to be developed.

At the annual convention of the American Osteopathic Association, which is being held in New York this week, Dr. Russell C. McCaughan declared that doctors have "just about reached the limit in improving health and lengthening life unless a real tranquillity of existence can become fashionable." "Worry and hurry," he added, "are the twin sisters of fate. They insure a short life and anything but a merry one."

While eliminating some plagues, our highly complex civilization has brought in its wake a series of nervous disorders and living habits that increasingly undermine health. What shall it profit a man if he shall conquer all the disease germs in the world, yet ruin his own digestion by fretting and overwork?

Electrified Farms.

With the possible exception of Scandinavia, where electricity is very inexpensive, no part of the world could more fairly claim leadership in the field of household electrification than the United States. It is fitting, then, that the Rural Electrification Administration should install a demonstration farm in Virginia, completely equipped with electrical devices. Even without the fact that a World Power Conference is scheduled to meet here in September, the farm would justify itself as a milestone in the amazing progress toward human comfort accomplished since 1879, when Edison invented his electric lamp.

Today, as the REA farm demonstrates, even chickens may enjoy the advantages of the electric light. And that, of course, is only part of the story. Ice is frozen, cows milked, beards shaved, clothes washed and ironed, houses heated or cooled, music tuned in and flies snuffed out—all at the mere flick of a switch. It will be interesting to see which, if any, of the many appliances the Virginia farmer chooses to buy from the Government at the end of his 12-month demonstration period. Probably he will content himself with only the more necessary devices—not including the radio in his cowbarn, for example.

At that, he will still be a widely envied man. For in spite of the prevalence of electrical conveniences in our towns and cities, many farmers are still completely deprived of access to this blessing of modern civilization. It is partly to emphasize that fact that the REA has super-modernized this nearby farm.

"What to do about the feeble-minded in this country presents a most difficult problem," asserts a sociologist. Yes, and allowing them to amuse themselves behind steering wheels is no solution.

Mae West And Fr. Coughlin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The encyclical of Pope Pius XI on the League of Decency was wholly admirable. Further reformation of motion pictures is needed in the interests of public morals. But the Roman Catholic Church itself needs a bit of reformation very badly—the suppression of Father Coughlin.

As between a priest who tears off his collar and coat, throws them on the floor, and calls the President of the United States a liar, I will take Mae West any time. If the Pope will unfrock this man permanently, every decent citizen in America will cheer. I am a Republican and will not vote for Franklin Roosevelt, but the vile tirades of Coughlin bring me closer to sympathizing with the President than anything up to date in this campaign.

Roosevelt is not a liar and no foreign-born demogogue hiding behind priestly cloth should be allowed to call him one.

Earthless Agriculture.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Dr. W. F. Gereke, in the California University, announced his discovery why did not all thinking people instantly see its significance? Here is a man who by putting seeds on a matting in a tank filled with water impregnated with the chemical elements that are in the earth, has grown tomatoes, carrots, lettuce, beets, beans, tobacco and potatoes.

The recent photograph of him with a great pile of his potatoes thus raised, presented in the Boston Transcript, is thrilling in its prophecy of what the whole world may have in ten years, if war holds off. Problems of erosion, of relief to farmers, of Chinese famines, of Japanese congestion and urge for expansion and a thousand and one up-to-date difficulties may find solution.

Dr. Gereke has grown tomatoes yielding ripe fruit eight or nine months of the year. The local markets graded these as superior. These tanks have yielded 10 to 14 pounds per square foot of surface which would equal 200 to 300 tons per acre. Potatoes have been produced at 20 times the normal rate of earth production. The composition of the chemicals seems at present not made public, but surely must soon be so. The raising of fodder for animals may be a problem for those who insist on eating meat. But we are becoming more and more vegetarian. Beefsteak breakfasts of 50 years ago have gone; salads are tremendously augmented.

The raising of forests, the development of windbreaks, the ending of dust storms, the increase in suburban life and lessening of farm life are all matters to be affected by the startling news that good cheap food can be raised outside the earth. Let imagination and thought be set to work and shout the good news from the housetops.

Single Tax Argument.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The headlines show that the country is in a bad way, and the forces of stupid thinking and blind greed are leading the way to war—bullet-war, as distinguished from economic war.

For 50 years the Single-Taxers have said that the real estate ads pictured the whole argument for the Henry George theory of taxing the land-values, as distinguished from taxing industry. John Q. Citizen, if he is not actually on relief, smokes his pipe on the back porch and seems not to know that his dwelling is actually on fire, due to flagrant disregard of the basic principles of government and common sense. John Q. Citizen thinks with his stomach and votes for the best promiser. What to do?

Stop taxing industry! Don't tax the products of labor! the land values of America and the public franchises have grown so that all the expense of government can be taken from this public fund, and only healthy stimulation to industry will result.

In McKinley's Time.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter in The Post by James H. Shea, captioned: "President McKinley's Part," in which he takes issue with Frisbie Gilbert in giving credit to the McKinley Administration for the prosperity that followed his inauguration resulting from the Presidential campaign of 1896, is fully indorsed.

But the writer disagrees with Mr. Shea as to the causes of this prosperity when he says: "The going was very bad after his election and inauguration, but the automobile came into being and that with the revolutions in the industrial world and the fearlessness of the captains of finance and industry, restored prosperity."

What saved the situation from the gold standard point of view since business picked up and the country became prosperous, was not the gold standard, which is a myth and always has been, but three distinct natural causes, namely: The discovery of gold in the Klondike, which put more than $300,000,000 new gold into circulation; the drought in Russia, which sent more than $300,000,000 of wheat and other products to that country in return for gold, and the outbreak of the war with Spain, which taxed hundreds of millions of dollars hidden under carpets, in tin cans and other secretive places into circulation, causing the per capita circulation of the country to jump from $17 in 1896 to $36 at the end of that war.

To McKinley's credit, however, let it be said that one of the first acts of his Administration was the passing of a Senate resolution appropriating $200,000 for a bimetallic commission, headed by Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, which went to London to negotiate a bimetallic standard with Great Britain. This showed his faith in "free silver." But since that country either owned or controlled the gold of the world, naturally it would not agree to it.

But conditions have changed since 1896. The United States now owns or controls more than half the gold of the world and it is the part of wisdom and humanity that it remonetize silver, thereby giving four-fifths of the people of the world, now on a silver basis, purchasing power for our export trade.

The District Library.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A deplorable situation prevails in the free public library system—a situation which ought to be corrected by the District Commissioners and the Congress. Dr. Bowerman and his staff have done what they can, and are rendering the best service possible with the means at their disposal; But they have not been supported by the local city heads.

The library is understaffed and under-stacked. Many new books of both fiction and non-fiction are not in the library, and many others have been put on the shelves months after publication. Reason: Insufficient appropriations for new books.

The number of free library users increases every year, and appropriations should match the demand. The library is and must remain "a university of the people."

The Outlook In Europe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today conditions in Europe are vastly different from what they were on November 19, 1935, the date sanctions became effective. There will be no return of the status quo. The menace of a powerful "Mittel Europa" is looming once more; League disintegration seems to be foreshadowed; a new de facto empire has been created, to mention but a few of the salient changes that have taken place.

It is a foregone conclusion that a rapprochement with Italy will take a number of sanctionist nations further from the League, and here the position of Mussolini, who still holds the trump card at the diplomatic green table, is a factor to be reckoned with. If the maneuvering for a redistribution of the forces involved by these new problems of power can be accomplished without jeopardizing Italian supremacy in the Mediterranean and territory adjacent to the penisula, the peace of Europe is assured.

The Re-enactment At Manassas.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One hesitates to strike a discordant note upon the melodious rattle of musketry and roaring of cannon on the old Manassas battlefield, but one reader of The Post, at least, asks: "Why this re-enactment of war?"

Just now the tempo of the civilized world responds to antiwar talk, books and shows. When we demonstrate, and incidentally glorify war, by such shows such as Manassas has given us, we undo much that our best people are striving to effect.

Why not have the veterans of the Union Army now stage Pickett's deadly charge at Gettysburg? Why not, to keep up the show plan, and to get great crowds of people, visit a locality, stage the trial and execution of John Brown at Charles Town? In this quiet West Virginia town can still be found the very wagon which carried Brown to the scaffold; and many of the town's citizens recall the tall form of the man who prosecuted the great insurrectionist. The wood which came of the scaffold was intact not long ago, made into a porch by one of the town's best known citizens. What a throng would come to see this entire historic event re-enacted!

Why not have France re-enact the burning of Joan of Arc, and by parity of reasoning, have Cranmer and Ridley burned again at the stake? If some difference in technique is desired, England might have Lady Jane Grey once more beheaded for the entertainment of the morbid!

The fact is, we have become a people that for some reason want entertainment which thrills, no matter how the thrill comes or what are the results on moral principles. Who instigated this Battle of Manassas, and why?

J. O. KNOTT.
Washington, July 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is unfortunate that at this time when practically the whole world is involved in strife in one form or another, such publicity should be given the Battle of Manassas, or Bull Run as many choose to call it. The glorification of the horrors of war does not commend itself to the Christian world and especially to the American people, whether of the North or the South.

To call the struggle of 1861-65 a "War between the States" is a misnomer. Painful though it be to say it, it was open rebellion against the United States Government, and we as a people, regardless of section, cannot afford to put the stamp of approval on treason. Such glorification of the Confederacy as is sometimes seen is dangerous and tends to encourage lawlessness, especially in times of unrest and uncertainty as to what the future may bring forth.

Loyalty to country, not to a section, should be emphasized now as perhaps never before. The youth of the land should be encouraged to seek high ideals of liberty and human happiness. Rebellion is a vicious word and is never justified except where extreme measures are necessary to end intolerable rule, as was the case with our forefathers in the American Revolution.

Teach the young the great lesson of peace and good will; at the same time, they should also be taught to be alert in defense of their country and its free institutions.

The Post Impressionist

The Spell Of the Speller.

Post Office, Friday.

If you are fortunate enough ever to have passed along Temple street in New Haven, Conn., you must remember its elderly buildings. An even dozen of them commanded your second glance, and, before one of them, pious etymological pilgrims were wont to pause—for it was built in 1823, out of the profits of a spelling-book.

It was the Noah Webster House.

It was the property of Yale University.

And now Yale University has ordered that this Noah Webster House, along with its eleven old neighbors, shall be razzed and razed.

Noah was a Yale alumnus, too—was latterly given an LL. D. by Yale. He worked on his father's farm near West Hartford (where he was born) while studying for matriculation, and he graduated with the Class of '78—1778.

He didn't, so far as ever we could discover, serve in the military ranks of the American Revolution. Nevertheless, he revolutionized, in the realm of its spelling, the hated King's English—was in this respect one of the founders, or at least the pre-Mencken codifiers, of the American Language; and he always contended that his "Sketches of American Policy," published in 1785 when its author had reached the ripe age of 27, contained the first out-and-out suggestion for an American Constitution.

He was one of the once famous "Hartford wits." He was a lawyer, admitted to the bar at 23, a member of the Connecticut Legislature. He was a journalist: in New York, his American Mazagine—a publication somewhat unlike its present successor—lived for 12 months; and, to support George Washington against Genet, Webster started the (daily) Mirror, destined to become The Commercial Advertiser. He fathered, moreover, the semi-weekly Herald, which was later The Spectator and didn't at all resemble the jejune American Spectator of our time.

Also—odd avocation for a lexicographer, Samuel Johnson to the contrary notwithstanding — Noah Webster developed into a political kicker. Indeed, he flung a really vicious foot. He long wanted "to be delivered forever from the democracy" of Connecticut:

"This," he wrote in 1835, "is now the rankest despotism I have ever known; it goes far beyond the despotism of Jefferson's days."

It wasn't until eight years before his death—he died in '43—that he began advocating an end of such party strife. And even then it required the rise of the slavery issue to turn him to pleas of that description.

However, the spelling-books composed the coach on which he rode to his haven in New Haven. Between 1783 and 1785, he published, at Hartford, "A Grammatical Institute of the English Language," in three parts: speller, grammar, "reader." Of these the first was used from the Atlantic Coast to the farthest frontier. Before its popularity ceased, its sale exceeded 1,000,000 copies a year: the original American best-seller . . .

As soon as his competence proved comfortable, its author built that house in Temple street—or, as he probably said, "on" it. At this address he settled down for the completion of his great dictionary.

The place was never a thing of beauty; yet here, "in his high-backed armchair by the fireside in the south parlor," he received the homage of visitors from near and far. Although it was elsewhere that he wrote his treatise on "The Rights of Neutral Nations in Time of War," which, this columnist thinks, makes profitable reading, even in 1936, it was, if we mistake not, in the Temple street house that all his labors ended, and he passed into the Great Leisure.

Besides, wasn't it in this house that there was laid the scene of an interesting, though doubtless apocryphal, Websterian anecdote? It told how Mrs. Webster, encountered her husband in the act of kissing the cook, cried:

"Why, Noah; I am surprised!"

And it told how the lexicographer severely replied:

"You are not surprised, my dear, You are shocked. It is I who am surprised."

We always wondered what the cook was.

However, now the Old Webster House is condemned.

Oh, of course, Yale must have done its best to avoid arriving at such a resolution! Trust Yale for that.

But time and tide and taxes can overcome even the antiquarian reverence of the successors of Timothy Dwight the Elder. And the stress of our times has raised the city taxes on Temple street's antique structures so that Yale, with an annual income of something like $8,000,000, must, as a Pennsylvania Dutchman would say, "look a little out."

The university's Temple Street properties were adjudged "taxable at a value of $198,275."

Circus Tax Inquiry.

(Apropos of the recent announcement that Federal tax agents were alleging improper charge-offs by one of the big circuses to evade tax payments.)

Q. Mr. Bigshow, we find here a depreciation charge of $2,000 on a giraffe for the year 1934. Isn't that pretty high?

A. Well, this was a pretty high giraffe.

Court (absent-mindedly as he comes out of a semi-doze)—Necks case!

• • • •

Q. We come to the item of the rhinoceros. The value of this rhinoceros was put in at $10,000 in your 1933 return and at $7,532 in your 1934 return. Is it possible for a rhino to depreciate that much in a fiscal year?

A. Yes, indeed; once a rhinoceros starts going downhill nobody can stop him.

• • • •

Q. In this figure $7,532, how do you account for the $32? Why not a flat valuation of $7,500?

A. We took that valuation just after his noon lunch.

Q. What's that got to do with it?

A. If you ever paid for a rhinceros's lunch you'd know.

• • • •

Q. Now we come to the elephants . . .

Judge (clapping his hands)—Elephants! Goody-goody!

Q. In 1933 you valued your herd of 20 elephants at $100,000. In 1934 you put it down at $60,000. Why?

A. It wasn't a good elephant year.

Q. What's the difference between a good year for elephants and a bad year for elephants?

A. Ask Hoover, he knows!

• • • •

Q. No facetiousness. What made the elephants in your show worth so much less in one year than in another?

A. It's very simple. We had the elephant keepers keep telling them they were a lot of cheap pachyderms.

Q. But would that necessarily make them cheap elephants?

A. Yes; an elephant never forgets!

• • • •

Q. On your tax report you list 100 monkeys at $50 a monk. Our agents allege that there are only 75 monkeys in your circus.

A. Did you ever try to count a cageful of monkeys?

Q. Certainly not.

A. Try it, and you'll realize how easy it is to make a mistake.

• • • •

Q. Now we come to the item of leopards. Why did your leopolds depreciate $1,150 per leopard in one one fiscal year?

A. It was due to the general leopard business that season.

Q. What was the matter with it?

A. It was spotty.

Judge (hysterically)—Ho! Ho! That's the cats!

• • • •

How about seals? You make big deductions for the upkeep of 85 trained seals. Isn't it a fact you haven't had more than eight seals with this show in years?

A. Yes; but we can't stop the juggling that goes on there.

• • • •

Q. And under the item of freaks you put down the Siamese twins as deteriorating $25,000 in value in 12 months. Can you explain this?

A. Certainly. We let the twins figure it out.

Q. Why?

A. Well, two heads are better than one, aren't they?

Sesquicentennial For Rumsey Urged

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 23.—A proposal for holding a sesquicentennial celebration next year in honor of James Rumsey, of Shepherdstown, who invented the steamboat in 1787, to be held in the Eastern Panhandle in conjunction with the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States, has been suggested here by Mrs. Anita B. Speer, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., secretary of the West Virginia Rumseyan Society.

According to the plan outlined by Mrs. Speer, a pageant would be held centered around the Labor Day, September 6, 1937, the day on which in 1787, James Rumsey made his first successful trials with his steamboat as George Washington stood on the banks of the Potomac River, near Shepherdstown, W. Va., and looked on.

Although Robert Fulton and James Fitch are generally given credit for the invention of the steamboat Rumsey made successful tests on the Potomac many years before.

Public Opinion

Princeton Professor Calls For Scientific Study Of Forces Today Molding Mind Of Masses, Politically And Otherwise.

In explaining to Princeton alumni the purpose of a new course in public opinion and a contemplated Public Opinion Quarterly, Prof. DeWitt Clinton Poole, director of the university's School of Public and International Affairs, spoke in part as follows:

By Prof. DeWitt Clinton Poole.

THE MODERN AGE is commonly spoken of as the age of scientific progress. Certainly that characterization is fully justified, but by itself it is not sufficient to explain the new social and political world upon which, I surmise, we have so far only begun to enter. Our new world, more particularly our new political world, is a consequence not simply of the scientific revolution, as profoundly creative as that has been, but concurrently of another source of change which is as unprecedented historically as the miracles of invention and no less disturbing socially and politically.

The change to which I refer is the rapid spread during the last 100 years, and more particularly during recent decades, of literacy—the rapid increase in the number of people in most of the important countries of the world who can read and write.

Widespread literacy is exclusively characteristic of the modern world. Though some use of letters and writing appears to have been fairly common at least in the urban centers of classical antiquity, it was only with the Protestant Revolution that the idea began to take hold of equipping all and sundry with the means of knowledge. If a direct relationship existed between the individual and his God, the individual could fully realize that relationship only through a personal study of the word of God as written in the Bible. Hence Protestant Christian teaching became, and continues to be, a powerful factor in the general spread of literacy.

A second great impulse to the teaching of the common people without restriction of class came in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries with the spread of the philosophy of natural rights and the dogma of political democracy. According to these doctrines it was deemed to be in the words of Kant, a "sin against the dignity of man, against humanity itself" to withhold from any individual the necessary tools for his own development.

Still a third positive factor now appeared and added to the change—to the ever-widening spread of literacy. This was the romantic nationalism of the nineteenth century. Democratic thought did not dominate political action in the German states during the nineteenth century, but the nationalistic fervor which had been first engendered by the French Revolution operated, along with the Protestant tradition, to produce in Germany about the same result with regard to the education of the people.

Scientific Innovations Have Aided Vast Changes.

WHILE THESE swift changes were coming on, the scientific revolution no less swiftly was perfecting means, no less than miraculous, whereby the literate could communicate with one another.

With swift increase during the nineteenth century and down to the present time, great numbers of mankind have been endowed with the intellectual as well as the technical means of ascertaining what are the possibilities of life right here and now.

Not alone the affairs of government but also the operations of business are coming to be scrutinized and influenced by a rapidly swelling proportion of the body politic. The executives of large corporations discover that they can no longer focus their whole effort upon operation—upon manufacturing and selling—but must give frequent and earnest attention to what are called public relations; and the imparting of advice upon practical questions in the relations of particular business to the general public is now recognized in this country to be a regular profession.

That literally millions of people in the United States are enabled by their command of the written word and the enterprise of newspapers to know that the heiress of a fortune accumlated from mass sales at a few cents each, spent $40,000—or was it $50,000?—for a single evening's entertainment on Long Island, has an indubitable relationship to the stepping-up of the inheritance and income taxes.

If the new popularization of political life needs any further demonstration, this can be had by reference to the new dictatorships in Europe. The new dictatorships in Europe are distinguished from despotisms existing elsewhere in time and place not merely by their name but very profoundly by the popular or mass character of their true or pretended inspiration and support. These dictatorships are popular dictatorships. Avowedly they exemplify the antithesis of democracy, but at bottom they are democratized.

Democratic Condition Seen Still Prevailing.

THOUGH DEMOCRACY as a form of government has lost ground geographically in the last few years and is more or less on the defensive in the countries where it still continues, what may be called in distinction from formal democracy, a democratic condition, has supervened very widely. This democratic condition has become indeed the distinctive and determining quality of political and social existence in the present ero.

The tone and process of diplomacy have been completely revolutionized within three or four decades. As recently as the First Hague Peace Conference of 1899 the attempt was made, unsuccessfully as it turned out, to exclude the representatives of the press from knowledge of the deliberations of the delegates. Communications to the press were to be "reduced to a minimum, comprising merely the external affairs of the conference."

Apart from publicity, the change is nowhere more manifest and striking than in the tenor of diplomatic documents. Until a short time ago a diplomatic note was addressed in spirit by one group of bureaucrats to another. The language was restrained and often technical. A phrase that would seem to the ordinary reader merely solemn might convey to the initiated a threat of war. Though traditions of that kind are apt to be tenacious, those diplomatic documents of the post-war era which deal with major issues of policy and therefore touch the people, have taken on quite a different character and tone.

Masses Now Able To Set Own Political Courses.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in history great numbers of plain people everywhere are now in a position to form some practical estimate of the possibilities of pleasurable existence, or what seems pleasurable existence, right here on this planet, and in the same process they find themselves increasingly empowered to move politically toward their desired ends. The ferment seethes around us; those "haves of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries who could not have taught the masses might well claim justification of their foresight. Movements of social reform—new deals—more or less impetuous, more or less orderly or violent, are under way in almost every country, while internationally the less possessing and more regimented nations—Italy, Germany and Japan—are seeking to satisfy popular demands at the cost of other nations rather than at the cost of classes within their own social structures.

The political consequences of popular education develop slowly, the time unit being a generation, but they come on with the unlimited measure and irresistible force of a great flood. What we have seen so far of these consequences, coupled with the revolution in communications, forecasts a higher and higher potential of political and social change. Ever widening millions are being raised from the politically negative condition of dumb cattle (such as the bulk of the Russian peasantry before the Revolution) into dynamic political units.

Societies are growing volatile and explosive to a degree we may not yet fully appreciate. Rightly directed the new forces can carry us into an empyrean of universal well-being and contentment. Misdirected, perverted by selfish or unenlightened leadership, they can hurl us suddenly into the abyss.

I am so incurably an optimist, sentimentally, that I must envisage a happy outcome in the end, but intellectually it is plain that we can hope to avoid disaster only through foresight, study and enlightened management.

In public opinion, as it is and will increasingly be in a world of instantaneous communications and rapidly widening elementary education, we are confronted by a prime force which is more pervasive and impelling than electricity and in the present state of our advancement much less understood. Yet somehow or other we must master this force, become masters of our new selves so to speak, if we are to keep clear of the abyss. How is it to be done?

I believe that a good deal that is new can and must be studied and taught. In particular I believe that a new scientific approach becomes feasible with regard to the problems of public opinion and mass politics.

Deputy Is Slain In Mill Dispute; 18 Are Injured

5 Murder Warrants Sworn and 34 Are Arrested at Talladega, Ala.

By the Associated Press.

Talladega, Ala., July 23.—National guardsmen patroled this strife-torn cotton textile center today, while civil authorities made wholesale arrests as a result of a gun battle in which a deputy sheriff was slain and 18 persons wounded.

Sheriff Sam Burns swore out five murder warrants and arrested 34 persons without charge after the gunplay which climaxed labor differences at the Samoset cotton mills.

Deputy Sheriff John J. Bryant was slain when he went to investigate a disturbance at the mill last night.

The militiamen, hurried here by Gov. Bibb Graves after the outbreak, kept streets clear and issued "keep-moving" orders to would-be loiterers.

Pickets, stationed at the mill since June 16, were dispersed today by the troops. They left without resistance when informed of the guard orders.

Sheriff Burns listed those charged in the murder warrants as Homer L. Welch, Eugene Thornton, J. A. Gann, "Red" Morrison and Fred Hurst. All but Welch were under arrest.

The sheriff said all five were members of the United Textile Workers of America. Bryant, Burns said, attempted to arrest Welch on an assault charge, and the battle resulted from efforts of fellow union members to release him.

Joe Hayes, who accompanied Bryant to the Samoset Hills, was in serious condition in a hospital today from an abdominal wound. The others wounded were not hurt seriously.

At Anniston, Judge R. B. Carr ordered a special session of the Talladega grand jury Monday to investigate Bryant's death.

Police to Retain Guard at Legation In Bombing Scare

A guard wil remain on duty at the Hungarian Legation and chancery for an "indefinite period," it was learned last night, while the police continue an undercover investigation of a reported bombing plot against Minister John Pelenyi and members of his staff.

Continuing a policy of silence, the police and legation attaches steadfastly refused to discuss the case. Charles Schwenda, executive officer of the legation, insisted he "had nothing to say."

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, detective chief, likewise spoke in guarded terms of the alleged plot, explaining he was "not in a position to comment."

Police details at both the chancery, 1424 Sixteenth street northwest, and the legation, 1704 Eighteenth street northwest, are working in four-hour shifts. Officers on duty have been instructed not to talk. They admit, however, that it would be "unhealthy" for anyone to approach either building carrying a suitcase or package.

Britain Leads World Navies In Wide Margin

Data Reveals Total Tonnage Exceeds Other Powers; U. S. Is Second.

By the Associated Press.

The navies of the world's great sea powers today were listed in official statistics just compiled and published last night by the Naval Intelligence Division of the United States as follows:

Great Britain—307, of 1,224,329 tons.
United States—324, of 1,060,715 tons.
Japan—213, of 772,797 tons.
France—178, of 558,452 tons.
Italy—191, of 403,865 tons.
Germany—49, of 113,798 tons.

The wide margin by which Great Britain remains the world's greatest naval power, despite the naval building spurt by other sea powers, was shown by the official table.

Greatest Total.

The tabulation showed that the British navy has the greatest total tonnage of any, and the largest tonnage of modern under-age ships, and leads in the number of aircraft carriers and heavy and light cruisers.

The British navy (as of July 1) was reported to consist of 307 ships of 1,224,329 tons, of which 157 of 897,258 tons are modern under-age ships. Sixty-six ships of 225,096 tons were listed as under construction or appropriated for.

Since three of the six British aircraft carriers are experimental types they may also replace 55,900 tons of new ships of that category at any time.

The United States Navy consists of 324 ships of 1,080,715 tons of which 94 of 749,145 tons are under-age. Ninety-five vessels are under construction or appropriated for, and 44,510 tons more may be laid down before December 31.

Japan, which refused to sign the new London naval pact designed to limit tonnage as a guarantee against a naval building race, has 213 fighting ships of 772,797 tons, of which 150 of 573,589 tons are under the age limit designated in the existing treaties.

The Japanese now have 34 ships of 93,907 tons under construction and are permitted to lay down one more vessel.

The Italian navy has 191 ships of 403,865 tons, of which 129, of 266,691, are under-age. Thirty-eight ships of 112,344 tons are under construction and Italy may still lay down 105,000 tons of battleships and 60,000 tons of aircraft carriers before the year ends.

The French navy has 178 ships of 558,452 tons, of which 143 of 357,657 tons are under-age, and is constructing 39 ships of 194,098 tons. France may lay down 52,000 tons of battleships and 37,854 tons of aircraft carriers by December 31.

The new German navy, which became a factor in naval affairs when an Anglo-German agreement permitted the Nazis to maintain a fleet approximately one-third the size of the British, has 49 ships of 113,708 tons.

Since the Nazi navy is of comparative recent origin, 39 of its ships of 69,750 tons are under-age by treaty standards.

Hedgerow Theater

By

William Lyon Phelps.

One of the most important and most valuable signs of the times in the great revival of the theater which has been going on in America since the World War is the number of municipal and local and amateur organizations which have given their audiences opportunities to see many plays very seldom produced, and to see revivals of plays only a few years old.

Several times in this column I have commended the Pasadena Playhouse; of course I cannot possibly devote separate articles to every one of these community theaters, for if I did, there would be no room for the discussion of anything else; but I will today say a few words about the already famous Hedgerow Theater, because I have watched with keen interest and steadily growing admiration the work done by this group.

• • • •

The Hedgerow Theater is situated in Rose Valley, 14 miles from Philadelphia; and the company has just celebrated its thirteenth birthday, a fine record. Not content with its triumphs at home, the Hedgerow Players have recently returned from their second national tour.

On this tour they presented plays by Shakespeare, Moliere, O'Neill, and others. The company, under the direction of Jasper Deeter, traveled during the entire tour in their own bus.

This repertory theater is open six nights every week; the building is a converted mill with an interior that reminds the spectators of American colonial churches; there are places for 170 people. It is said that the only theater in the world closely resembling the Hedgerow is in Czechoslovakia, where the whole nation is devoted to the art of the drama.

• • • •

Hedgerow in 1934 used 34 plays from its repertory of 108 and operated 51 weeks out of the 52. Three hundred and eighteen performances were presented, and eight new plays were added to its repertory to make its most successful season remarkable in theatrical annals.

It has among its most famous graduates Ann Harding and John Beal. Last summer the company gave a cycle of plays by Bernard Shaw in honor of his birthday, which comes in July.

Duchess Apple Crop Poor in Martinsburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 23.—The expected small crop of Duchess apples in this section was nearly cleaned up here this week with the size of the crop being even less than anticipated.

The price, however, held up fairly well, the best fruit bringing in the neighborhood of $1 and ranging down to 75 cents. The reasons given for the smallness of the crop were drought and the prevalence of water core, which kept much of the fruit out of the U. S. No. 1 class, and the fact that this was the "off" year for Duchess as the crop was unusually good last year.

Reemployment Shows 58,000 Gain for June

Usual Seasonal Decline Is Overcome by Upswing, U. S. Reports.

Reemployment showed a gain of 58,000 jobs during June, marking the fourth consecutive month in which employment rolls have registered an upturn, figures released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor showed last night.

Contradicting the usual seasonal decline in the May-June period, when an average of 100,000 to 300,000 men are generally forced out of work in manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries, the business upswing carried through small declines in several industries by virtue of heavy steady gains in factory employment, utilities and private building construction.

Bureau Commissioner Isador H. Lubin reported to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins that the increase in pay rolls in the combined industries continued the gains which have been reported every month since January.

$1,100,000 Increase.

The figures are based on reports supplied by about 135,000 establishments employing over 7,000,000 workers. The estimates showed that approximately $1,100,000 more was paid out in aggregate weekly wages during June than in May.

The Works Progress Administration, in its weekly report, figured yesterday that 2,231,117 persons were employed on WPA projects for the week ending July 11, with the figure representing a decrease of 8,968 from the preceding week. Drought relief projects brought increases in some States, however, with the total in sun-burned North Dakota 2,831 greater than the week before.

Pay Rolls Greater.

The gain of 27,000 shown in the manufacturing industries for June employment was noted as particularly significant, since this is only the seventh gain in that field in 18 years.

The report adds:

"A comparison of employment in the combined industries in June, 1936, with June, 1935, shows an increase of approximately 805,000 workers over the year interval. Weekly pay rolls in June, 1936, were $37,500,000 greater than in the corresponding month of last year.

D. C. Residents Plan to Attend Saratoga Races

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills Are Among Visitors Reserving Boxes.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is a sleepy little town which only wakes up for several weeks in the late summer, when the racing season starts. The great old-fashioned hotels are far from crowded during the winter and early summer months, but toward July windows are flung open, fresh paint is ordered and there is a great sweeping of verandas and cleaning of windows by hundreds of busy employes, who seem suddenly to have appeared from nowhere.

July 29 has been selected as the opening day for this year's turf events at Saratoga, and already many from Washington and the hunting country nearby are making preparations to attend. The former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden Mills are among those already reserving boxes. Mr. and Mrs. Mills are at present in Narragansett, R. I., visiting Mrs. Mills' father, Mr. Phillip S. P. Randolph. They arrived on their yacht, Avalon, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane, who with their infant son are at their summer home on Long Island, are others planning to attend. Mrs. Sloane maintains a small stable of hunters at her home in Warrenton and is an enthusiastic participant in the meets of that section.

It is likely that Col. Frederick Greene, public works commissioner of New York, will have several entries in the Saratoga events, as he did last year. Col. and Mrs. Greene frequently visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Greene, at their home in Warrenton. In addition to being a horse breeder of note, Col. Greene is well known as a writer.

Others well known in Washington who have taken boxes for the event include Mr. and Mrs. William Hitt, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, and Mr. and Mrs. George Bostwick. Mrs. Bostwick is the daughter of Mrs. James F. Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney no doubt will be present at the Saratoga racing classic. The latter, who is now at her Upperville estate, Llangolen, has not raced for several months, owing to the recent death of her grandmother. Her extensive stable is exceeded in size this year by that of Alfred Vanderbilt, who also will be at Saratoga on July 29.

Peggy Angel Is Married To J.S. Wood

Mrs. Hugh Leach, Richmond, Sister of Bride, Is Attendant.

Couple Will Make Their Home in Chevy Chase After Sept. 15.

The marriage of Miss Peggy Angel and Mr. John Sumner Wood took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in Silver Spring. The rector, the Rev. James Cox, performed the ceremony in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends. The church was decorated in palms, ferns and midsummer flowers. Miss Druscilla Gottshall played the wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Angel, of West Kirke street, and Mr. Wood is the son of Mrs. Judson Wriley Jacobs, of Thirty-eighth street, Chevy Chase. He is a graduate of Harvard and also of George Washington University Law School.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Hugh Leach, of Richmond, Va., wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory satin surah. It was draped on princess lines, with high neck and train, and trimmed with handmade medallions of the silk and old lace, which had been used by other brides in the family. The short, puffed sleeves were frilled in the lace. Old rose point lace edged the tulle veil, which was arranged about the hair with a band of the tulle and orange blossoms. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley.

Attended by Sister.

The only attendant was the matron of honor, Mrs. Hugh Leach, of Richmond, Va., a sister of the bride. Her pale yellow dress of French marquisette over taffetta foundation was made with high neck and elbow puffed sleeves, the only trimming being an applique of the yellow taffetta in lily pattern on the full skirt. With this Mrs. Leach wore a picture hat of light blue horsehair braid and narrow velvet ribbon, banded in blue velvet, and a matching girdle and shoes. She carried an arm bouquet of midsummer garden flowers.

Mr. Wood's stepfather, Mr. Judson Wriley Jacobs, was best man. There were no ushers.

A reception for the members of the family was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents in Chevy Chase, where Mrs. Angel and Mrs. Jacobs assisted in receiving. The former wore a flowered chiffon on a white background and a hat of white.

At Home After September 15.

The bride's traveling costume was a tailored frock of green linen, with dickey and accessories of brown and a brown straw hat. After September 15 Mr. and Mrs. Wood will be at home at 7202 Chatham road, Chevy Chase.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Mr. Angel's sisters, the Misses Mary, Rebecca, Nancy and Betty Angel, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Leach, Mrs. A. C. Atkins and Mrs. Barry Harris, all of Richmond; Mrs. Jim Carter Ingersol and John Robert Weigle, of Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., and Miss Gladys Gette, of Philipsburg, Pa.

Many pre-nuptial parties have been given in honor of the bride. Miss Dolly Sharpe gave a luncheon Tuesday; Mrs. George Converse Wetherill a luncheon at her home in Wesley Heights, Monday, and Mrs. Kent Clark another luncheon at the Shoreham. Supper parties were given by Miss Mary Sleman at her home in Kirke street and by Mr. Jack Wolcott. Mr. and Mrs. Merton English, jr., were hosts at their home in Aspen, Md., Saturday night

Martha Moon Becomes Bride Of W. K. Bailey

Ship Romance Culminates in Their Marriage in Puerto Rico.

A romance which started a year ago, when the couple met aboard the S. S. Barbara on their way to Puerto Rico, culminated in the marriage there, July 11, of Miss Martha Moon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emory J. Moon of Washington and Mr. Wallace Kincaid Bailey, of Woodleaf, N. C.

The bride is a graduate of George Washington University and a member of Phi Delta Gamma Sorority and Phi Gamma Mu honorary fraternity. She has been engaged in government work in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico.

Mr. Bailey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Bailey of Woodleaf, was graduated from the North Carolina State University and has done graduate work at the University of Maryland. He is now horticulturist for the United States Government at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Mayaguez.

The ceremony took place in Saint Andrews Episcopal Mission with the Rev. Father Meijer officiating. The chapel was decorated with tropical flowers and ferns. Fronds of tree ferns were massed along the sides of the chapel and varicolored hibiscus and tube roses were strewn down the aisle to the altar, around which were banked alternately, clumps of fragrant white river narcissus and purple flowers of the pride-of-India tree.

Women's Roles Vary At Texas Exposition

Their Parts Run Gamut From Directing of National Folk Festival, Through Marionettes, to Midway Dancing.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

DALLAS, TEX., July 23.—It may be indicative of the way things are going in the Lone Star State that "The Spirit of the Centennial" is the figure of a woman, gracing the front of the Exposition's administration building. For if feminine Texas has ever had a prominent place as the State that has threaded its way through history under six flags, it is now.

HOPE MILLER

Even Anita Pollitzer, feminist, whose chief concern has long been equal rights for women, feels that women are getting their share of attention so far as the Centennial is concerned. "In other respects I'm not so sure," said this vice chairman of the National Woman's Party, who has spent much time in Washington and is now in Dallas with her husband, E. C. Edson, publicity director for the Texas queen.

Even though Miss Pollitzer is not visiting the Centennial in the interest of National Women's Party work, she is finding plenty to do besides admire the flags, banners, murals, sculptures and multicolored lights. "I spend a good deal of time in the air-cooled buildings scattered over the Centennial grounds," she said. "And I'm generally talking to women about equal rights, giving them pamphlets, urging them to do something about inequality.

"I've been surprised to meet so many Texans, club women particularly, who are totally unaware they don't have equal rights with men. Working wives in Texas are suffering as much from discrimination as they are anywhere in the United States, but you don't see any organized mass movement on the part of Texas club women to correct this. Perhaps the weather has something to do with it now. Most of the women I've talked to say, 'Well, maybe when the heat lets up and our clubs start their fall meetings, We'll consider doing something about equal rights.'"

But while Texas women may be blissfully unaware of inequality with men in general, they are apparently holding their own on the exposition plot. Rangerttes in white "chaps," colorful bandanas and ten-gallon hats elicit as much favorable comment as the Texas Rangers who ride their ponies up and down the streets of the Centennial city. College-age girls presiding over booths in the exhibit halls ask no odds from the college-age boys with whom they work. The restaurants, the fruit stands, the Midway and the Esplanade are alive with as many feminine as masculine figures.

"The Calvacade of Texas," the colorful pageant portraying the history of the State, is based on a script written by a woman, Jan Isbelle Fortune. The National Folk Festival was directed by a woman—issM Sarah Gertrude Knott, who has been in charge of similar events throughout the United States.

When marionettes are mentioned, the average person thinks of Toney Sarg, whose puppets presented in a "Toadstool Theater" are delighting many Centennial visitors. Yet the largest and most active organization of wooden actors who move by strings does not belong to Mr. Sarg, but to a woman—Sue Hastings, who was once his pupil. One of Mrs. Hastings' eight companies is a feature attraction at the exposition.

Miss Peggy Hahn, better known as "Paris Peggy," de luxe spieler on the Centennial's Midway, believes the job she has is one in which many women could do well, "because most of us like to talk; and goodness knows, you have your chance in this game. All you need is a few superlatives and strong lungs."

At another show on the Midway, is a woman who could give wives a few pointers on combining homemaking with a career. It is Marguerite Snow, who plays the other in that famous old-time melodrama, "The Drunkard." Her husband, Neeley Edwards, is master of ceremonies on the Show Boat, where the play is presented. Their home is a trailer, following wherever they go. Their dozen years' of successful marriage prove trouping need not be a strain on marital ties.

One recent visitor to the exposition is now part of a "feathered attraction" at the Frontier Exposition in Fort Worth. He is Luis Gomez, of the internationally known dance team of "Gomez and Winona."

"Surely, I like being in Texas," the dancer told this vagabonding reporter. "Why? Well, chiefly because I have seen more beautiful women here than anywhere else in the world." He explained his ideas of beauty have nothing to do with the peaches-and-cream prettiness of youth. "Older women—more seasoned, more sympathetic, more sophisticated—are the ones who appeal to me," he said. "Charm outweighs beauty every time, and I never saw an extremely charming woman who was less than 30.

Centennial visitors more bent on glimpsing youthful beauty also confess they are not disappointed with what the Texas Exposition has to offer. From the young girls in quaint colorful costumes in the exhibit halls to the three "Sensations of the Centeninal"—Mlle. Corinne, the apple dancer; Mona Leslie, the diving Venus, and Yvette, the muff dancer (each a Sally Rand in her own right)—women here are getting plenty of fanfare and attention.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Infections Destroy Blood Cells.

More than 85 years have elapsed since Thomas Addison described what is today known as pernicious or Addisonian anemia. The discovery in 1923 by Minot and others of the value of liver feeding has directed the attention of physicians quite definitly to the problems of treatment. The question arises—naturally—if the body lacks something contained in liver for the maintenance of the red cells may not other deficiencies bring about other types of blood disease?

About 50 years ago a British physician, William Hunter (born in 1801), reported what he called septic anemia. Physicians see almost daily patients suffering from infections of various types with blood that is markedly impoverished. Sometimes the red cells will be decreased or the hemoglobin may be greatly reduced. In certain instances both the number of cells and the red coloring matter will be decidedly below normal. Such a situation may be found in long continued fevers, in which the blood seems to be burned up, as it were.

Nevertheless, when the patient recovers, the red cells usually return to normal. There seems, therefore, to be some relation between a toxic state of the system (possibly from a focus of infection) and the destruction of the oxygen carrying cells. This is borne out by the fact that transfusions are of great value. In other words, the toxemia paralyzes the blood - producing organs. We must consider also the possibility that poisoning due to a disease may reduce the power of the liver to function normally, as well as that of the lining of the gastrointestinal tract.

Trouble Traced to Teeth.

The case is reported of a 23-year-old woman who complained of numerous arthritic-like pains. The left hip seemed to be particularly involved, the pain traveling down the leg to the heel. No trouble with the sciatic nerve was discovered, although on thorough examination the roots of several teeth were found to be diseased. The only other abnormality that could be detected was a persistently rapid heart rate. A few weeks later four diseased teeth were extracted at one sitting.

At this time it was observed that the patient was very pale and running an afternoon temperature. Study of the blood showed a severe grade of anemia. Treatment was inaugurated with transfusions, and in addition the administration of ventriculin (prepared from the stomach wall of animals) was begun. The condition improved steadily and in four weeks the blood count had returned practically to normal. There was a corresponding gain in weight. Cultures from the extracted teeth showed growths of our old enemy, the streptococcus.

The lesson is that infections can destroy the blood cells and so damage the blood forming organs that anemia will follow. The condition will prove far less menacing if, in the presence of any fever, strict attention is paid to the state of the blood.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

Posed by Frances Farmer.

New Pale Green Cold Cream Has Odor of Mint and Is Like a Cold Shower in the Morning.

By Mignon.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

THERE are so many skins that are dried out at this or any other time of year and they hanker after cold cream. I have a cream for you that is like a cold shower in the morning and takes all the leftover sleep out of your eyes.

It is, of all things, pale green! It smells like mint and is of that perfect consistency that isn't heavy, not too light, not at all sticky, and it is the best morning eye-opener I have yet encountered. Made by one of the very best of manufacturers, it is not what you would call high in price. It does things for you that will make you a confirmed user, especially if you are one of these people who find it difficult to get your eyes open in the morning. I don't mean to put it in your eyes—don't mistake me—I mean the cooling, refreshing feeling it gives your face is what gets your eyes open.

If you can get your store to let you sniff at a jar of it, the smell will sell it.

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

PUTTING both envelopes back in his pocket, he took up a pen, and wrote on a piece of the castle note paper the following letter:

Tuesday.

Dear Aunt Albinia:

I am leaving this note on my way to London, just to tell you that at the last moment I discovered that my poor Iris must have packed the bunch of keys, for I couldn't find them anywhere. I have securely fastened every door and window, and indeed bolted the front door, for I propose leaving by the postern gate. You will receive the keys registered of course, and securely packed, by the day after tomorrow at latest.

This brings warm thanks for all your kindness to us and to Ruth Starling. We have all enjoyed our stay in the castle, and Miss Starling has had the opportunities of seeing something of old England in a way few Americans ever have a chance of doing.

Your affectionate nephew,

He signed his name. Then he blotted the letter, and taking an envelope out of the rack, addressed it. He made up his mind that the easiest way of conveying it to the manor house would be to drop it at one of the cottages which belonged to the estate.

He waited on, for a while, in what had been Ruth Starling's bedchamber. To him the room held no associations of her presence, for he had never seen her there, and he shrank at the thought of going downstairs again. Yet he knew that the quicker he left the castle the better it would be for himself.

So at last, treading softly, as if afraid of being overheard, he made his way down to the ground floor and, snatching up his hat and coat, he rushed past the bolted door and down the stone passages, till he reached the postern gate.

There was no reason why he should fear being seen leaving the castle, yet he was relieved that, as he made his getaway, there was no prying eye registering the exact time.

Going somewhat out of his way in order to do so, he found a cottage about half a mile from the manor house, and when he knocked on the door a woman with a child in her arms answered it. "Here is a letter for her ladyship. It will do if she gets it any time this evening," and he handed her two shillings.

As Philip Trefane walked through into the narrow hall of the London house where Iris was awaiting him, he gave a long, sobbing sigh of relief. Cornwall appeared so far away, after those long hours of motoring, as to be on another planet. Also he knew he had at any rate a breathing space before there would start, as he knew there must start, a hue and cry after the American girl whose disappearance need not be fully established within, at any rate, a couple of days from now. Yet his wife's first words, instead of the eager welcome to which he felt himself entitled were: "Why, where's Ruth, Phil?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I found her gone when I got back to the castle."

"Gone? What an extraordinary thing."

"Not so very extraordinary if you will look at this note," and he pulled an envelope out of his pocket. But before she could look at what it contained, he exclaimed: "But oh, darling, let me have a rest and a drink! Then I'll put away the motor. By that time I expect the girl will be here."

While he spoke Iris had glanced at the letter.

"I never heard of anything more extraordinary!"

"I have, said Philip laconically.

She looked at him, and to his relief he saw that she was smiling. "I mean extraordinary that she should have been in such an enormous hurry to see that man—Mr. Dwight."

"D'you think it as extraordinary as all that?"

"Why yes, I do! For one thing, it will have cost her a pretty penny to hire that car."

"I suppose she hasn't yet got accustomed to the idea that she hasn't any oof," he said lightly.

After she had brought him the drink he craved for: "He's sure to keep her to dinner—I mean at the Savoy," said Iris.

"And a good thing, too, darling, for we can plan out this evening what we can decently extract from her. The arrival of that American makes a difference, for unless he's a blankety fool he won't allow her to spend any money on that poor play. I know I wouldn't if I were in his place!"

"I suppose she's sure to give you the year's salary she promised you?"

"Why, yes. I'm sure she'll do that." And then he cried: "Oh, how glad I am to be in London again!"

"So am I. Still, though Ruth is one in a million, things are none too bright, dear, are they?"

To that he made no answer.

"Have you secured two maids?" he asked.

"Yes, but they're only coming in tomorrow morning. We'll have to manage as we can tonight. But I've got everything shipshape. I thought it only decent to give the best bedroom to Ruth You don't mind, do you?"

"Of course I don't mind." But he frowned. Why must Iris mention the girl every other second?

"I shouldn't be a bit surprised if she chucked that young American beau of hers, and came here to dinner after all!"

Child Should Quit Gocart After 3d Year

Continuance of Practice Harmful to Normal Development.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

THE MOTHER was wheeling along an empty gocart. Beside her ran and played a little daughter of 4 or 5.

She was a healthy, active little creature, and seemed quite capable of normal exertion. But presently asked to be wheeled. Her mother put her in the carriage as though she had been 2 years old, and patiently pushed the load along the sidewalk.

Had there been a younger child, the 4-year-old would have had to walk at the proper time. But she was the only child and her mother had failed to note the passage of time. So, when the little girl was quite old enough for the average walk and should have been exercising and developing her muscles, she was still being treated though she were only a baby.

Unless there is something the matter with a child, such a deformity, or heart-trouble, there is no need to wheel him after he is 3 years old unless the walk is one of exceptional length.

The child needs the exercise as well as the fresh air, and if he is permitted to run and jump and so vary the use of his muscles, he will benefit by it.

Better leave the carriage at home, and, fi necessary, shorten the walk for a while, gradually lengthening it again until the child is able to keep up.

With anonly child it is very easy to continue babyhood long after it is past. The mother must consciously remind herself of the child's growth, his need for ever greater expansion, and be careful not to retard his normal development by keeping up practices after the necessity for them is passed.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

When Young Man Asks to Meet Girl's Family, and She Is Ashamed of House, What Can Be Done?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have thought and thought about this problem of mine but can't decide what to do. Will you please help me? I will be very grateful for any advice you may give me. I have been going with a very fine young man for almost two years. His relatives like me and have invited me to visit them during my vacation. He is from the North and I am a Southerner. We both work here.

* * * *

He is from a very lovely and beautiful home and members of his family are devoted to each other. My mother died when I was young and father married again and has three children by his second marriage. My stepmother is neither tidy with herself nor with the house. Being poor and making the most of what you have by attractive arrangement and cleanliness is not so bad, but she doesn't even do that. There is no guest room and the kitchen has to be used as the dining room also. Cooking and eating in the same room certainly is not comfortable or inviting.

* * * *

My friend has often asked me about my home and wants to meet my family. He has to before we can mean much to each other. I will be going home for a vacation of two or three weeks very shortly and would like him to come down while I am there. How should I invite him and go about telling him the condition of things? My two elder brothers are away from home and half the time I don't know where. I rarely hear from them.

If only mother had lived my father would not have moved away from the comfortable and lovely home she made for us. Please help me. This worries me terribly and I cannot help it. Thanking you very kindly, I am,

DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED: The easiest way of handling this situation may be to tell your beau, in advance of leaving for your vacation, that you want him to come down one day while you are there and meet your family; but that you will write him in detail later, settling on a definite date. Then, when you are home, tell your family the situation and how you feel about it. Emphasize the fact that they owe it to you to put forward the best foot possible on the occasion of the young man's visit.

* * * *

If you have any money to spend, you might spend it on dressing up the house as much as possible, in a modest way, such as hanging new curtains, painting the floors or woodwork, touching up dingy furniture, buying a few inexpensive woven or fiber rugs, getting some appropriate table linens, china and glassware, and possibly buying some becoming, inexpensive clothing for the children. The whole family might enter into an orgy of housecleaning and preparation for the great event during the first week or ten days of your visit.

* * * *

After you have done all the furbishing that can possibly be done, write your beau and ask him down for a certain day. Explain to him, without stating it as a painful apology, that you cannot ask him for overnight, much as you might like to, because there is no guest room. Also tell him, quite candidly, that the whole family has been engaged in an unwonted flurry of preparation for his coming, since a guest in the house, even for a day, is a great event and one to which the family is not accustomed. You can go on from there to tell him whatever you think necessary to prepare him for the picture which will greet his eye on arrival. You can say that your stepmother has no great talent for housekeeping; or that she finds her hands full with three small children and is yet something of a child herself; or any other explanation, graciously and generously made, which may convey the idea that he is not to expect a very smoothly run household, without your placing bitter blame on your stepmother's shoulders. He will understand where the blame is to be placed, if he is indeed a fine and intelligent person.

* * * *

When he comes, you may, if your stepmother is willing, take over all or part of the preparation of meals for the day, having dressed yourself appropriately and becomingly for the role. Make no apoligy, once he is there, for having to serve the meals in the kitchen. Perhaps you could work out some hot-weather menus which would obviate the necessity of getting the kitchen into too much of mess just before the time meals are to be served. It might be well to get the advice of a cooking expert (Miss Dorothea Duncan, food editor for this newspaper, will no doubt be glad to help you) on some attractive and palatable menus for a midsummer day, and work these out yourself. Don't make any awkward effort to "entertain" the man after he comes. Leave him pretty much to his own devices, to talk with you as you do your work, or to visit with other members of the family, as he chooses. Perhaps after lunch you two can slip away for a walk and a talk, while someone else does the dishes; or if he suggests, you can let him help you about the house.

* * * *

Be praised, cordial, unaffected and unapologetic with your guest. He may see through your efforts to carry off a trying situation in a matter-of-fact manner, but he will admire your dignity and honesty in so doing, if he is capable of appreciating delicate nuances of conduct and character. Remember this: The circumstances of your home life will not seem half so important to him as how you react to them. M. H.

2 Men Seized In Capital's Slave Case

Agents Arrest Suspect in West Virginia; Hunt Others.

Husband of Reputed Operator of House Held After Raid.

Striking again yesterday vice squad detectives and Federal agents rounded up two men and charged another woman with violating the white slave law following a raid in the 1400 block Belmont street northwest early Wednesday.

Federal agents seized Joseph Marback in Smithers, W. Va., late yesterday. He will be returned here today for a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

While agents were working out of town, Detectives Roy E. Blick and William G. Fawcett, of the vice squad, arrested Joseph Sherman, 33, husband of Mary Hipple Sherman, alleged operator of the white slave ring.

Sherman was arrested here in a downtown apartment. He was immediately arraigned before Commissioner Turnage on charges of violating the white slave act. He pleaded not guilty and was held for the grand jury under $2,000 bond.

Girl Held.

Jean Gordon, 23, arrested Wednesday night in the raid on the Belmont street address, also was charged with the white slave traffic. She also pleaded not guilty and was held under the same bond as Sherman.

Working with Federal agents, Blick and Fawcett smashed their way into the elaborate house on Belmont street. Four women and a man were seized and now are being held while Department of Justice men continued the out-of-town work on the case.

Mrs. Sherman, 31, and Ida Jackson, colored, were both charged with violation of the white slave act Wednesday when they were arrested in the house. They were arraigned and held under heavy bond. None could make bond and were remanded to jail to await trial.

Information that led to the smashing of the ring came Monday when Blick and Fawcett arrested a young girl in a downtown hotel. After questioning the girl said she wanted to "tell all she knew about this white slave racket."

Supplied With Fare.

She told the two detectives she was "one of Mary Hipple's girls" and that she had been brought here by the woman on the promise of making a lot of money.

Her train fare was supplied her and she left her home with her parents in a Southern city to come to Washington, she said. She was taken to the Belmont street house where she was placed in the charge of the colored woman—Ida Jackson, she told police.

After several weeks she was placed in a small apartment where she was subject to call from the Jackson woman, her story revealed.

At this time and subsequently she was summoned to the leading hotels in the city where employes had been given the number of Belmont street address, she told Blick and Fawcett.

The girl asserted Mrs. Sherman had about 15 girls working for her here. All the girls had been persuaded to leave their homes with the tales of the "easy money" and "large opportunities" for a girl in Washington, she said.

Electrical Storm Breaks City Heat

Accompanied by brief but heavy rainfall, a sudden electrical storm broke over Washington last night, slowing up traffic in several sections, flooding basements and dropping the temperature 15 degrees in about three-quarters of an hour.

Officials at the Weather Bureau gave no measurement of the rainfall, but it was estimated to have been about an inch. The mercury toppled from 82 to 67 between 9:30 and 10:15 p. m.

Rain water, gushing down an embankment, washed out about 200 feet of new roadway under the Sixteenth Street Bridge in Rock Creek Park. Sewer tops were pushed up in a few instances in the Northwest section.

At Arkansas avenue and Delafield place northwest the water flowed like a miniature river, temporarily flooding the street and tying up traffic.

Near Lanham, Md., the storm came to the aid of several suburban fire companies engaged in fighting a forest fire that had already swept several hundred acres of woodland. The fire was almost out of control when the storm broke, effectively quelling the flames.

Fire companies from Hyattsville, Bladensburg, Cottage City, Mount Rainier, Riverdale, East Riverdale and several other places had futilely battled the blaze for hours.

Allen, Back in City, Completes Roster Of Commissioners

Tanned by the Dixie sun and wearing a salmon-colored shirt, Commissioner George E. Allen returned to his office in the District Building yesterday after a three-week vacation.

With his arrival, all three of the city's Commissioners are on the job, Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan having returned Monday from an official trip. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen has decided to take no vacation beyond week-end trips.

Commissioner Allen said he spent his time motoring through his home State of Mississippi, "just visiting around seeing the folks."

Labor Official Held in Capital In $5,000 Fraud

Chicagoan Alleged to Have Swindled Operating Engineers' Union.

A Chicago labor official, alleged to have swindled his organization of $5,000, was arrested in a fashionable downtown hotel here yesterday. Police are expected to charge him with transporting stolen property.

The prisoner, who gave his name as Joseph A. Schuessler, 35, is on the Chicago office staff of the International Union of Operating Engineers, the police said.

When he was seized he had in his pockets $3,000 in $1,000 bills. Another $1,000 bill was in a deposit box at the Riggs National Bank, and a fifth in the safe of the hotel, where he was living in style.

According to Inspector Bernard Thompson, chief of detectives, Schuessler had a position of trust with his union in the Middle West, and frequently did business in this capacity with the Mid-City National Bank, of Chicago. Several days ago, police said, he went to the bank and wrote a check for $5,000, then told officials there to send the money on to the Riggs Bank here, where he would collect it.

Then, it is charged, he wrote a letter of identification to Riggs officials and signed the name of his superior, A. L. Landvogt, secretary of the Chicago union. In the letter he described himself minutely, and said that when he came to the bank in Washington he would bring the original letter. He sent the duplicate, with the forged name, to Riggs officials, police say.

Police said he arrived Wednesday, presented his credentials and got the money. But Landvogt discovered what had occurred in Chicago and wrote Riggs officials and Frank A. Fitzgerald, secretary of the union here.

Lewis T. Breuninger, general chairman of the recent convention, was presented with a desk clock and pen by George P. Mangan, vice president.

Harold Marsh, former president; Alvin W. Hall, Albert Van Vorhees, Bynum E. Hinton and Breuninger were given evening bags, to be presented to their wives, who were chairmen of the various ladies' committees during the convention.

Early-to-Rise Workmen Run Afoul of 'Curfew' Ordinance

Nine Washington construction workers yesterday knew that there is such a thing as carrying the "early-to-rise" maxim too far.

Although all received suspended sentences, they had the experience of appearing in Police Court because they started their day's work before 7 a. m. A District ordinance says no building, repair or similar work shall be done in residential areas between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Elbert Allen, of 702 Erie avenue, Takoma Park, Md., and John Howard, a fellow workman, were arrested while doing insulation work in the northwest section Tuesday.

"We sometimes go early, in the cool of morning (about 5:30 o'clock) to escape the heat," said Allen yesterday. "Up next to the roofs in these buildings, it becomes almost unbearably hot during the day."

Allen said he and Howard were interrupted by two Sixth Precinct policemen just before 6 a. m. Taken to the precinct, each put up $5 collateral. The money was returned later.

The day before, seven other workmen in the same precinct were asserted on the charge that they had violated the ordinance. They were James A. Kingston, Horace Griffith, Edward Reeves, Tony Lobsi, Joseph Morris, Charles Gamble and James Marshall.

Allen said no one in the neighborhood had complained of his early work. Police, however, reported they had received about 20 complaints.

"We had to go to court, before a judge, for working honestly," lamented Allen.

7 Are Indicted In Gaming Raid On H St. N. E.

Seven men were indicted yesterday for violation of gaming laws. They were arested three weeks ago by a police raiding squad, which found the doors and windows of an H street northeast establishment wide open as a concesion to the heat. Police said the players failed to stop their games when the raiders entered.

The seven indicted were:

Donald W. King, Mortimer P. Williams, Joseph Corridon, Eugene J. Lewis, Howard M. Fowler, Allen H. Work and Samuel Schaffer.

An indictment charging William K. Greene and Stewart B. Hitchner with conspiring with John Hoffman to violate the counterfeit laws was returned to the grand jury as the aftermath of the indictment Wednesday of Greene and Hitchner, both of whom are sailors stationed here.

Hoffman, according to the indictment, is charged with selling Greene and Hitchner $1,000 in spurious currency during April, May and June. About $700 of that amount was passed in local stores and in nearby suburbs.

Greene and Hitchner were indicted Wednesday for possession and passing fake bills in denominations of $10 and $20. After their arrest they allegedly made statements implicating Hoffman, a New Yorker, and a hurried inquiry by the grand jury led to his indictment, along with the two sailors, on a charge of conspiracy.

Others indicted were Willie Brown, joy riding; Robert Douglas, housebreaking; John Talbert and Charles Trevant, grand larceny; King James Harper and Lee Elder, robbery; Ernest Hart and Alfred O. Barrier, rape, and Russell Moss, first degree murder.

Those against whom the grand jury ignored charges were Alice R. Leitan, joy riding; Elsie Butler and Emma Henderson, robbery, and Sherman Stafford, assault.

Certificate Is Issued In Death of Policeman

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued a certificate of natural death after an autopsy showed that Policeman Porter F. Patrick, 47, found dead early Wednesday in his apartment at 1015 N street northwest, was a victim of apoplexy.

Funeral services will be held today at Chamber's chapel, 517 Eleventh street southeast. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery. Patrick is survived by his widow.

3 New Limousines Of Commissioners Will Carry Radios

The District Commissioners are to get three new, sleek-looking limousines soon. Each of the machines will be equipped with a radio to receive over both long and short waves.

Thus, if the Commissioners are so minded, they can turn the limousines into police scout cars and keep posted on such happenings as "Burglar on second floor of 2305 X street," and "Drunk beating his wife at 1600 Y street."

License tag No. 1 goes on the limousine of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, No. 2 on that of Commissioner George E. Allen and No. 3 on that of Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan.

P. U. C. Plans Trolley Line Fare Hearing

Will Also Hold Sessions to Determine Value of Properties.

The question of valuing the Capital Transit Co.'s properties and the company's petition for an increase in fares are to be considered at one hearing, the Public Utilities Commission announced yesterday.

No date for the hearing was set, but it probably will be in September.

The hearing will begin with the valuation question, since this must be cleared up before there can be any determination on the question of fares.

In its statement yesterday, the Public Utilities Commission said that the work of valuing the properties of the Capital Transit Co., has been "largely completed" by it, but it ordered a further investigation by engineers and accountants.

People's Counsel William A. Roberts has been insisting on a valuation of the Capital Transit Co., ever since he took office. The question, he has said, is one of the great mysteries in the local utilities field. The old Capital Traction Co., he recalled last night, was valuated in 1927, but the Washington Railway & Electric Co., was never valuated.

In 1933 the two companies were merged into the Capital Transit Co., and recently this company absorbed the Washington Rapid Transit Co., theretofore an independent bus operator.

On June 19, the Capital Transit Co. petitioned the P. U. C. to fix uniform rates of fare upon all of its railway and bus lines. It proposed a cash fare of 10 cents and a token fare of 8 1-3 cents in place of the present token fare of 7½ cents. It also suggested a uniform price of $1.25 for weekly passes. Most passes now cost $1.

In addition to the questions of valuation and fares, the P. U. C. has before it the petition of the Capital Transit Co. for permission to add 40 more one-man cars to its fleet of 71. A hearing on this was concluded early this week.

Rerouting Plan For Entire City Promised Soon

Transit Company Makes Promise at Meeting Called by P.U.C.

Following a conference yesterday at the District Building, officials of the Capital Transit Co. promised they soon would submit a comprehensive rerouting plan for the city.

The rerouting changes that went into effect Sunday, and which caused serious traffic jams in the downtown section, are described as "intermediate." That is, they are only a part of the whole contemplated scheme of rerouting.

At present, too many cars pile up at certain points, with the result that schedules are shattered and traffic harmony disturbed. Once a definite rerouting plan is put into effect, it is expected that street car traffic will be smoother and speedier.

Yesterday's conference between Capital Transit officials and the city officials was called by Richmond B. Keech, a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

"And I followed the recipe, too!"

Zukor Suit Designed to Enforce Agreement of Producers.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, July 23.—The low-down on Adolph Zukor's $5,000,000 suit against Samuel Goldwyn for alienation of Gary Cooper's affections from Paramount is that it isn't so much an attempt to recover damages as to put teeth in a "gentlemen's agreement."

The gentlemen, which is to say members of the Producer's Association, are tacitly agreed not to tamper with players under contract to their fellows.

Paramount, traditional butt of the gentlemen, has taken a sad shellacking under this limpid code during recent months and Paramount is sore. It wants it understood that the best future poachers can expect is a punch in the nose.

At first glance this may seem a rather crude and ungentlemanly attitude, but the provocation is strong. It is generally conceded in Hollywood that Cooper is lost to Paramont and few believe Zukor has a chance to win his suit. Cooper, however, is only one of four top-flight stars run off the Paramount range since January 1.

Mae West was the first. Mae called all bets off and signed with Emmanuel Cohen, then of Columbia. Cohen subsequently joined Paramount as a producer, but the West contract still belongs to him, and not the studio.

The redoubtable Marlene Dietrich was next to upset the applecart. She walked out on "I Love a Soldier," and cost Paramount something like a million kopecks.

No evidence of tampering is present, but La Dietrich is signed for just one more Paramount picture, and it is doubtful whether she will come to terms thereafter.

Fourth to be disaffected was lumpy-jawed Jack Oakie, who recently signed the dotted line for Edward Small, RKO producer.

All in all, the havoc in Paramount ranks is the greatest since 1931, when Gentleman Jack Warner lifted William Powell, Kay Francis and Ruth Chatterton from the corral at one fell swoop.

About The Showshops

BELL.

WITH the first public performance scheduled for this morning at 11:40 o'clock, at Loew's Fox Theater, it seems just a little ridiculous to remark that Gene Ford's production of the musical comedy, "Spring Is Here," has passed from the fragmentary rehearsal stage to a complete dress-rehearsal performance, preparatory to its enactment as the stage portion of the bill at the Fox this week.

This transition, however, is a matter of such suddenness and, as a usual thing, comes about with such a miraculous attainment of perfection, where only yesterday was chaos, that the emergence of a successful play from the embryonic to the completed form always arouses this column's wonder and admiration.

Up to yesterday morning, Ernest Truex, Chester Fredericks, June Carr, Madelyn Killeen, Ralph Magelson, Lew Parker, Dorothy Scott, Alex Courtney and the other members of the cast and chorus have been memorizing their lines, songs and stage business in the stuffy, little rehearsal room on the sixth floor of the Fox's backstage labyrinth of dressing rooms, music rooms, storerooms and what not. Each in his mind probably had a strictly personal conception of what was to be done and how it would assemble and visualize itself as a finished entity from the front of the house. Without a stage of true dimensions, lights, music, props, costumes and all of the other accessories of a full-fledged musical production, this was mostly guesswork.

Out of all this divergence of opinion and viewpoint there began to emerge yesterday morning the shape and substance of an entertainment of well-proportioned balance, humor, tunefulness and charm.

All of the chaotic confusion attendant upon the preparation of all stage works suddenly ordered itself into a fixed formula of romance, music and laughter—parts that had been figuratively warring with each other suddenly began to dovetail into a definite pattern; a complete homogeneity of dialogue, tunes and business came into being out of the intelligence, skill and experience of these seasoned players.

It all came about because Manager Ford moved his company out of the bandbox coop at the top of the house down onto the stage of the Fox and introduced them to the costumes, properties and working areas at their disposal for the creation of an hour and a quarter of melodious and seasonable pastiming. These veteran troupers responded as veteran troupers always do in the circumstances. They put on a show!

This probably sounds a great deal easier and simpler than it actually was. Finished musical shows do not spring into being at the waving of a wand. They come from hard work, patience, perseverance and sweat. Those are the things that have been put into "Spring Is Here"—plus the company's high quality of native ability.

Rehearsals began yesterday morning at 8. As you are reading this—the guy is an optimist!—at Friday morning's breakfast table, Mr. Truex and his associates have been working for hours on the Fox stage, whipping their piece into final shape. They began at 6:30 and sometime between then and 11:40, when the first show goes on, hope to find a minute or two to grab a piece of sleep.

It reminds me, all this hectic business of pummeling a script and a score into submission, of some of the other notable openings that have occurred in Washington against seemingly insuperable odds. There was the time, for instance, when George White advertised a "Scandals" opening at the National for Sunday night and never got his first curtain up until Thursday night—and then didn't know what it was all about. Then there were the Ziegfeld premieres of "Show Boat" and "The Three Musketeers," on the same stage, that ran into the wee small hours of the morning because Zieggy never would permit a cut in a book or score until after the first public performance and public and press reactions and his shows invariably were too long in first draft.

But the prize of them all was Lew Leslie's "Rhapsody in Black," starring Ethel Waters with an all-Negro cast and chorus. That was scheduled to open on a Sunday night, too. Lew finally got it going Wednesday. I attended Tuesday night's rehearsal—which lasted until 7 a. m., and would not have given Mr. Leslie a plugged nickel for his property. At Wednesday night's first perfect performance, had the show been mine, I would not have sold it for a million!

I suppose that is why "show business" gets in the blood—like horse racing, printer's ink and other poisons!

* * * *

When Maxine Doyle opens as a "single" at the Earle Theater today, Washington will renew its acquaintance with a young artiste who has undergone a tremendous development since her last appearance here. Study, tenacity, strict attention to business and a capacity for hard work have carried Miss "Derl" a long way in the direction of her coveted goal in the theater.

As a contract player she was "typed" strictly as an "ingenue lead." As an independent freelance she has played a wide variety of roles on the screen with such established actors as Ralph Morgan, Robert Armstrong, Bryant Washburn, Monte Blue, David Manners and numerous others. From each assignment she has acquired something she didn't have before—poise, interpretative ability, the power to "think and act on the set," the trick of getting things right the first time, etc.

Now with a little more stage training, parts in a few musicals and legitimate stage plays, watch her go!

* * * *

That new name contest to determine a new house signature for Loew's Fox Theater ends at midnight tonight. There is still time to get your selection in in time for the choice of the ten names from which the final house name will be chosen. The writer of each of the ten will receive an award of $5, the eventual winner to be given an additional $20 and a round-trip airplane jaunt to the Great Lakes Exposition at Cleveland. The preliminary ten will be announced on Monday.

Skull-and-Cross-Bones Note.

The next playful imbecile who stops by the desk with that crazy "Knock-knock, who's there? Panther. Panther who?" business will be appropriately boiled in a vat of Tom Collinses and his limp form dragged through the streets at the tail of the department chariot! Let that be a warning to you!

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Detroit, July 23—It was a small round stick, about 12 inches long, and it was purple with two tips of orange. "This was the No. 2 wand of Howard Thurston," my visitor told me, and as he said it, the dressing room of the theater in which we were standing seemed to fade away and again you saw, in fancy, Magician Thurston bewildering a huge audience by making a torrent of water pour from the blade of a sword. The far-off winds brought the sound of applause, for no act got applause so thunderous as Thurston used to win. "I came to see you," said Claude Noble, the visitor, "because Thurston always carried with him the column you wrote about him. It was always in his wallet, one of the few clippings he ever retained."

* * * *

Noble, who was associated with Thurston from the time they were boys in Detroit, told me about the wands of the top-flight magician. Thurston used three of them in his act. The No. 1 wand, which he used in the first section of the show, was black with ivory tips. The No. 2 wand, which is to be installed in Henry Ford's museum, is purple and orange tipped. The No. 3 wand was green and red tipped. When Thurston died, his No. 1 wand, according to the age-old practice among magicians, was broken. In every city in the world, at the same hour, magicians gathered and broke a wand to commemorate his passing. After Thurston's life thread snapped, probably 500 wands snapped into pieces all over the world. In New York the magicians broke a silver wand and then put it away in a case as a permanent testimonial to one of the all-time greats of their profession.

Though Thurston, Houdini and all the other biggies of the magic world scoffed at anything resembling spiritualism, all of them has a curious conception that they would return to life in another form.

* * * *

Thurston insisted that he be buried in his stage costume, feeling that he would be reincarnated as a magician. This thought obsessed all the great magic-makers. In each of their wills, minute instructions were left in the event that they were able to communicate from beyond the grave. One magician directed that a steel ball be sealed in a glass at his death. "If it is possible to communicate with you," he told the others, "I will return after death and throw the iron ball out of the glass." Fifty others have left similar instructions, but none of them has returned to achieve his promises. The ball is still in the glass, and the other devices have been untouched. The masters of illusion found that death was no illusion.

* * * *

Henry Ford, who could have as many yachts as he wanted, prefers to travel on the Great Lakes in his 600-foot freight carriers . . . He has two stewards, and the food is fresh from Kid McCoy's garden . . . The cabins on the huge freighters are finished completely in teakwood, the classiest tugs afloat.

* * * *

I've never seen a town with so much wealth as this. Detroit in an incubator of great fortunes, and it is curious to reflect on the manner in which the fortunes are founded.

* * * *

C. James McKinney, millionaire hubby of Ethel Norris, has the patents that control the opening of automobile windows. Every time you turn the handle on your car to open a window, you are using his idea.

* * * *

This town is more like New York in its attitude than most others. It will pay a lot of money for first-grade attractions, but wants no part of second raters. Dave Idzal, in charge of the Fox Theater here for the past four years, and one of the great theater men of the country, says that it's the most discriminating audience in the country. It will not tolerate filth in any form, and probably is the only town of its size that does not have a single burlesque show. They are barred from the city limits. But audiences here are enthusiastic if they like you.

United Artists Prepare Roster For New Season

Notable Film Productions Are Being Readied Here and in England.

With "The Last of the Mohicans" soon to be shown as the first production of the new season's schedule of United Artists releases, the activities of the producers whose films are distributed through that company are proceeding at high speed.

The Reliance production of the James Finimore Cooper classic is one of four pictures already completed, and will lead the list of United Artists releases for the coming year. It is an Edward Small production and has Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes, Heather Angel, Henry Wilcoxon, Phillip Reed, Bruce Cabot, Hugh Buckler and Robert Barrat in the leading roles, and was directed by George B. Seitz.

David O. Selznick's first production in Technicolor "The Garden of Allah," co-starring Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer, also has been finished, and is now in its final stages of cutting and editing. It was directed by Richard Boleslawski.

From the studios of Alexander Korda, in England, comes the third completed film, "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," the new comedy from the pen of H. G. Wells, with Roland Young in the principal role. The fourth is the Criterion film, "Accused," co-starring Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Dolores Del Rio.

Two major productions are before the Samuel Goldwyn cameras at the same time. They are "Dodsworth," the Sinclair Lewis-Sidney Howard work, with Walter Huston and Ruth Chatterton in the leads, and William Wyler directing, and Edna Ferber's "Come and Get It," starring Edward Arnold, with Howard Hawks directing.

"The World Is Mine," Pickford-Lasky's second production, is also well advanced toward completion. It is under the direction of Rouben Mamoulian, with Nino Martini, Ida Lupino and Leo Carrillo in the leading parts.

Charles Laughton and Alexander Korda are associated again as star and director, for the first time since "The Private Life of Henry VIII," in the forthcoming London Films Picture, "Rembrandt," now in its fifth week of production. It will be an early release on the Korda schedule.

The studios of Criterion Films are now at work on "High Treason," the new film starring Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and the second of that company's productions to be released through United Artists.

There are four films in preparation, all of which are expected to reach the cameras before the end of next month. These are Eddie Cantor's seventh annual production for Samuel Goldwyn, "Pony Boy;" David O. Selznick's presentation of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer;" Walter Wanger's first film under the release banner of United Artists, "Three Time Loser," with Sylvia Sidney; and Alexander Korda's "Knight Without Armor," the James Hilton story, starring Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat.

Her Other Name, It Seems, Is 'Suzy'

Returning to the local screen in a role quite different from those she played with such verve in "Riffraff" and "Wife Versus Secretary," Jean Harlow—snapped above in a typical Harlow mood—is abundantly supported in "Suzy" by Cary Grant and Franchot Tone. The story is of an American show girl stranded in Europe at the outbreak of the Great War, which, in a manner of speaking, should be Miss Harlow's dish. "Suzy," incidentally opens today as chief screen feature of the bill at Loew's Fox Theater, where "Spring Is Here" is being presented on the stage.

Bolton, Newsom Help White Sox Win 7-6 Victory Over Nats

Pitcher Wilts Near End Of Fray

Catcher Muffs Throw, Permitting Tying Run to Score.

By Shirley Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post.

Chicago, July 23.—Buck Newsom and Cliff Bolton were announced as the batteries for Washington today, but there was some doubt as to which side they were working for. Their combined efforts won the ball game for the White Sox, 7 to 6.

As late as the eighth inning, the Nats were in front, 6 to 5, but they couldn't overcome a successful bit of sabotage by Newsom and Bolton at that point, and the Sox came out of the shadows of defeat to take the ball game.

Bolton's contribution to the Whie Sox victory was a shoddy muff of a relay from the outfield to the plate that permitted the tying run to score and the winning run to reach third base with none out, but Newsom was equally, if not more guilty. It was in the eighth that he pitched the last 4 of the White Sox's 15 hits to the White Sox batting order.

Wastes 4-0 Lead.

They had given Newsom a 4-to-0 lead to start with, and when he couldn't hold that they scored two more runs for him in the sixth, to put him in front, 6 to 5, but, as related, he couldn't hold that either.

He launched that eighth inning by pitching a single to Dykes and then he pitched a line-drive double to rightfield to Luke Sewell. Carl Reynolds shot the ball back to Red Kress in a hurry and Kress unloosed a perfect throw to Bolton at the plate ahead of the slow-moving Dykes, who was attempting to score, but Bolton permitted the ball to skid past him, Dykes scored with the tying run and Sewell moved to third with the winning run.

At this point Vernon Kennedy, who pitched a ten-hit game in scoring his tenth successive victory, looped a double into short leftfield and Sewell was home with the decisive tally.

Chapman Brings in Two.

Washington's counter threat in the ninth took the form of Travis' single, with two out, and Reynolds' strikeout that immediately followed.

Johnny Stone staked Newsom to a 1-0 lead at the outset when he followed Joe Kuhel's looping double to left with a line-drive double to center after two were out, and they made it 4 to 0 against Kennedy in the second.

With one out, Cliff Bolton and Red Kress deposited a pair of singles into centerfield, but the rally sagged when Newsom struck out. It was on in full cry a moment later, though, when Chapman doubled to right center to drive two runs across the plate, and Lewis made it three runs for the inning when he singled to right.

Sox Tie Score in Fifth.

The Sox carved that 4-0 lead to 4-1 in the second when Hayes singled to right and scored on Dykes' double down the first-base line. Newsom limited that uprising to one run when Radcliff hit into a double play.

With no warning whatsoever the Sox tied the score in the fifth with five straight hits off Newsom after two were out. Rosenthal beat out a hit to Kress, Kreevich doubled to

British Favored To Keep Davis Tennis Cup

Australia on Short End of 3-1 Odds for Classic Starting Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Wimbledon, England, July 23.—England ruled a 3-to-1 favorite today to retain the Davis Cup against Australia's challenge as rain washed out the next-to-the-last practice session for the important international tennis classic starting Saturday at Wimbledon.

Reports that John Bull's great Fred Perry is suffering from "tennis fag" spurred Australia's hopes of capturing the trophy for the first time since 1919.

Despite the loss of Adrian Quist, Australian champion, reducing the challenging forces to a two-man attack—gray-haired Jack Crawford and curly-haired Vivian McGrath (pronounced McGraw), the Australian camp teemed with confidence.

Perry, in recent practice, has shown the same listlessness he displayed last week when he lost to California's Don Budge in four sets in a practice series at Eastbourne. He played erratically with flashes of irritability.

However, Perry's teammates, H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Charlie Tuckey and Pat Hughes, appear in tip-top form. Perry, on the other hand, seldom raised his game in practice.

The draw tomorrow, for the opening matches, may see the betting odds shortened, especially if Crawford is matched against Austin in the curtain-raiser. The veteran Australian is rated a good chance of beating Austin.

Rippy in Semifinals Of Public Links Play

By Dave Herman.

A Staff Correspondent.

Bethpage Park, Farmingdale, Long Island, July 23.—As a boy in knee pants in his native Shelby, N. C., Claude Rippy, District of Columbia municipal golf king, dreamed of becoming a national champion one day, and today he was just two steps removed from that ambition. After ripping through two top-notch golfers to swing into the semi-finals of the National Public Links championship.

The District Ripper, co-sharer of the medal with Jim Molinari a San Francisco radio cop, defeated Kammy Lau, 24-year-old Hawaiian open amateur, 2 and 1, and played superb golf to eliminate Johnny Lucas, 23-year-old Sharon, Pa., steel worker, 4 and 2, in the nightcap battle.

Thus did free-swinging Rippy become the first Washington golfer in history to reach the semi-finals of a public links championship by reason of some of the most sensational golf of the day. He bumped off the popular Hawaiian stylist with a two-over par performance after ducking a miniature gale all morning and was only one over par for 16 holes in his conquest of the broad-shouldered young man from Sharon.

Rippy is the sole topic of conversation around here morning, afternoon and night.

Having established himself as the most popular man in the championship because of his sure-fire stroking, his fine golfing mannerisms on and off the course, Rippy tonight appeared to be the man to beat for the championship which 20-year-old Frankie Strafaci, the Brooklyn protege of Wiffy Cox, yielded yesterday when a San Francisco cab driver took him for a ride in a second round match.

Acid Test Today.

Tomorrow the Ripper faces the acid test. If he gets by that scheduled 36-hole semifinal battle with the dark horse, 18-year-old Walter Greiner, a handsome, stocky Baltimore challenger, Rippy will probably be municipal champion of these United States by sundown Saturday.

Rippy and Greiner, youngest of the four survivors, are to have it out at 8:30 and 10 a. m. (E. S. T.), with Rippy the favorite.

Greiner, who won the medal in the sectional qualifying trials in Baltimore, and was eliminated by Roger Peacock, of Washington, in the first round of the Maryland State championship at Rolling Road recently, proved the big surprise today when he eliminated Vash Hromyak, of Sharon, Pa., 1 up, and Harry Ambinetti, of Seattle, by the unexpectedly large count 7 and 5.

Rippy has captured the imagination of the gallery gods, and you can't blame them. The Washington boy has been playing such sweet golf that he knows no danger in the tightest spots.

Defeats Lau.

Rippy met the test this morning when he defeated Kammy Lau, as fine a shot-maker as ever played in this tournament. Scoring 5—5, Rippy appeared tense and stiff. That 5 at the second won him the hole and he held on ihs lead until the eighth, making five consecutive holes.

With a whirlwind finish, Rippy took the par 5 fourteenth with a birdie 4, the fifteenth with a birdie 3, thanks to a beautiful iron second into the teeth of a gale and a 15-foot putt, and halved the sixteenth and seventeenth.

Rippy had played the last seven holes in 2 under par, golf too much for Lau.

Blast of Birdies.

No one could have stood up under such a blast of pars and birdies. Rippy got off to an early start against Lucas, winning the first holes at par golf. He bowed on the third to Lucas' 15-foot putt for a birdie. Almost driving the 300-yard fifth green, Rippy rolled in an 8-footer for a birdie to go 2 up. A trapped tee shot cost him the seventh and he turned in 37, one over, to lead the Sharon boy, 1 up.

The Rippy blast was unleashed

German Runners Say Olympic Track Much Too Brittle

Berlin, July 23 (AP).—After working out today for the first time on the Olympic track, Germany's dashmen wagged their heads disapprovingly when they shook its dust off their spikes. They said the track was too hard and brittle.

Work on the rebuilt track has just been completed under the supervision of experts. Uncertainty, however, enshrouds the real quality of the cinder path on which the track and field stars of the world will struggle for Olympic glory August 2 to 9.

Officials described the track fine, but from sport circles is was learned it still lacks the final touch to condition it for new records.

Moreover, it is said to have long waves noticeable only to the runners, although hardly perceptible to the spectators' eyes.

With the approach of the games, the excitement of welcoming foreign Olympians almost has reached the culmination point for tomorrow's ceremonies for the American athletes—Negro participants as well as Aryans—who will be guided in triumph through the capital to the town hall.

German officials announced that 30,000 carrier pigeons will be released to scatter "messages of peace" to European nations when the tolling of the Olympic bell chimes in with the gun salute inaugurating the eleventh Olympic games, August 1.

Yanks Swamp Browns, Win By 15 to 3

Six Home Runs, Two for Di Maggio; Losing Streak Ended.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, July 23.—The New York Yankees snapped their longest losing streak of the season at three games by walloping the Browns, 13 to 3, to increase their American League lead to eight full games again.

Joe DiMaggio paced the 18-hit attack with a pair of homers and George Selkirk had one round-tripper—his third in as many days—as Monte Pearson chalked up his thirteenth victory of the season with a six-hit performance.

The triumph, coming on top of Cleveland's loss to Boston, again increased the wide margin the Yanks have over the rest of the field.

Three of the hits Pearson gave up were homers, accounting for all the St. Louis runs. Jule Solters and Roy Bell smashed out four-baggers in the fourth, and Sam West followed with one in the sixth.

Hurt May End Allison's Net Career

U. S. Singles Titlist Here for Examination by Spinal Specialist.

Back Injury Makes It Painful for Star to Run or Jump.

By the United Press.

New York, July 23.—Wilmer L. Allison, American singles tennis champion, co-holder of the national doubles title, and veteran internationalist, announced today he may have to retire from competition sooner than he expected because of a persistent back injury.

The fiery, stoop-shouldered Texan, one of the most talented players of the last decade, arrived from his unsuccessful European invasion aboard the liner Washington today. Crippled so that he cannot run or jump without severe pain, he left tonight for Washington for a physical check-up which should determine whether he can play once more in the United States championships this September before retiring.

In any case, Allison said he plans to quit tennis in September and devote all his time to his stock brokerage job and confine his athletic activities to a bit of golf.

In Washington, Allison, who has been among the Nation's ten top-ranking players for the last ten years, will be examined by Dr. William Marberry, Washington spinal specialist. Dr. Marberry will decide whether Allison can defend his United States singles title in September.

Riggs Defeats Senior, In Longwood Finals

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., July 23.—Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, the young national clay court champion, gained the final round of the forty-fourth Longwood Bowl tennis tournament today by defeating Walter Senior, 27-year-old San Francisco player, 6—4, 6—2, 6—0.

The youngster, who has had little experience on grass, found his opponent easy during their all-California semifinal. Senior, in his first match yesterday against a "first ten" player eliminated Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., the defending champion, in a four-setter.

Riggs will rest until Saturday, when he will engage the winner of tomorrow's semi-final between the top-seeded Frankie Parker, of Lawrenceville, N. J., and 17-year-old Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles. Parker is favored to defeat Hunt and if he succeeds, he will oppose Riggs in a final for the third time this season. Honors are now even.

The women's quarter-finals found three Californians entering the second-last round, the top-seeded Alice Marble, of Palm Springs; Gracyn Wheeler and Dorothy Bundy, both of Santa Monica. The only Easterner to qualify was Carolyn Roberts, of New York.

Miss Marble, who has been out of tournament tennis for two years, defeated another Californian, Theodosia Smith, of Pasadena, 6—2, 6—1, in easy fashion, while Miss Wheeler registered the most decisive triumph of the day, eliminating Katherine Winthrop, of Boston, 6—2, 6—0.

Fort Hoyle Favored to Beat Harrisburg in Polo Semifinal

Victor to Play 3d Cavalry In Final

Army Team Carries 7 Goal Handicap for Game Today.

Poloists from Fort Hoyle, Md., and the West Shore Country Club, Harrisburg, Pa., will stage a semifinal charge in the U. S. Southeastern polo championships today at West Potomac Park to decide the team which will face the favored Third Cavalry of Fort Myer in the final round Sunday.

Carrying seven goals to none for the Pennsylvanians, the Fort Hoyle combination is a favorite to gain the finals. The game will start at 4 p. m. The winner of Sunday's match qualifies for the national championships at Cleveland.

No games were played yesterday in the tournament proper but in the consolation event the Sixteenth Field Artillery of Fort Myer outpointed the Third Cavalry Greens, 9 to 5, on Fort Myer field. Unable to overcome a 4-goal handicap, the Greens faded before the Artillery offensive led by Lieut. Joe Gunahl, who scored three goals.

Despite the soggy condition of the field as the result of last night's storm, officials believed the tournament will be kept up to schedule.

Swing Is Feared.

The Keystone Staters, however, will be playing against one of the Army's oldest and most feared campaigners, for Maj. Joe Swing, veteran of the U. S. Army team, will be at his customary No. 3 position. Maj. C. Ferren, Lieut. Thomas Crystal, Lieut. Dave Stephenson and Lieut. Bruce Scott will comprise the rest of the squad.

Harrisburg's squad is made up of four civilians, including a physician, Dr. H. T. Hempt, and his brother, L. F. Hempt.

squad who can swim backstroke.

The girls are Edith Motridge, Los Angeles Athletic Club, who finished second, and Alice Bridges, of Uxbridge, Mass.

Mrs. Jarrett remained in the seclusion of her cabin all day and after the formal announcement refused to be interviewed.

The Manhattan docked at 12:35 a. m. Central European time (7:35 p. m. E. D. T.). None of the athletes was permitted ashore

The pier was brilliantly lighted but there was only a small crowd present to welcome the largest delegation of Olympic athletes which will invade Germany. The reason was that Hamburg citizens were not definitely told the Manhattan would dock today.

Thousands are expected tomorrow, however, when the team will disembark.

The athletes were ordered tonight to be up at 6 a. m. to be ready for the official welcoming ceremony at 8 a. m.

The team will leave the ship at 10 a. m. for a round of sight-seeing and then leave on two special trains at 11:38 a. m. for Berlin and the Olympic village, where they will be quartered early tomorrow evening.

Tonight Mrs. Jarrett was seen walking on the deck. She bumped into the team chaperone while walking and a few minutes later a conference of the Olympic officials was called and her dismissal followed.

All-Night Party.

Mrs. Jarrett's difficulties with the Olympic authorities began in consequence of an all-night party which started last Friday night. Her escorts during the festivities included Charles McArthur, writer husband of the actress Helen Hayes, who did not attend the party. This gay time, during which Mrs. Jarrett flatly declined to heed hints that she would be better advised to return to the athletes' quarters, culminated in the American Olympic Committee's serving a sharp warning putting the backstroke queen on probation with "one more chance" in Brundage's words.

Heeding the warning Mrs. Jarrett returned to her cabin Saturday night. She did not appear again upon the upper decks until tonight, while the ship was finishing its eight-day voyage and receiving the cheers of crowds of Germans who lined the banks of the River Elbe as the Manhattan steamed slowly toward Hamburg, with its searchlights illuminating the Olympic flags.

Mrs. Jarrett frequently had expressed defiance of the Olympic authorities, asserting, "they don't dare put a champion off the team."

When Brundage made his announcement of a "general crack down" on the team, it was assumed that more than one athlete was involved, but yesterday he cleared up the situation by explaining that only "one athlete" had violated training rules. He had refused to say who the athlete was.

Outboard Champ to Show in Harbor Regatta

Fred Jacoby, United States outboard champion, is shown zipping along over the water in one of the boats in which he will play an important part in the Herald Harbor Regatta, which starts tomorrow.

225-Cubic-Inch Hydroplane Test to Feature Herald Harbor Regatta Beginning Tomorrow

Finishing touches were put on the famous Herald Harbor, Md., course by Coast and Geodetic Survey officials; buoys were placed on the hexangular water track and inspected by Severn River Yacht Club officials for the ninth annual tri-city regatta which will be held tomorrow and Sunday on the Severn River.

Twenty events are listed for competition, including the feature 225 cubic inch hydroplane test, which will find Dr. Cecil Bagley, eminent Baltimore sportsman, defending his Maryland title and seeking the reginal Chesapeake and Potomac honor.

Tomorrow the family outboard event will usher in two days of thrills calculated to please the most fastidious of veteran Herald Harbor race enthusiasts.

Previous to that event a "pirate cruise" for the "sunken treasure" will be indulged in by members of the visiting Maryland Yacht Club.

The struggle will be from the Naval Academy to the course. Most populated will be the intimate stretch of water with reservations coming in hourly for mooring and anchoring points of advantage, according to Andrew L. Morris, jr., secretary of the host club.

The Coast Guard cutter Apache, veteran of many a regatta, is anchored at the finish line while markers have been generously distributed along the course.

Given over almost entirely to outboard events tomorrow such noted drivers as Fred Jacoby, C. Mulford Scull, Al Deemer, Maryland Codd, Morton Daller, Harper Chance and others will provide a generous and general amount of excitement.

2 Ritzenbergs Meet in Parks Net Play

Brothers Vie Today in Semifinal Match on Rock Creek Courts.

By John R. Vosburgh.

A quartet of top-seeded players gather late this afternoon in the semifinals of the Washington Public Parks tennis championships and some red-hot developments should crackle forth from the Rock Creek courts. Particularly torrid should be the meeting between Nate and Allie Ritzenberg at 4:30 p. m.

Not that the semifinals between Pat Deck and Ray Stocklinski does not promise its own share of fireworks but the family touch is lacking. There is nothing quite equal to a match between two Ritzenbergs and in this case, a championship is possibly hanging in the balance.

Deck is seeded No. 1; Nate is No. 2; Stocklinski, No. 3, and Allie, No. 4. But it is almost a foregone conclusion that whoever wins the Ritzenberg match will be the favorite to win the championship. Allie has never beaten Nate in a tournament and recently lost the interscholastic championship final round match to his older brother. However, the superiority of the elder is considered by some purely mental, especially in view of the way Allie has shot through to the semifinals in contrast to Nate's rather troubled path.

The shape of things to come this afternoon overshadows even yesterday's results when Nate and Allie gained the finals of the doubles with a 5—7, 6—2, 6—4, win over brother Hy Ritzenberg and Murray Gould. Herb Shenkin and Stoklinski gained the other final round bracket by defeating Deck and Doyle, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Rippy Wins Twice, Enters Semifinals

again. Two up he went by winning the tenth with a par 3, 3 up by sinking a 25-footer off the green for a birdie 3, and 4 up by winning the twelfth with par golf.

But Lucas was not out of this match. A true swinger, Lucas took the thirteenth. Rippy had an unplayable lie in the woods on this hole, came out safely, and laid a 225-yard spoon shot 4 feet from the pin. He almost got a half in 4, but his ball picked up mud, and his putt was just short.

Lucas became only 2 down by ringing up an eagle 3 on the fourteenth.

Rippy finished strong 4-5, par golf his five iron on the fifteenth being just too much for Mr. Lucas.

The Washington boy had only one 3-putt green all day, but those biting iron shots that split the wicket all the way on hole after hole told the story of his double triumph today.

IT might be luck if it happened just once—but when any cigar scores 11 straight taste-test victories, it must taste better.

We went among the crowds at the 11 leading sport events of the spring season. Smokers were chosen at random . . . given two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another, representing the leading nationally advertised brands.

The cigars bore no names or familiar bands to prejudice them. Each man smoked both cigars—then indicated the one he liked best. In every case, Vintage White Owl won by a substantial margin.

Tasting is believing—try a White Owl. It costs but 5¢ at your nearest cigar store.

Up and Up Wins 5th Race in 7 Starts for Suffolk Downs Purse

Wachoche 2d As 10,000 Watch

Toro Nancy Wins Sixth at Arlington Park; Lady Montrose 2d.

By the Associated Press.

Suffolk Downs, Boston, July 23.—Winning his fifth race in seven starts since he donned the colors of Mrs. E. I. Wade, Up and Up, chestnut son of Upset, drove to a length-and-a-half victory over Cotsicana Stable's Wacoche in the Norfolk Purse, mile-and-70-yard feature, before 10,000 today. He paid $6.60.

Wacoche, which paid $6.20 for place, came strong at the end, but could not match the drive of the winner. He held second by a nose over Mrs. Raymond Pollard's Fickle Chance, which set the pace from the start. Fickle Chance brought $4 for show.

Fickle Chance broke out in front and going to the quarter pole held a two-length lead, with Wacoche in close attendance.

Up and Up lay third until the half-mile pole, where he made his move into second place and then drove to the victory when the field turned for home. The favored Ebony Lady got away last and was never a factor.

Chicago, July 23.—Toro Nancy, from the Northway Stable, owned by Norman Church, of Los Angeles, Calif., and ridden by Jockey L. Balaski, won an easy victory in the sixth event at 6 furlongs at Arlington Park today.

Taking the lead at the stretch turn, the victor won by three lengths over Jake Lowenstein's Lady Montrose. Slim Rosie, from the Weil Stable and the early pacemaker, finished third.

Toro Nancy ran the distance in 1:11 3-5 and in the mutuels paid to win $22, to place $9.20, to show $4.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANHELATION, $24.60, $9.40, $5.00; CHRYSEIS, $5.00, $3.60; KENDAL GREEN, $3.20.

ANHELATION, a trailer until the last five-sixteenths, came to the outside in the stretch and closing with a rush, was up in the closing strides. CHRYSEIS was prominent all the way, wore down KENDAL GREEN for the command a few strides out and just failed to last. KENDAL GREEN moved up steadily on the inside to gain the lead in the stretch and weakened inside the last sixteenth. PHRIXUS drew away into a good early lead, was taken in hand, moved up briefly when raching th stretch and faltered in the last furlong. SUN CAMP was never able to reach a forward position, SIT OUT tired.

Mize's Hitting Beats Giants For Cards

Pair of Errors Help Dean, Parmelee Cut Lead as Cubs Lose.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 23 (P).—Johnny Mize's big bat and a pair of opposition errors gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-to-2 victory over the Giants today, sending the New Yorkers back to the National League fourth place.

The victory, with Dizzy Dean doing an effective relief pitching job to help Roy Parmelee chalk up his ninth win of the season, enabled the Cardinals to pull up to two games back of the league-leading Chicago Cubs, who lost to Brooklyn.

Mize, the Rochester rookie filling in for Rip Collins at first, doubled in the first inning to score one of the two runs the Cards made in that frame, and hit a homer with a mate on base in the third to count the gas house gang's other two tallies.

TIME OUT! By Chet Smith

Official Ballot Shows Fight Was Nearly Even

By Bill McCormick.

Battered, but still unbowed, Phil Furr, District welterweight champion, still is a potential threat in the 147-pound division despite the masterful shellacking he received from World Welterweight Champion Barney Ross here last Wednesday night.

Most authorities agreed yesterday that Phillip had failed to "make his fight" against the man who generally is credited with being the best all-around fisticuffian in the ring today.

Furr had been urged to crowd Ross from the opening bell. This he failed to do, for the most part—and, as a result, found himself on the receiving end of hundreds of punches for which the world welterweight titleholder was able to get set.

Several times during the contest, Phil actually carried the battle to Ross instead of waiting for Barney to lead. When that happened, it was difficult to say which looked the better, the District champ or Belting Barney.

Just how near Furr came to winning a decision is shown by the official vote of the judges and Referee Jack Dempsey, none of whom gave Phillip a round, but all of whom called several rounds even.

The official ballot of the arbiters shows the following vote:

Judge O. U. Singer.
Ross 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5
Furr 5 4 5 3 4 4 4 5 4 4
Judge Frank Schuyler.
Ross 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5
Furr 4 3 5 3 5 3 4 3 4 4
Referee Jack Dempsey.
Ross 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 5
Furr 3 4 4 2 3 5 5 4 5 5

The result is somewhat like an overwhelming electoral-vote victory in a Presidential election in which the actual votes cast were pretty evenly divided.

Ross himself had nothing but praise for Furr's stand.

"He was much harder than I thought he would be," admitted Barney just before leaving for his home in Chicago. "I thought I'd be able to feint an inexperienced fighter such as he is into knots, then belt him at will. I found it almost impossible to feint him out of position, and that made my job that much more difficult."

Ross was very much worried by reports printed in some quarters that he had carried the local champion.

"I must have been misunderstood," Ross insisted. "I never said I carried Furr, because I most certainly did not. Even if I had, do you suppose I would be foolish enough to tell it?"

"The truth of the matter is that Furr was a very hard man to beat—and he always was dangerous. I found out that I could beat him, but I didn't think I should take any chances of getting knocked out. To make the fight as interesting as possible to the big crowd I took chances that I shouldn't have taken with everything to lose and nothing to gain, but, for the most part I was tickled to death to be able to beat that fellow.

"You can't say I carried a man because I didn't risk getting my own head knocked off in seeking a knockout."

Newsom Aids Chisox to Win 7-6 Game

right. Bonura looped a single to center that Chapman should have caught, Appling singled to right and Hayes singled to left to drive in the third run of the inning.

Washington bounced right back in the sixth with two more runs, scored with the aid of only one hit. After Reynolds walked, Kreevich made a grammar-school muff of Bolton's fly in right field and the bases were full with none out when Kress laid down a perfect bunt and Reynolds beat Kennedy's throw to Dykes.

At this point Buck Newsom smashed a liner back into the box, Kennedy deflected it with his bare hand and it caromed off Umpire Johnston's shin. Under the rules, Newsom was given a one-base hit and Reynolds was permitted to score, leaving the bases still filled.

But the Nats could only get one more run out of this promising situation. Chapman grounded to Hayes whose throw to Sewell forced Bolton at the plate for the first out, but a run was forced over when Lewis drew a walk. The rally fizzled, though, when Kuhel popped to Hayes and Stone struck out.

Out Fishin' . . . . .

By Jack Hawley.

More and more Florida fishermen are coming up the coast for summer fishing. Not because of any particular scarcity of fish in their own waters but because of the scarcity of paid customers. Florida fishing is at its best now. What with marlin caught last summer, other deep sea fishing may be expected to grow in interest and results, with experienced captains and their comfortable, stanch ocean craft.

We have recently learned that one excellent fishing captain with whom many local anglers have fished at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the winter is at Ocean City, Md., boasting a new, more powerful motor and better fishing equipment. He is Capt. H. C. Mattson, box 104.

To catch either a blue or white marlin is without question the life ambition of every true angler because of the long runs, high jumping, tail walking performance of this fighting, tackle smashing denizen of the briny deep waters of the Atlantic. Usually several hours are required to land this specie of fish. Eight out of every 10 fish hooked are lost, either because of a broken line, or thrown hook. One noted angler is on record as having spent $10,000 over a period of six years, without success, in his quest for a sizable marlin, although his companion a comparitive newcomer to this field of heavy tackle anglers, landed a 410 pounder on his first trip to Bimini Island where the record fish have been caught in past years.

Searches Atlantic.

In recent years Senator J. G. Townsend, jr., has searched the upper Atlantic seaboard, finding marlin in abundance off the coast of Ocean City, Md. Because of his success other anglers have gotten into the spirit of the thing and are chartering boats to these fishing grounds, which lies approximately 40 miles out from this famous summer resort.

This past week the Senator, accompanied by his son, Paul, and former Senator F. O. Walcott, of Connecticut, fishing from his cruiser Jacpan, hooked several marlin, landing two, 7 feet 6 inches in length, tail spread 25 inches, sword 23 inches, weight 105 pounds; the other, also small, weighing but 80 pounds. Capt. Bill Hatch and Mate Bill Rodney, of Miami, were their guides.

Fast cabin cruisers, fully equipped for sport fishing, are now available at a nominal charge, which are in keeping with this sport now in its infancy in these waters, but growing daily with all lovers of sport fishing. Phone C. & P. No. 76, Ocean City, Md., for rates and reservations.

Fish Calendar.

If Grady W. Cobles' fisherman's calendar is any criterion to gamble on, then today, Saturday, Sunday and Monday will be the best fishing days until August 10. Don't put too much faith in fish calendars, because they are like the fish sought for—anticipating whether to or not to strike—the scale is the same. Predictions are hazardous at times. The Chesapeake and its tributaries should produce, regardless of calendars (weather permitting), some excellent fishing during the remainder of the season. August and September should be outstanding for game fishes. October will begin the migration period south for the winter and warmer water.

During these months some record bluefish and rockfish should be taken, judging from the size of the many caught recently and entered by anglers for competitive prizes given by local, State and national contests. Rockfish weighing over 15 pounds must be returned to the water the same as those measuring under 10 inches. Remember this salient factor when entering your catch, and especially with photos if posing for fish, because many an angler has been relieved of a tidy sum because of the observance of a sharp-eyed game warden who cracked down on the fisherman who was unaware of his guilt.

It's very good policy to obey the fish laws—especially those pertaining to rockfish—regardless of your personal opinion concerning the 15-pound weight. True, many, or should we say most, of these large fish are not returned to the water, either by commercial illegal netters or by unscrupulous anglers. However, the millions of small rock now in our waters are here solely because of protection by State and Federal laws, and we have them to thank for making it possible for us all to enjoy a few days' successful fishing for these gamey stripers.

No Catches.

Fishing during the past few days has been off and on. However, it should now show a decided trend in favor of successful catches of bluefish on Southwest Middles, where anglers have been catching nothing more than sunburn and headaches. Chumming for blues on these grounds of late has been so overdone that it has injured fishing, as was expected. Literally tons of ground menhaden have been dumped into these shallow waters prior to the arrival of the expected vanguard of fish from the lower part of the bay. Most of the blues now being taken are caught trolling, a method hard to beat, providing the boat is stopped immediately after the hook has been set. To continue moving detracts from the sport and often results in a drowned fish. Tell your boatman to stop his boat and see that he does it—you're paying for the privilege.

Miles J. Furnas, dean of the Federal Trade Commission's big sport fisherman's group, an ardent blue fisherman, out to show his guest, Attorney Robert Sonfield, Houston, Tex., an avid and experienced Gulf fisherman, what an 8-pound bluefish can do, paid the high prevailing price for chum to get that evening blue fishing Wednesday. Net result—no bluefish, one line bitten off and 76 very large croakers. Miles gives the croaker credit for life and speed (light tackle) on a drift line and joins us in saying, they are pretty good sport at that. The croakers were biting fast and furiously at sunset, when they departed from S. W. Middles.

The best bet for this week-end on rock fishing is Tall Timbers, but it is unfortunate the place does not have more rock piles or at least enough to pass around to all the anglers contemplating visiting these grounds this week-end for the big stripers that have furnished so much excitement during the past week. If rock piles and softshell crabs are all that is necessary to hold the fish as well as the anglers in this vicinity the citizens' association might furnish the rocks as we are thinking of dedicating the lone pile to the man that really has made rock fishing what it is in this neck-o'-the-woods—we mean successful rock fishing—Capt. J. L. Goldsborough.

We once witnessed him make a bet that he could put his boat over the pile, drop anchor and touch the rock—he did.

Capts. Harry Woodburn, J. C. Lore and others at Solomons Island report a good run of trout, some weighing up to 4 pounds, plenty of rockfish up to 2½ pounds and all the croakers one wishes to take home. Quinby, Va., L. S. Corbin, reports large catches of bluefish, porgies, bass, and flounders. The same reports are received from Wachapreague and other fishing resorts on the Atlantic side. Reports from the Eastern and Western shores are mostly croakers and trout and an abundance of each. Good luck.

Tigers Shut Out Macks, 2 to 0; Rowe Star

Schoolboy Allows Six Hits as Team Wins Third Game of Series.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 23.—Detroit made it three out of four with the Philadelphia Athletics today, when Schoolboy Rowe allowed but six scattered hits and scored a 2 to 0 victory for his ninth win of the season. Harry Kelly, for the Athletics, yielded only seven hits, but two of them were doubles that produced runs in the third and sixth innings.

The first Tiger run came on a pass to Rowe, a wild pitch and Burns' double. In the sixth Rogell doubled, went to third on Gehringer's out and scored on Goslin's single over first base.

Weaver Will Face St. Louis Today

By a Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, July 23.—The Washington Ball Club headed for St. Louis and their happiest American League hunting grounds immediately after the close of its Chicago series today.

Twelve times the Nats have met the St. Louis Browns this season and ten times they have won. They have yet to lose a game in St. Louis during the 1936 campaign.

In recognition of his recent impressive performance, Monte Weaver will be given the Nats' pitching assignment tomorrow in the first of a four-game series that will be completed with a double-header on Sunday.

The Browns, now operating at their best clip of the season, have won four of their last seven games, all against the Yankees.

Brooklyn Wins Over Chicago By 6 to 5

Defeat Cuts Cubs' Lead to Two Games, Bill Herman Is Hero.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, July 23.—The Dodgers survived a four-run Chicago rally in the eighth, and defeated the Cubs, 6 to 5, today by pushing the winning tally across in the last of the ninth.

By the defeat, the Cubs' National League lead was cut to two games, since the second-place St. Louis Cardinals won in New York. It was the first loss for the Cubs in the three games of the current series.

Two home runs accounted for the four runs the Cubs made in tying the score in the eighth. Billy Herman hit one with two mates on base and Frank Demaree smashed out the other with the bases empty.

Mrs. Derringer Wins Divorce From Pitcher

Tampa, Fla., July 23 (AP).—Mrs Verna M. Derringer, 26-year-old wife of Paul Derringer, pitching ace of the Cincinnati Baseball Club, was granted a divorce from him and a $9,250 cash settlement in a decree signed today by Judge L. L. Parks.

Derringer had testified that his salary was $12,000, but that he owed his baseball club about half of his 1936 salary. At a preliminary hearing in March, 1936, club officials asked that the suit be expedited.

Export Sales Advance Wheat 2¼c a Bushel

Corn Declines With Rain and Cooler Weather in Grain Belt.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 23 (AP).—Mammoth export takings of Canadian wheat, wet harvest fears in Europe, and sensational crop damage reports from Canada, hoisted wheat 2¼ cents a bushel today.

One effect was to help run the corn market up temporarily to new high price records for the season, despite a transient break of 3 cents on account of some moisture relief and cooler temperatures in parts of the corn belt.

Despite active profit-taking on advances, wheat closed relatively firm, ¼@1¼ cents above yesterday's finish; July, 105; September, 105⅛@105¼; December, 105½@105¾; corn, ¾@1½ down; July, 93½; September, 89½@89¾; December, 82@82⅛; oats, ⅛ off to ¼ up; September, 37¼@37⅜, and rye unchanged to ⅜ lower; September, 71⅜. The provisions outcome was unchanged to 5 cents dearer.

The Market

Stock Prices Again Irregular as Trading Slackens; Wheat Advances.

New York, July 23.—Financial markets were duller with narrow and mixed price movements. Turnover in stocks was smaller at 1,300,000 shares. Profit taking in stocks brought only fractional losses for the most part. Bonds were slow. Government issues were irregular. Commodities kept their sense of direction and moved forward. September wheat closed 1⅛ cents higher at 105¼ cents a bushel.

While a section of the professional following of the stock market professed to think that stock prices ought to drag a little now, as payment for the recent broad recovery to new high levels, actually the tone was firm on current evidence of business improvement. A new force may play about prices for the next few days, namely, the acceptance speech of Gov. Landon to be delivered this evening. If, in the opinion of Wall Street, the speech promises to draw votes from the New Deal, an advance in stocks would be logical to expect.

Meanwhile the greatest forces at work to push prices forward are, first, the second quarterly earnings statements, combined with favorable statistics for the beginning of the third quarter; and second, the prospect of higher dividened payments from now untill the end of the year, as a means of escape from the new tax on undistributed profits. Profits for many companies will rise well above current dividend rates, and the answer in most cases probably will be increased distribution.

Earnings on Upgrade

It usually is difficult for stocks to stay down long on such intangibles as politics when the bread and butter of earnings is increasing. Only when unsound policies of government begin to pinch stockholders, as they promise to do before a great while if a change in course be not made, does deflation of investment holdings take place.

Foreign exchanges were unexciting and the market for Spanish currency folded up, as it might well do until the argument between the Communists and the so-called rebels is settled. Money markets were unchanged, interest being drawn to the middle of next month, when compliance with the higher reserve requirements might conceivably bring an advance in some departments, as for instance the call rate. Banks in any event would like to charge more than 1 per cent for call money, and a reduction in excess reserves might provide a good opportunity to try to lift the peg a bit. That another increase would hurt the stock market is doubtful.

Meanwhile, the position of the franc continued to improve a little, on the surface. The Bank of France this week reported another modest gain in gold, and circulation dropped. Bank of England also brought more gold and its circulation rose, indicating that hoarding abroad has not yet entirely ceased.

Profit Taking.

Some of the recent favorites in the stock market had to absorb further profit taking, which shoved them down slightly. Trading volume decreased with the declines, which was held to be a reassuring sign that no large holders were tiring. Steels, recently uncertain, grew more active and prices hardened, reaching the best in the last hour of trading.

Railroad shares also came forward late in the day, after early hesitancy, on the growing feeling that earnings are improving considerably. Central, B & O., Southern Pacific and Coast Line were conspicuous. The motor group was rather neglected. Chrysler recovered an early small loss. General Motors was narrow.

Public utility shares were firm to fractionally lower. Public Service lost a point. Consolidated Edison was steady on the certainty of a higher dividend to be voted on Monday. International Telephone, depressed by the news from Spain, rallied a little. Some of the utility preferred issues were weak, including the Electric Powers, which probably felt the decline in optimism over oil interests in Louisiana.

Merchandising shares were higher with optimistic predictions of increased business during the remainder of the summer and autumn. Rubbers hardened. Rail equipments and metals were mixed. Narrow trading was the rule for tobaccos and motor accessories. Stocks that stood out in the trading were: Barker Brothers common and preferred, up 1 to 2 points; Bigelow Sanford Carpet, Bristol Myers, Bullard, General Outdoor Advertising, and the preferred issues of Goodrich, Household Finance, Kinney, Vladsco and U. S. Hoffman.

Sport.

If quail hunting in North Carolina is languishing because of New Deal oppression, grouse hunting in Scotland appears to be on the mend. A United Press story from London says that "advance bookings by American sportsmen for grouse hunting this season are larger than for any years since 1929. Business recovery and improved conditions in Wall Street are listed by British authorities for the large increase in American grouse enthusiasts this year."

Moratorium.

For several days there has been no business in Spanish exchange, though nominal quotations have been reported. Today markets here and in Paris abandoned all efforts to quote pesetas pending the end of the Spanish banking moratorium, now scheduled to last until next Monday. The last rate quoted was around 13.70½ cents, off about 2 points from the rate quoted yesterday morning.

Railroad Earnings.

Railroad earnings for June, according to early reports, brought comfort to all concerned. The roads now are in a position to make the most out of any increases in gross revenues, and increases continue to be shown. The first eight railroads to report earnings for June show a rise of 19.7 per cent in gross over the corresponding month of last year and an increase of 53.1 per cent in net railway operating income. For the first six months the increase in net income was 30.5 per cent.

Reserve Balances Gain $63,000,000

By the Associated Press.

The weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve banks yesterday disclosed member bank reserve balances rose $63,000,000 during the week ended July 22, bringing the total to $5,935,000,000. Excess reserves climbed to $2,990,000,000.

The increase, the statement showed, was occasioned by a retransfer of Government funds from Federal Reserve banks to commercial institutions. These transfers caused a decline of $66,000,000 in Government cash at Reserve institutions during the week.

The inward flow of gold continued on an orderly basis, American stocks increasing only $5,000,000 during the period which brought total stocks to $10,634,000.

Cigarette Output Hits All-Time High

An all-time peak in cigaret production was reported by the Bureau of Internal Revenue yesterday on the basis of revenue stamp withdrawals during June.

The Government's revenue from the tax on cigarets was $42,028,066 for June as compared with $36,360,241 for June of last year.

The Offering Prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these Bonds.

THE COMPANY The New York Edison Company, Inc., all of the stock of which, except 2 shares, is owned by Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., was incorporated in New York on August 1, 1935, as a consolidation of The New York Edison Company and The United Electric Light and Power Company. The Company is engaged in the distribution and sale of direct and alternating current electricity to consumers in Manhattan and that portion of The Bronx lying west of the Bronx River, New York City. The Company also supplies electricity to certain affiliated electric companies of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York System for distribution outside of the territory served by the Company. The energy is in part purchased from others and in part generated at the Company's own plants. The Company's properties include generating stations, substations and a transmission and distribution system. Practically all of the underground transmission and distribution lines are in conduits rented from an affiliated company.

Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., has applied to the Public Service Commission of the State of New York for the merger into itself of the Company. If and when such merger is effected, the Series E Bonds and other obligations of the Company will become obligations of the Consolidated Edison Company. The Offering Prospectus contains certain information in regard to that Company including certain data as to its business and capitalization and certain consolidated financial statements.

Does not include $55,000,000 First Mortgage Bonds of The United Electric Light and Power Company, and $1,039,000 matured mortgage bonds of predecessors of the Company, pledged to secure funded debt.*

PURPOSE OF ISSUE The proceeds from the sale of $30,000,000 Series E Bonds will, it is estimated, aggregate $30,000,000 (exclusive of accrued interest) and will be applied to the redemption on October 1, 1936, at 105% and accrued interest, of $30,000,000 Series A Bonds issued under the First Lien and Refunding Mortgage. The balance required for such redemption plus the Company's estimated expenses in connection with the sale of the Series E Bonds, together aggregating approximately $1,829,500 (exclusive of accrued interest on the Bonds to be redeemed), will be obtained from the Company's current cash.

EARNINGS The statements as to earnings for 1933, 1934 and 1935 in the Offering Prospectus, subject to the related notes and other important relevant information, indicate that in each of these years the Gross Corporate Income of the Company together with that of its two predecessors available for fixed charges, after deducting provisions for Federal income taxes and for "retirement expense", was more than three times such fixed charges in each of such years. Reference is made to the Offering Prospectus for a summary of unaudited Profit and Loss Statements for the three months' and twelve months' periods ended March 31, 1935 and 1936; for the three months' period of 1936 both Gross and Net Corporate Income show reductions from the figures reported for the corresponding period of 1935. The Offering Prospectus also contains consolidated profit and loss statements of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc.

SERIES E BONDS The Series E Bonds will be issued under the First Lien and Refunding Mortgage of The New York Edison Company, assumed by the present Company, as amended and supplemented, and, in the opinion of counsel for the Company, will be secured by a lien on all the distributing systems and franchises and substantially all the real estate, including generating stations, now owned by the Company, subject to the liens, so far as they attach, of mortgages securing outstanding indebtedness of $39,343,511.74. The Mortgage is also, in the opinion of counsel, secured by pledge of $55,000,000 First Mortgage Bonds of The United Electric Light and Power Company, one of the Company's predecessors, and the latter bonds are secured by a first lien on the distributing system and franchises and substantially all the real estate, including generating stations, formerly owned by the United Company as the same existed prior to August 1, 1935.

Bonds of Series A and D are now secured by the lien of the Mortgage. The Mortgage permits the issuance of additional bonds which also would be secured equally thereby.

Upon retirement of the Series A Bonds or due provision therefor, a Supplemental Indenture dated February 27, 1936 will amend the "after acquired property" clause of the Mortgage so that with respect to property acquired by the Company or a successor after February 29, 1936, such clause will subject to the lien of the Mortgage only electrical transmission or distribution lines or systems (but not generating stations) located in the territory now served by the Company's distribution system.

The Mortgage provides for the release, in certain instances, without notice to bondholders of property covered thereby, including the release for cancellation, upon retirement of the outstanding bonds of The New York Gas and Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, of the above $55,000,000 of United Company bonds.

The Mortgage contains provisions permitting its modification, in any particular, with the approval of the holders of 75% in amount of outstanding bonds, subject to certain limitations.

UNDERWRITING Subject to certain terms and conditions, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated has agreed to purchase these Bonds from the Company at 100%, or a total of $30,000,000, plus accrued interest and has arranged for the sub-underwriting of a portion thereof. Such Bonds are to be offered to the public at 102%, or a total of $30,600,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discount is 2%, or a total of $600,000.

Price 102% and Accrued Interest

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated have agreed to purchase these Bonds when, as and if issued, and accepted by them and subject to the approval of their counsel, Messrs. Davis Polk Wardwell Gardiner & Reed. The validity of the franchises and titles of the Company, and certain other matters, have been passed upon by counsel for the Company. It is expected that delivery of the Bonds in temporary form, exchangeable for definitive Bonds when prepared, will be made at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. on or about July 29, 1936, against payment therefor in New York funds.

Reference is made to the Offering Prospectus, for the terms and conditions of the underwriting and the offering of the Bonds and for a statement regarding sub-underwriting agreements which, among other things, authorize Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated to purchase and sell Bonds, in the open market or otherwise, either for long or short account, for the respective accounts of itself and the sub-underwriters, during the period and within the limits set forth in such agreements.

Further information, particularly financial statements, is contained in the Registration Statement on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and in the Offering Prospectus which must be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from the undersigned.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Leading European gold currencies yielded further ground to the dollar in foreign exchange dealings yesterday.

The French franc dipped .00⅝ of a cent to 6.61¼ cents, but was still above the point where resumption of gold shipments to the United States would be profitable. At Paris the dollar closed at the equivalent of 6.610 cents for the franc compared with the overnight New York rate of 6.616. The Swiss franc and Holland guilders eased with the French currency, the guilder slipping to 67.97, off .07 of a cent.

The market for Spanish pesetas was described as nominal, with the quotation off .01½ of a cent at 13.70.

The British pound also was lower at $5.02, off $\frac{1}{16}$. The Bank of England's statement again showed holdings of the yellow metal at a new peak. In London the dollar finished at 5.02¼ to the pound compared with the overnight New York rate of 5.02$\frac{1}{16}$.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London.—With the exception of international stocks being weaker, the market maintained a firm tone throughout the session. There was considerable activity in shipping issues, electrical equipments, textile and engineering companies. Rails held steady and oils stocks were well supported. Gilt-edged securities moved higher.

Paris.—The bourse closed with a firm tone, rentes being in a somewhat better demand. Government bonds remained steady while price changes were irregular in some industrial groups.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures were lifted more than a penny at one time yesterday on improved buying of Canadian and Australian grain and wet weather in Europe.

STABILITY

For over three-quarters of a century the Associations of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League have given their members steady and profitable returns on their savings. For over three-quarters of a century they have aided home owners and prospective home owners in building, buying, refinancing and renovating their homes . . . long years of friendly and helpful relations with your neighbors, your fathers and your grandfathers.

These Building and Loan Associations have given STABILITY to tens of thousands of families. Stability of income through the saving plan . . . stability for the family through home ownership at minimum cost. Here are the roots and foundations of society. Here are the practical ideals of every member of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League.

More than any other word STABILITY describes the Association members of the League, for they are essentially associations of families with a common ideal. Through this mutual, cooperative idea each family helps its neighbors in achieving the goal of home ownership and, in turn, secures the same benefits.

The members of the League are not private banking houses. Each institution is composed of thousands of individual home owners and savings members banded together in a cooperative enterprise for mutual benefit.

Visit the member nearest you, enjoy the help and understanding that go hand in hand with permanent . . . stable methods of home financing and investing savings with safety and profit.

Twin-Motored Attack Planes Bought by U. S.

$1,259,235 Contract Is Let to Curtiss Company; Number Is Secret.

A 1,259,235 contract for the construction of attack airplanes—of a new type powered with twin engines—has been awarded the Curtis Aeroplane & Motor Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., it was announced yesterday by Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

The contract provides for the building of "a sufficient number of airplanes and spare parts to provide for a thorough service test." War Department officials refused to reveal the exact number of planes to be built.

Army Air Corps and Curtiss Co. engineers have worked for two years in developing the new plane, to be known as the Curtiss YA-18. So far as is known, it is the only two-engine attack plane in the world.

Powered with Wright Gr-1820 cyclone engines, the plane combines speed with a long cruising range. War Department officials say it is generally considered to be the fastest two-engine military airplane ever built.

The ship, a mid-wing monoplane, is of all-metal construction with a retracting landing gear and a tail wheel. All of the latest safety devices and navigational aids are incorporated in its design.

Admiral William H. Standley, Acting Secretary of the Navy, announced yesterday that contracts totaling $4,755,112 had been awarded for the construction of propelling machinery for six submarines, the 188, 189, 190, 191, 192 and 193.

The contracts went to two companies, each of which will deliver to the Navy Department propelling machinery for three submarines. The largest of the contracts, for $2,520,970, went to the Hooven, Owen, Rentschler Co., of Hamilton, Ohio. The other, for $2,234,142, went to the Winton Engine Corporation, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Eclipse Films Were Success, McNally Thinks

Rain and Clouds Believed Not to Have Entirely Balked Expedition.

Dr. Paul A. McNally, leader of the National Geographic Society-Georgetown University Eclipse Expedition, who returned to Washington early this week from Russia, officially reported to the society yesterday that while rain and thick clouds caused the abandonment of the major portion of the expeditions program, the 10,000-mile trip to observe on June 19 the total eclipse of the sun, might not be entirely without scientific reward.

In the five tons of photographic equipment of the expedition, there was a wide variety of cameras to be used under varying weather conditions, but most of them were useless after weeks of assembling and mounting them on concrete bases.

Dr. McNally praised the co-operation of the Soviet government which did everything possible to aid the expedition in its program. When Dr. McNally and his companions arrived in Kustanai, the Soviet committee on eclipse assigned the expedition a site about 10 miles slightly south and east of the town. On an inspection trip to the site, May 10, cold weather, high winds and a snowstorm made the members of the expedition so uncomfortable that they thought the necessary two trips a day to the site would be too rigorous.

District Seizes 3 Accused of Selling 'Numbers' Tickets

Three men were charged with operating a lottery yesterday when vice squad police arrested them for allegedy accepting "numbers" bets in the corridors and on the sidewalks around the Department of Agriculture Building.

The men arrested, James H. Zerman, 29, of the 300 block of Eleventh street southwest; Thomas A. Bresnahan, 28, of the 1600 block of E street northeast, and Frederick L. Mills, 25, of the 200 block Second street northeast, all were released under $1,000 bond pending trial.

According to police, the three men, who they say have been taking bets from Government employes for several months, had marked money and a few slips on them when arrested.

16 Cyclists Escort Ashbrook's Casket

Sixteen motorcyclists, friends of Richard Ashbrook, 21-year-old motorcycle racer, formed a cycle escort for the funeral procession which took his body to Prospect Hill Cemetery yesterday.

Ashbrook, former George Washington University student, was killed almost instantly Sunday in a race at Swazey, N. H., when he swerved to avoid striking an onlooker and crashed into a tree.

2 Truck Victims' Rites to Be Today

Before the altar of St. John's Catholic Church, Clinton, Md., a mass will be said this morning for the two small children who were crushed to death Wednesday under the wheels of a truck driven by their father.

James Allen Burch, the father, will stand silently by as the two small caskets bearing the bodies of Walter, 6, and James, 4, are wheeled into the church.

By his side, will be Mrs. Burch, mother of the children, who was working in a nearby field when her husband drove his produce truck into their farm yard near Clinton.

With the parents will be 10-year-old Dorothy Burch, who will tell a coroner's jury next Wednesday how she saw her two small brothers run to greet "Daddy" as he returned home—how they slipped beneath the wheels of the truck to meet almost instant death.

The mass will be said by the Rev. John E. Horstkamp, rector of the church. Interment will be in the church cemetery.
